HAWAIIAN MUSIC ATTRACTS SOCIETY

Young Women Prefer to Dance To Its Wierd Melodies— Learn to Play Ukelele.

GRAZE HAS REACHED HERE

By MELLIFICIA—August 30.

The weird melody of Hawaiian music has won the hearts of society. Rag time for pleasure and for dancing is rapidly being consigned to the background and in its place Hawaiian melodies on Hawaiian instruments are being used. In New York especially this is the case, for there every one has gone mad over the novelty.

The ukelele is the instrument of the hour. In Chicago the young women on the bathing beaches in their gay bathing costumes sun themselves on the sands and tinkle its strains. Omaha young women have the craze as badly as all the rest. Some play the little instruments in secret, some take lessons privately, but others are willing to admit that they are interested and improving ukelele players.

The Misses Gertrude Metz, Marion Kuhn, Mildred Rhoades, Dorothy Balbach and Ruth Hamilton are among the most enthusiastic pupils. Miss Luella Allen says that the number of aspirants to proficiency on the ukelele is rapidly increasing.

Both were married in the same city on the same day by the same minister.

Do You Know That

To remove tea stains lay the fabric over a bowl and pour boiling water through it.

It is generally understood that black pearls are the most valuable; next in value come pink, then white, and lastly yellow. Pearls are steadily increasing in price; they now cost three times as much as they did ten years ago.

The Indians of South America make flour or paste from bananas, and thus the banana in that part of the world, as in Africa and the East Indies, takes the place of cereals.

It has been found that telegraph wires will last for forty years near the seashore, but in the manufacturing districts the same wires will last only ten years, and sometimes less.

Do Women Like Truth?

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Do women want a meed of flattery and compliments offered them as tribute—or do they desire the finer tribute of honest, simple and, if need be, bitter truth?

Does the feminine want even its medicine sugar-coated, or is it willing to swallow a bitter dose if that will prove curative?

On the attitude of the individual woman toward these questions depends whether she is to have true friends as she goes through life or whether she can hope for nothing better than acquaintances with women and flirtations with men.

The truth isn't always pleasant; how can it be? Life itself is far too bitter and grim a reality to make that possible. But the truth is curative. The people who tell it to you have taken the trouble to study you to look at you squarely and fairly as an individual worthy their attention and interest, and to try to figure out what is for your good and advantage.

None of us can stand off and get a perspective on ourselves. All of us have unsuspected weakness and peculiarities, and little mental twists and turns which make us repellant to some and charming to others. But, unfortunately, our weakness may make us repel those whom we most desire to attract. Then what can be more valuable than a friendship which lifts our weaknesses and where our chances of improvement?

COOKERY IS BECOME A NOBLE SCIENCE

Home Baked Nut Bread

By CONSTANCE CLARKE.

Anybody who will observe certain rules for bread-making can make bread. Bread is as particular as pastry about a light touch and no cold air; that is why one should warm the flour, warm the bowl, use a wooden spoon for mixing (not a metal spoon) and warm the towel put over the bowl when the bread is set to rise. Mix together three cups of brown flour and one cup of white flour, add a little salt and rub in four tablespoonfuls of butter or lard, four tablespoonfuls of sugar and a cup of chopped English walnuts; then add one ounce of yeast, which has been mixed with a little tepid milk (about a cup full altogether) and made into a stiff batter, beat well, let rise and then put it into well greased pans and let it rise again. Bake for about forty minutes. This will make two small loaves. Tomorrow—A New Summer Drink.

When Crow's Feet Begin to Come

Crow's feet not invariably, but generally, come from weak eyes and delay or procrastination in using spectacles. If the eyes are habitually screwed up they will soon form. To avoid this, wear plain motor goggles in a high wind, even when driving in an ordinary carriage, and blue glasses whenever the sun is strong.

Crow's feet yield sometimes oftener to massage than any other facial trouble. Take a little massage cream and rub in well in a circular manner, round and round. Do this for five minutes night and morning. If the eyelids themselves are wrinkled, the same treatment may be employed, only in a far gentler fashion.

Salt and water, or the tannin in strong tea, is often an astringent for preventing crow's feet; or bark and myrrh, to be bought from any careful druggist, but these are apt to stain the skin, unless good massage cream is subsequently rubbed in.

If the eyes suddenly blink at a light, or the eyelids start twitching convulsively, you may be sure enough that you are run down in health and overworked, or that you need spectacles. It is probably anaemia, and an iron tonic is usually the best remedy.

Sleep is also a great beautifier for the eyes. The eyes of a good sleeper will always be creamy and deep in color, and the eyelids will fold back calmly, without that nervous, rapid blinking which is irritating to watch. If the eye suddenly twitches, and an oculist pronounces glasses unnecessary, it would be advisable to go in for massage or electrical treatment. It sometimes is the precursor of a nervous breakdown or some other serious malady. A doctor should be consulted in this case, as is best, also, with any irregularity of the eyes. To tie a green ribbon around the eyes at night is excellent for resting the eyes and keeping them calm and still.

"Reading and 'riting and 'rithmetic taught to the tune of a hickory stick"

That was the way it used to be, but not any more. The use of the hickory stick has fallen into innocuous desuetude, as one of our great statesmen expressed it. School days there are, nonetheless, and for these prudent mothers prepare. The wise ones depend on KILPATRICK'S FOR FIRST AID.

On Thursday the last day of the last month of summer, a wonderful sale of wool dress goods ends and remnants at foolish prices

29 Cents Remainders left over from season's selling of perfect goods, which were priced in the piece at 50c, 75c and $1.00 per yard.

59 Cents The left-overs of popular fabrics, from our regular stock—only tail-ends, which cannot be cut from the piece. Prices would be $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and even $1.75 per yard.

79 Cents In this lot are the finest goods, just right for early fall, for skirts or dresses for the school girl. Priced previously by the yard at $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00—a few lengths were even higher.

Sale starts at 8:30 a. m. and ends at 5 p. m. if the goods will last that long. If we could have gotten these goods before YOU so that YOU could have seen the values the store wouldn't hold the crowd—NO REMNANT WILL BE CUT—NO PURCHASE EXCHANGED.

SEPTEMBER 1st

Is the time to get out your fall clothes and have them put in shape for cool weather

We suggest you do it now and be prepared. All garments are returned on hangers, in dust-proof bags; no danger of them being mussed or wrinkled. Hang them away until you need them.

Repairs and Alterations

We relime coats, overcoats and jackets, put on velvet collars and new buttons; put in new pockets and new sleeve linings; make new edges on sleeves or pants. Our prices are very reasonable and all work guaranteed first class. Phone for us to call.

Shop Talk

"What's a Bushelman?" asked someone over the phone one day after reading one of our want ads.

We explained to him that a Bushelman is an all around tailor, who can make a coat, vest or pair of trousers, or can alter them in any way. As a rule he is the best workman in the shop.

They are hard to get, and the only way we can get them is to offer a better job than they can get at the regular tailor shops.

We give them steady work the year 'round at good wages, therefore get our pick of the bunch. We have several of them all ready to relime your coat, overcoat or jacket, or make any other alterations or repairs desired.

Why not make them last another season?
