

SAFETY EXHIBIT IS ATTRACTING CROWD

Government's "Safety First" Train in Omaha Until Saturday Evening.

GIVE SIXTY-TWO LECTURES

The government's "Safety First" exhibit that started out from Washington over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad some two months ago has reached Omaha, coming in from the west over the Union Pacific Friday morning.

The "Safety First" exhibit is carried in sixteen of the all-steel cars of the Baltimore & Ohio, the seats having been removed and the exhibits arranged along the sides, thus enabling visitors to view them as they pass through the train and from one car to another.

The government exhibit train came into Omaha from Grand Island at an early hour and was parked on a siding north of the Union station, under the Tenth street viaduct, the rear being at the Ninth street crossing, where visitors were admitted.

President Calvin Visitor

A little before 10 o'clock the train was opened for inspection, the first visitors being a party of railroad men, headed by President Calvin of the Union Pacific. They were followed by city officials and a number of business men and then followed the general public, men, women and children.

From the opening of the train until noon it was filled with people, and they moved through rapidly, a good deal of the time tramping along to the tunes of lively music played upon phonographs and Victrolas.

People who were viewing the exhibits arranged and shown by Uncle Sam wonder why there are phonographs and Victrolas on the train. There were none when it started out from Washington. As the train moved from place to place through the east, the officials in charge noted that the attractions held the spectators too long in the cars, and acting about for a method of quickening their movements and making them step lively, they hit upon the musical instruments as an experiment. A couple of them were tried out and they thought about the results sought. Then one was installed in each of the cars.

Move Faster to Music

The music, especially the lively tunes, cause people to move with more rapidity. Without the music, it was found that about 800 per hour was the greatest number that could be passed through the train. Now, with the phonographs and Victrolas playing, it is an easy matter to move 1,100 per hour.

Today the train will open to visitors at 1 o'clock, continuing until 9 in the evening, when it will be closed, and later proceed to Lincoln.

Those in charge of the government train and those delivering the lectures are all trained men from the several departments, all being familiar with their subjects.

Half Million View Exhibits

At the entrance to the train a man keeps track of the number of visitors and up to the time of opening in Omaha he asserted that since leaving Washington, in round numbers, 576,000 persons had viewed the exhibits. No estimate is made of the number of exhibits contained in the sixteen cars, but there are thousands of them, practically all of the government departments being represented. The departments having to do with war, agriculture and interstate commerce probably carry the largest exhibits.

Mines and Mining

There is a good deal of attention paid to mines and mining, the methods of carrying on the work being fully explained. There are shown interiors of various kinds of mines and the methods employed by men in working them.

In the bureau of animal industry there is much that interests people, especially the stock raisers. They are shown how to improve their herds, keep them healthy and get the best results out of feeding.

Relative to the reclamation of arid and semi-arid lands, there is a large and comprehensive exhibit. The methods of irrigation are fully explained by lectures and topographical maps of the country, and in this connection it is shown that on the reclamation projects that at this time there are available for entry 354 irrigated farms, ranging in size from forty to eighty acres, and that they can be purchased from Uncle Sam at $30 to $60 per acre.

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS

Lieutenant Jarvis Hope is detailed by the United States naval board to investigate and report findings on the invention of Dr. Cleo Burke, which involves bringing the submarine to a state of perfection. On the trial trip of the inventor's boat, a Japanese helper is surprised in the act of examining the mechanism. Hope reports favorably on the new device but there are others interested in it. He attempts to bring the inventor to a state of perfection. Cleo finds him murdered in his bedroom. Cleo sells her father's books; she finds a note from which she learns they contain secret formula. Cleo Ivanoff and Gertrude Morton, spies in search of formula, attempt to capture Cleo when she comes for books to Strophane, the anarchist. Hope rushes to her aid; Morton shoots but bullet hits a beam in ceiling, which explodes. Mrs. Del-track, whose nephew has two missing books, Mahlin, a spy, attempts to steal books; in excitement that follows books disappear. Mahlin escapes. Hope and Cleo take boat for San Francisco. Cleo and Hope and the Japanese turn out on the island light. After a violent storm Hope and Cleo arrive on strange island and discover that Hope has been captured by Morton and taken to cabin in the mountains. She finds these books for which they seek from her. Hope and Cleo are followed by Mahlin and Jap who attempt to kidnap them. Hope manages to return and dynamite the shack. Hope and Cleo manage to reach Sandboro, where Dr. Cleo Burke has been captured. Hope and Cleo are captured by Morton and taken to cabin in the mountains. den somewhere," said the woman pleasantly. "It is her afternoon to go out, but she rarely leaves the grounds. If you will be seated I will send a servant for her."

