

State Fair Amusement List Well Filled

NEBRASKA STATE HOUSE FROM THE SOUTH

While the state fair to some degree is considered an educational institution from the standpoint of agriculture mostly, yet the people who come to Lincoln rather look toward a good time mixed in with the rest, and so from year to year Secretary Mellor has looked about him with the idea of bringing to the fair some good, wholesome amusements for the entertainment of the state fair patrons.

The races, of course, are looked upon as the most important of the amusement features and in years past the people have not been disappointed. This year the races will be better than ever, with a splendid entry, which is bound to attract the crowds.

The automobile races last year attracted thousands and they stayed to the end, notwithstanding the weather was not good for the races. Records on dirt tracks were smashed by the intrepid drivers present, among them the best known men in the business. Wild Bill Endicott will be back again this year and participate, while many of the others probably will be present.

Visitors at the fair this year will have the pleasure of seeing Ruth Law, the woman aviator, who has been thrilling the crowds all over the country with her dives and loops, which equal the most daring acts of Thompson or Beachey. In addition to the customary day flights, Miss Law will fly by night with light and pyrotechnics to mark her flight through the darkness. This alone will be something new for the state fair visitor, and something new is what the management of the fair endeavors to give each year.

As usual there will be the vaudeville stunts on the quarter stretch in front of the grand stand between the races and in the evening. Three great bands will furnish most of the music, the Nebraska State Band, George Green's celebrated Omaha band and the Kitties from Canada.

Those who love popular selections from the operas are going to hear the best there is going and a double quartet of the famous Baron-Wheatly singers will furnish the music. This is all that needs to be said; the name Baron-Wheatly is sufficient to indicate the class of the vocal work.

The Midway. If there is anybody who comes to the fair who does not visit the Midway, he loses much of the fun that goes with a visit to the Nebraska annual exposition. Johnnie Jones is going to furnish the Midway attractions this year. Did you listen? Johnnie Jones, the man who has gotten together a bunch of attractions which has become world-wide in their attractiveness, and when the people hear that Johnnie Jones is coming they flock and flock and flock, and Johnnie Jones does the rest.

A new-fangled contrivance will be seen at the fair which is warranted to cure the grouch, the blues or any old thing which tends to make people miserable. "The Whip" is what they call it, and it is a sort of riding device that causes one to forget his troubles and feel that life is really worth the living. It is impossible to describe what the thing is like, but give it a trial, and if you are not satisfied after you are through you can have your grouch returned to you in as good condition as when you lost it while riding the Whip.

Then comes the fireworks in the evening. Everybody likes to watch the fireworks and they are going to have a chance this year to see just about the best ever in that line. As

Security Mutual Life

Those who have been in the habit of attending the Nebraska state fair and have become acquainted with the tall stone building at Twelfth and O streets will be greatly surprised when they reach Lincoln this year to see the magnificent new building into which the former tenants of the old "Burr Block" are now moving.

The building now stands remodeled into a beautiful ten-story office building, modern in every way and with marble finishings not shown in any other building in the country. The building is only half completed, the front half having been rebuilt first, but by January 1 the company hopes to have the building entirely finished. Standing as it does on the corner which is the center of Lincoln's business industry, the building will always be in demand as a place for business offices, the Central National bank occupying the first story while the Security Mutual will have its home in the top floor.

usual they will be set off in front of the grandstand and everybody will have a chance to see something new. Something new is what the state fair management is angling for and they believe they will have it in the Therle-Duffield fireworks.

It might be well to go back to the races for a little while before this story is finished and give you some idea of what you can expect. There will be each day a conglomeration of running, trotting and pacing that will do your heart good to see. Besides the ten running races promised the following program will be given, which gives you some idea of what to be looking for:

Event	Purse
Two-year-old trot	1,200
Three-year-old trot	700
2:25 trot	700
2:15 trot	700
2:10 trot	1,000
Two-year-old pace	800
Three-year-old pace	800
2:15 pace	800
2:10 pace	800
2:10 pace	800
Free-for-all pace	1,000

That ought to be attractive enough for anybody and sure will be swift enough to start the blood tingling. Just now it is a little hard to tell just what base ball lovers are going to have a chance to see in the great national game. Last year the season closed before the state fair opened, but this year the league will be doing business at the old stand and putting in the full-length season. Lincoln in the Western league is scheduled to play the first two days of the fair and the rest of the week in Sioux City, but it is possible that these games may be transferred to Lincoln in order to take advantage of the big crowds which annually visit the fair. This is frequently done, and base ball lovers may have a chance to see Western league ball as it is played—sometimes.

Take it all around, the amusements at the fair this year will be so attractive that none need fear that they will not have a grand, good time.

State University Shows Growth

for an hour or two after they get away from the dinner table. She is taught the rules of sanitation of farm homes, and she is given myriads of helpful lessons on making the outside work that she can do pay her well, so that her own income supplements that of her husband and makes her a truly dependable factor in lifting the mortgage from the farm where her "man" may have bought it on terms and trusted to heaven and himself and her to pay it off when the time comes.

All of this the university is doing for Nebraska's farmers and her farmers-to-be—just as it is doing something for its lawyers-to-be, and its engineers-to-be, and its everything-else-to-be. The institution has a multitude of courses leading to a multitude of things, but the end after all is the same—the great institution is seeking to serve the people of the state in the best way it can by fitting them for the thousand and one callings of life and in giving them the fundamentals which will cause them to succeed in their callings.

It is a great institution doing a great work, and it belongs to the taxpayers of the state. It is their institution for their children to attend, and for them to have access to in innumerable ways. Let no one fail to be interested in it, for it is a factor with which we could not afford to dispense with, no matter what might be offered in its place.
