Being Miserable

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

when the Indian suffers he retires to his tent to hide the pain, of which he is rather ashamed. I like that stoic attitude. It is much more agreeable to live with than is the whining and whimpering of a hypochondriac.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

None of us is exempt from pain.
Suffering is the inevitable portion of humanity. The strong know that it makes for growth and accept it makes for growth and accept it grimly, doggedly, bravely or cheerfully, as their natures demand. Only the weak whimper and whine and force other people to help them ensufferings with a sort of grim enjoyment in their own tribulations.

No one has a right to insist the whining and whimpering of a hypochondriac.

Too many people know of no better way of getting the center of the stage which they desire than by meeting you with a moaning demand for sympathy. You give it for a while.
Your emotions are stirred and your tender heart grieves over the pain a friend is compelled to endure.

Suddenly you find yourself growing impatient. You are a little bored by the constant recital of woes. Irritation grows and finally you almost dislike the whining friend and find yourself
seeking to avoid his society.

We've Tested It In Our Home

Many a grocer who sells and has tested all the various leading brands of evaporated milk will tell you—

"This is the milk we use in our home, and we've tried them all."

On breakfast food, in coffee, for deserts, in cook ing—for any use to which you would put bottle milk or cream, there is none superior to Cottage Milk is pure, rich milk with some of the moisture removed by evaporation. Nothing is added. It's just the richest, creamiest, freshest, most delicious cows' milk obtainable.

Cottage Milk cannot be surpassed for table use or for cooking. It is the milk without that pronounced cooked taste. One can will convince you of its superiority.

For economy's sake, for purity's sake, for satisfaction's sake, try a can of Cottage Milk. Your grocer has it, and he recom-mends it. Sc and 10c a can
