The Secret of the Submarine

By E. Alexander Powell. Author of "The End of the Trail," "Fighting in Flanders," "The Road to Glory," "Vive la France," etc.

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS. Lieutenant Jarvis Hope is detailed by the United States naval board to investigate and report findings on the invention of Dr. Burke, which serves to bring the submarine to a state of perfection. On the way to the inventor's home a Japanese helper is surprised in the act of examining the mechanism. Hope reports favorably on Burke's invention, but there are others interested in it. Attempt to burglarize Burke's laboratory fails; later his daughter Cleo finds him murdered in his bedroom. He sells her father's books; she finds a note from him which she learns they contain strange formula. Olga Ivanoff and Gerald Morton, scientist in search of formula, attempt to capture Burke. He escapes, but is captured by Stephen Mahlin, the anarchist. Hope rushes to her aid; Morton shoots but bullet hits a bomb in cellar, which explodes. Hope and Cleo escape and attend ball at Mrs. Delaney's, whose nephew has two missing books. Mahlin, a spy, attempts to bring them for an island out in the bay. Mahlin and the Japanese return to the island light. After a violent storm Hope and Cleo arrive on strange island and discover that they hunt the island. They escape from Hope but return and dynamite the shack. Hope and Olga manage to reach Sandbar, where Dr. Burke is hidden. Hope and Cleo are brought to meet Hope at the hotel with book. Morton finds the book and takes it to his room. He would have possessed the volume, but it captured by Morton and taken to cabin in Studebaker. Hope and Cleo search for which they search. Fortunately she gets to Hope, who, with Hope, starts to rescue her. Hope appears in time to save her. He reaches the other side and is greeted by Cleo; she swears her love to him. They are rescued by Mahlin and Hope, who are pulled from quicksand by Hope and a grape vine. Mahlin and Satsuma are called before by Mahlin and Hope, who are pulled from quicksand by Hope and a grape vine. Mahlin and Satsuma are called before by Mahlin and Hope, who are pulled from quicksand by Hope and a grape vine.

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

Consumed with anxiety, he hurried back to San Francisco and, going straight to the palace hotel, sent up his card to Mr. Johnstone. The lawyer, a white-haired, ruddy-faced old gentleman, immediately received him. To this deeply interesting auditor the young officer told briefly of the mission on which he had originally come to California, of his acquaintance with Dr. Burke, of his friendship with and love for Cleo, of their long search for the mysterious formula, and of her mysterious disappearance.

"It is quite evident, Mr. Hope," said the lawyer, when the recital was finished, "that you are an anxious to find Miss Burke as I am—though, and she smiled, "for somewhat different reasons."

"I speak of her as Miss Burke," added, "but her real name is Miss Montgomery."

"Miss Montgomery?"

exclaimed Hope incredulously. "What on earth do you mean by that?"

"The young woman for whom we are both looking," said the lawyer quietly, "is not the daughter of Dr. Ralph Burke, as she and, indeed, everyone else, supposed. Her father was the late Calvin Montgomery."

"Not the New York financier?"

gasped Hope, unable to credit the evidence of his ears.

"The same," said Johnstone. "It seems," he continued, "that Mrs. Montgomery died when Cleo was born, whereupon Dr. and Mrs. Burke, who were old friends of the Montgomerys, offered to adopt the child and bring it up as their own. Mr. Montgomery was a poor man in those days, and, as his business kept
