Motorman Loses Six Brothers in The European War

John Sucha, motorman for the Omaha street railway company, was born in My, Bohemia, and came to the United States sixteen years ago. After landing in New York, he struck out for Omaha, and has been here ever since. Sucha is mighty glad that he is in Omaha, instead of in Bohemia. He is in receipt of a letter from his father, written from My. In this communication the father states that since Austria entered the European war his seven sons, all of whom lived in My, have been killed, and that the seventh is a Russian prisoner, with one leg shot off and an eye shot out. My, the birthplace of John Sucha, was a town of about 3,000, and the father writes that the only inhabitants left are the women and children, boys under 15 years of age and men over 50. He expects that the next act of conscription, looked for at any time, will take the men between 50 and 60 years of age.

A Medicine of Merit. The great sale of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all over this land is the result of genuine merit. The reason is that this good old-fashioned root and herb medicine actually helps those suffering from the ailments peculiar to women. If it did not, would not the women of America have found it out in forty years, so that few of them would buy?—Advertisement.

MISSIONARY HELPS TO FOREIGN TRADE

Wilson-Lawrenson Tells Ad Club of the Way These People Advertise America.

SHOULD BE HELPED MORE

"The best salesman for American trade in the orient is the foreign missionary," was the statement of F. A. Wilson-Lawrenson, world traveler, in his address on "Trade in the Orient" at the first meeting of the Omaha Ad Club at the Commercial club at noon. "The foreign missionary teaches the natives of the countries of the orient to use and desire the goods that American manufacturers make," said Mr. Wilson-Lawrenson. "And today we find the men of India wearing shoes and stockings, coats, shirts and hats in the place of the lone loin cloth with which he was formerly satisfied. Not only that, but he is learning a higher, better standard of living, and the American manufacturer could afford to give his support to the missionary from business reasons alone." In his short address it was impractical for the speaker to deal with conditions generally, so he centered his remarks on India and convincingly told the story of the possibilities of trade with this country and its population, four times that of the United States.

Some Are Opposed. "We are passing through a period of business and financial success," said the speaker, "a time when a majority of the business men of the country are opposed to foreign trade, with the result that many nations with one-third of the territory and possibilities have a greater foreign trade than the United States. We heard a great deal about the possibilities of trade with South America, but we can only enter South America in the face of keen competition with the other nations who have a foothold there and who, as soon as the war is over, will go a great deal farther to hold their trade than the American manufacturer will go to get it."

Mr. Wilson-Lawrenson is connected with the educational work of the Associated Ad Clubs of the World.

Omaha People Are Paying High Price For Their Potatoes

The potato harvest along the Northwestern in the northern part of Nebraska is now on and pretty well toward its height. The potato shipments from Gordon, Rushville and Hay Springs, the three leading shipping points, run twenty to twenty-five cars per day. Farmers are paid 65 cents to 70 cents per bushel, put into the cars. The freight averages 10 cents per bushel from Rushville, the point farthest west of the three, bringing the price up to 75 to 80 cents per bushel, on track in Omaha. At the present time Omaha people are paying 40 cents a peck for their potatoes, or at the rate of $1.60 per bushel.

CONSTABLES ARREST TEUTON AIR RAIDERS

Commander, as Soon as He Is Taken, Seeks to Have Wife Told He Is Safe.

CAPTURED UPON MARCH

London, Sept. 25.—The commander and twenty members of the crew of the Zeppelin, which was forced to land near an Essex coast town were arrested by the village constable as they were marching along the road in the blackness of the night, according to the latest "eye" witness account. "I am the commander of a German airship, that has just come down, and these are my crew," said the leader of the men when accosted by the constable. Then the fiercer added: "Please allow me to go to the nearest postoffice so that I may telephone someone in London. Who will let my wife know I am safe?"

Marched to Camp. The capture special constables came up and the prisoners were marched to the nearest detention camp, where it was found several of them were wounded. All the men wore life-saving waistcoats. The village constable in telling later of the coming down of the Zeppelin, said he heard the noise of the motors overhead and next saw a Zeppelin, flying seaward, 300 feet up. Then, as if the commander of the airship feared trouble on the water, he turned back and, a few minutes later, the airship landed in a farmer's yard. Two explosions, then a flare of a few seconds' duration. The airship commander marched the men to the farmer's house, but the occupants of the house were too frightened to answer.

swer the knock, so the Germans took to the road, where they encountered the constable. It is believed engine trouble forced the descent of the Zeppelin.

Gayety Girl Makes Dive from Douglas Bridge Into River

A crowd of thrill-seekers, estimated at 10,000, lined the Nebraska and Iowa banks of the Missouri river near the Douglas street bridge at 12:45 o'clock noon to see Miss Jessie Southerland, one of the Hip-Hip Hoorary Girls appearing at the Gayety theater this week, high-dive into the swirling waters of the Big Muddy below. Lower Douglas street shortly after noon became congested with people walking to the river front, and by the time Miss Southerland was ready to walk out upon the spring board, the crowd along the banks of the river, on the roofs of adjacent buildings, and atop freight cars and switch engines in the railroad yards had assumed huge proportions. Miss Southerland performed the feat promptly on scheduled time. She made the sheer dive of nearly 100 feet in splendid form, coming to surface a couple of seconds after clearing the waters. The spring board extended from the south railing, near the toll house. After making the dive, Miss Southerland swam to the shore, although a boat containing one of the other diving girls was on hand in case of a mishap.

Will the Country Go as Maine Has Gone?

Dirigo—"I Point the Way"—Is Maine's State motto, and the entire country just now is looking to see which way it points. Mr. Hughes, for one, is sure that the finger is leveled directly at him. "It looks good—I don't see how we can lose now," he exclaimed when he heard that Maine had gone Republican. While Democratic, as well as Republican leaders, profess to find in the Maine vote assurance of victory in November, they agree that a majority of the Maine Progressives have now followed Theodore Roosevelt in his return to the Republican fold. In THE LITERARY DIGEST for September 23d, the leading feature gives every angle of public thought upon the Maine election as expressed by the editorial utterances of leading newspapers on all sides and the personal comments of men in the public eye. The American public, by reading this article, will learn just what the Republican victory in Maine indicates in the opinions of those best qualified to judge. Nujol For Constipation

Science Confirms the Lore of the Indians Long before the coming of the white man, the Seneca Indians collected mineral oil from the surface of water in pits dug in the oil sands. A French missionary visited the Western Pennsylvania wilderness in 1627 and was told that the crude petroleum thus obtained was good for rheumatism and skin diseases. Used internally, the Indians declared, it killed a serpent that lived in the intestines and caused abdominal pains. Today the twentieth century physician prescribes mineral oil as the safest, most rational treatment for constipation. Nujol is the modern version of the Indian specific. It is not a laxative or a purgative. Its action is to soften the intestinal contents and so make natural movements easy. All druggists carry Nujol which is manufactured only by the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). Avoid substitutes. Write today for booklet "The Rational Treatment of Constipation."
