While it's tough on Ray to lose his while it's tough on Ray to lose his chance to go to the majors, Omaha fans breathed a sigh of relief yesterday when the Cleveland American league club announced it had cancelled its draft on Ray Miller. The loss of Ray Miller would be a sad blow to the Rourkes. He's about the best first sacker that has played around Omaha in many a year. He stands second in the league batting, and he has the almost superhuman knack of scooping low throws out of the dwt. And while he is no tensecond man for speed, he's a mighty handy man to have on the bases and he's a good run-getter for the simple reason that he is a liways alert and any momentary miscue by catcher or reason that he is always airrt and any momentary miscue by catcher or pitcher, or any other player holding the ball, means that Miller will annex another base. And while we grant that it is hard on Ray, it's Omaha's gain, because it means Rourke will have the best first baseman in the voor again next year. loop again next year.

Eastern base ball experts have started discussions of the relative worth of Walter Johnson and Grover Cleveland Alexander. Some favor Walter, some Grover. Some say Johnson must pitch against better hitters, other demurr. Some say Johnson hasn't got the team behind him. Perhaps not, for hitting, but in the fielding line Washington has Philadelphia lashed to the mast. There aren't any McBrides, Fosters. Milans or Shanks on the Phillies. Walter's mates will cut down a lot of hits that Alexander's never would be able to touch. But Johnson pitches in one league, Alexander in another. Alexander's record, of course, is the better, but it would seem that argument over the merits of these two hurling wonders is foolish, there isn't any way to arrive at an unprejudiced decision. If you're from Nebraska Alexander is the better pitcher; if you're from Kansas it's Johnson.

St. Louis is a grand little city. They held a tennis match there the other day and the bleacherites became so enthusiastic the referee would have had to dodge pop bottles if there had been any pop bottles to throw.

And Bucking Straps

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 23—(Special.)—Tackling dummies, bucking straps, charging machines, and some of the other frivolities of elemental foot ball that have in the past consumed some of the early days of the fall practice at lowa seem in a fair way to be practically, if not entirely, discarded under the regime of Coach Jones. "Anybody can tackle a dummy," said Coach Jones. "We shall have the men tackling runners in order that they may learn the proper way to bring down a twisting and turning player carrying the ball." In the same way Jones opined that anybody could push a charging machines about the field, and that no particular about the field, and that no particular ability was necessary to hit the hole in the bucking strap.

Fractice at lowa on the second day of the season was a continuance of the driving work in signals that had been administered to the first team on the opening day of work. The eleven was chased back and forth up and down the field with Jones always at its beels and directing the efforts of the men. Considerable advance in running off plays smoothly is already apparent, and the signals are working well. Use of the signals are working the signal and the signal are working the signal and the signal are worked t

Commercial High Eleven Has Stiff Week of Practice

At the end of the first week of practice the Commercial High school eleven has the looks of one which will bring home the bacon. There has been an average of thirty-five candidates out for practice every day during the last week.

Friday afternoon at four bells and a half the Murphy Did Its, class B champions of Omaha, boarded a ratler labeled for St. Louis. President Jacobs of the City league and William Bloszies, secretary of the Omaha Amateur Base Ball association, were also in the party. The expenses of this trip and the Des Moines trip will be paid by the local association. The Murphys will play a preliminary game on Saturday afternoon to one of the amateur championship games being pulled off at St. Louis.

Hope of Illinois Grid Team Centers Around Omaha Chap

To occupy the shoes of Harold Pogue, one of the most sensational halfbacks the west ever knew, is all that Coach Bob Zuppke is asking of Leo Klein, former Omaha High school gridiron star, who is attending school at Illinois.

Klein is the only returning backfield letter man Zuppke has except Captain Macomber, who the Illinois coach will play at quarter this year. Klein subbed for Pogue last year. This year he will be the veteran of the backfield and the man upon whom most of the work will fall.

The Omaha lad only weighs 150 pounds and will be the lightest man on the team, but Zuppke believes he will be able to accomplish the task.

F. A. Wilson-Lawrenson, a world traveler of New York City, will address the first meeting of the season for the Omaha Ad club Monday noon in the south room at the Commercial club. The speaker's subject will be, "Trade in the Orient." Mr. Lawrenson comes to Omaha with his Ad club address as the sole reason for coming and the club is extending an invitation to interested persons outside the club to attend.

The Omaha Ad club is taking on new life this fall and plans are under way looking to a very active season. Among other things planned is a round table course in advertising, each phase of advertising being discussed by special speakers from the outside and by club members who are most familiar with each subject.

Coming From Stiehm Camp

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 23.—Indiana's foot ball outlook is not very bright, owing to the loss by graduation or other cause of such men as Redmon, Vosa, Whitaker, Scott, Peckinpaugh and Allen, according to Coach Ewald O. Stiehm Stiehm also complains that the schedule is "unbalanced." In addition to the usual games, winding up with the Purdue contest, November 25, the Hoosiers play Tufts at Indianapolis, October 28, and Florida at Bloomington, November 18.

The veterans expected back are: Captain F. McIntosh, fullback; A. D. Erehart, half; R. Hathaway, full; S. G. Pope, end; F. Stutsman, center, and D. Mullett, end.

New men include W. Hess, a half hack with ability to drop kick; A. Hess, a punting quarter; R. Beck, tackle; Hiatt, quarter and E. Wilkie, center.

OMAHA MAY FORM OWN AMATEUR LOOP

Suggestion Is Made that Western Amateur Association Be Organized.

LINCOLN PROMISES AID

The formation and organization of western amateur base ball association is being contemplated by officials of the Omaha and Lincoln amateur base ball associations.

teur base ball associations.

Omaha and Lincoln are a bit dissatisfied with the national association. This year there are two national organizations, one the association in which Omaha and Lincoln hold membership, the other the ceseding federation, with headquarters in Cleveland and Cincinnati, and in which Des Moines holds a franchise.

in which Des Moines holds a franchise.

As a result, both organizations lack some of the good towns in holding the national championahips. Cleveland, Cinchenati, Toledo, Chicago, Johastown, Pa., Des Moines, for instance, are in the federation, while Indianapolis, Omaha, Lincoln, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Louisville and Houston are in the association.

Lincoln Promises Aid.

J. J. Isaacson, president of the Omaha association, and O. H. Rempke, president at Lincoln, had a conference last week and discussed the advisability of organizing a western association, Rempke declared Omaha could start the ball rolling and organize just such a body be-cause Omaha is the most powerful amateur hase ball town in this part of the country. Rempke promised active support and co-operation from Lincoln.

Lincoln.

A western association could include such cities at Omaha, Lincoln, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Des Moines, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Sioux City and perhaps Sioux Falls. Denver and Colorado Springs. It would be a compact circuit and a strong one.

The western association could stage its own championship series and then have the winners play the winners of the other two associations.

Omaha amateur officials are seriously considering the matter and in-tend seeking the opinions of other cities. If the replies are favorable, organization work will probably start this fall.