"Please don't trouble," said Hope. "I will find her."

Passing around the house to the garden in the rear, he strode through a long pergola fragrant with roses, pushed his way through a screen of shrubbery and emerged upon a stretch of lawn, so smooth and beautifully tended that it looked like a piece of green velvet, which swept unbrokenly to the low stone wall beside the river. Standing hook, remembering that there are occasions when two are company but three are a crowd, whittled away an hour before he joined them. As his smiling face appeared above the bushes, Cleo, transfixed by love and joy, rushed forward and threw her arms about his neck.

"I'm the happiest girl that ever lived!" she cried. "I shall never, never forget your kindness and patience." And she kissed him on both cheeks.

"I was afraid," said Hook teasingly, "that now you're one of the richest gals in America you might forget all about your old friends, Miss Cleo—or Miss Montgomery, I s'pose I should say."

"Jarvis has told me all about it," she said, "but I still can hardly realize that it is true. But I won't have you call me Miss Montgomery—Dr. Burke was the only father that I ever knew."

"You will not be called Miss anything much longer," remarked Hope happily.

"I reckon you ain't goin' to waste much time in gettin' spliced, then," said Hook.

"We are not," said Hope emphatically. "We have wasted quite enough already. We are going to be married tomorrow."

When the three reached San Francisco in that afternoon Hope took Cleo to the quiet residential hotel where she had stayed on previous occasions.

"I will be back in time to take you out to dinner, dear," he said, as they stood waiting for the elevator. "I must let Mr. Johnston know that I have found you," he added happily. "I must hunt up a minister."

"Don't be gone long, dearest," she replied, clinging to his hand. "I shall count the minutes until you are back with me."

"I'll be back within a couple of hours at the most," he called, as the elevator shot her upward.

Entire Body Covered With Watery Pimples

Would Scratch Till Blood Came

Providence, R. I., Oct. 15, 1915.—"Some time ago my skin began to break out in little pimples. These filled with water, and when they opened the watery fluid ran out and spread the trouble until my entire body from my face to my feet was covered. The itching was something terrible, and I would scratch until the blood came, and my skin would feel as if it were burning. I tried a prescription and several kinds of salve, but none helped me. After I had suffered this way for about 14 or 15 months I tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and the first application relieved me so that I slept that night. In six weeks I was cured." (Signed) Raymond E. Madley, 689 Union Ave.

Doctors have prescribed the Resinol treatment for over twenty years. Sold by all druggists. Samples free—write to Dept. 3-E, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

R. B. Howell Buys Dr. Brown's Home on West Farnam Street

R. Beecher Howell has purchased a handsome stucco house, 3405 Farnam street, of W. T. Graham, real estate man. This is the home built a few years ago by Dr. Ewing Brown, who lived in it for a few years and then sold it to W. T. Graham a few months ago. Mr. Howell does not intend to occupy the place, but has leased it to Dr. E. L. Bridges for a period of two years. The price paid by Howell was $14,500. The house stands on a sixty-five-foot lot.

"That's Just the Dress for My Girl"

And that's just the expression made by a woman as she stood, in company with two others, in front of one of our 16th street windows the other day. We couldn't give a more pointed example of the way the styles we are showing just now impress every woman who sees them.

This is extremely gratifying to us, because we know that the dresses we are showing this season are better than any we have ever exhibited before, and we simply could not let this opportunity go by of expressing to this unknown woman the fact that she came to the same conclusion that hundreds of other women have, even thus early in the season, namely that Brandeis Stores for Misses' Wear is Unexcelled Anywhere.
