REMARKABLE WOMAN VISITS IN OMAHA

Merchant Queen of Chicago Stops for Call on Former Manager, Geo. Brandeis.

ACCOMPLISHES WONDERS

One of the most remarkable women in the world spent yesterday in Omaha.

She is Mrs. Mollie Netcher Neuberger of Chicago, sole proprietor of the big Boston store there.

She and her husband, S. Neuberger, stopped off here, en route home from California, to see George Brandeis, who, before coming to Omaha, "worked up" in the Boston store from errand boy to general merchandise manager.

Besides being the owner of the great department store employing 4,000 people, Mrs. Neuberger is distinguished for carrying a greater amount of life insurance than any other woman in the United States, her policies aggregating $2,000,000.

When Mrs. Neuberger's first husband, Charles Netcher, died, eleven years ago, she found herself sole proprietor of the business which he had founded in 1873. Since then she has shown herself probably the greatest woman business genius the world has ever seen.

Opens Eyes of Men. In these eleven years she has done things that have made the men captains of department store industry gasp with astonishment.

She has housed her business in a twenty-story structure at a cost of $12,000,000. How did she finance this? She paid for it in cash out of the profits of the business.

Just last year she tore down a sixteen-story, fireproof, steel building at State and Madison streets and erected on it a building to conform with the rest of her store.

For this site she wrote her check for $1,000,000 within twenty-four hours after she decided to buy it.

Then she astounded even Chicago for swift construction. In three months she had the new building up seventeen stories above the ground and three under ground, an integral part of the whole mammoth store building. And ten stories were already occupied.

All this she has done herself, alone and unaided, deciding all big questions and carrying through all big operations.

Nothing Worries Her. Don't picture her as a worried woman with a nervous manner. She is the very opposite. She seems to have not a care in the world. She is calm, personified. She talks slowly and smiles frequently. There isn't even a grey hair in her black locks.

(Boy, please page the man who claims women have no business ability.)

So perfectly has she organized the great business that now she spends much time traveling with her husband. While she is away she gets reports from the store daily, so that when she returns she knows exactly the status of the business. Her two sons are now at work in the store, preparing themselves for the responsibilities.

This "merchant queen," as Chicago calls her, believes in the executive ability of women and in the power of advertising.

Talents Are Versatile. "When a woman does have real business ability she has a finer ability than a man of like capacity, for her talents are more versatile and her faith is stronger," she said.

"Don't imagine you can win and keep success without the best newspaper advertising. I use many columns every day and always with results."

Some of her other business aphorisms and rules of life are these: "Keep your customers satisfied. Exchange goods freely. Customers are your biggest asset."

"Cultivate judgment. You must be able to pick the right persons for the right places."

"Don't worry over little things like the loss of a few thousand dollars in a marked-down sale. That's part of the game."

"Put your profits back in the business instead of making outside investments at high interest or the promise of get-rich-quick dividends."

"Don't take your worries home with you."

"Advertise."

George Brandeis declared that he "just couldn't do a bit of work" yesterday. He was so excited over the visit of his former "boss."

He and Mrs. Brandeis entertained Mr. and Mrs. Neuberger, who saw the sights of Omaha and the Brandeis store for the first time. They left last evening for Chicago.

Attorney Dysart Compares Lawyer and Mother-in-Law

"The lawyer's duty to his profession is twofold," said Thomas B. Dysart, in his address to the Barristers' club at the Commercial club rooms at noon. "First his duty is to eliminate from the profession the offenders against the profession. Second, to eliminate from the public mind the errors created by reason of the criticism directed against those offenders."

Mr. Dysart maintained that the lawyer the client sees is a far different character than the lawyer the public speaks of in loose ridicule.

He held that the ridicule of lawyers and the ridicule of the mother-in-law is about on a par. "The public," he said, "takes the worst case in existence and stars that as an attribute of the profession."

Lads Who Stole Auto Paroled to Their Parents

Leo Small and Gilbert Gagnon, youthful joyriders whose stolen flivver was held up by the Plattsmouth police when the lads dashed by the officers on the toll bridge, presented pitiful pleas when they appeared in juvenile court. The machine was stolen from Twenty-fifth and Burt streets in the early morning, the boys spending the Sabbath riding about the city before their dash across country. They were paroled to their parents as first offenders.

DAHLMAN ALREADY HEAD

Will someone possessed of second sight or some other divining power kindly step up and give an exposition of the "Whose What and Why" of democratic politics hereabouts?

Representatives of the Jacksonian club last night presented newspapers with a report of a meeting held earlier in the evening in the assembly hall of the City National Bank building. To Handle All Matters. The statement declares that the foregoing committeemen are active and aggressive democrats who will handle all matters connected with the practical end of the campaign.

So much for this end. Declares They Are Dead. "Why, those fellows are dead ones," Fanning declared. "They're bolters, that's all. Mayor Dahlman is chairman of the regularly constituted democratic county central committee, which has been working at 1408 Farman street for weeks. We'd gladly welcome the co-operation of these fellows, but they want to start a party all their own. They're outlaws."

"Those fellows have been dead for five years, everyone of 'em," was Butler's comment. "They've simply elected themselves and they only represent themselves."

"A self-constituted committee, that is all," declared Smith.

How to Get Rid of Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness or Head Noises.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms can be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment, which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmit (Double Strength). This will not cost you more than 75c. Take this some 6 or 8 times a day with hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. A decided improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing becomes easy, while the distressing phlegm, hoarseness and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which are often overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent of all ear troubles are said to be directly caused by catarrh, therefore, there must be many people whose hearing is restored by this simple home treatment.—Adv.
