Society Prepares For Big Mask Ball

As the finale to the most wonderful Ak-Sar-Ben celebration that Omaha has ever seen, comes the grand masque ball at the Den on Saturday night ball at the Den on Saturday night at 8.

Prior to this year there has only been one Ak-Sar-Ben ball (coronation), but each year for the past five or six years the attendance at this function has been so great that it more than overflowed the Den and kept many who so desired from seeing this wonderful spectacle.

The board of governors decided many months ago that in 1916 celebration they would lay aside two nights for the ball, the second night to be a grand masque affair, in which every one might participate, of course reserving the coronation ball for the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben.

WOMEN WILL JUDGE PIGS AT SWINE SHOW

Cute Little Porklets to Be Adorned with Ribbons if They Win Women's Favor.

HUGE CROWDS AT EXHIBIT

The National Swine show at the horse barns on the South Side was hronged with the largest crowd of the week to date, hundreds of out-oftown visitors being on hand when the doors to the huge live stock pavilion were thrown open early in the

There was something doing every minute of the day. The spectators' stands about the show rings, where judging of the different breeds was going on all day, were packed with breeders from every swine raising community of note in the United States, while each particular group of pure bloods in the thousand or so pens had its enthusiastic quota of admirers.

Omaha Leads Them All. Nationally known breeders, officers of the National Swine Growers' association and particularly all of the leading record associations, are agreed that the Omaha fall classic stands far and away above any porcine stock exposition ever held in the western hemisphere. Judging in all classes of the prin-cipal show blood lines will have been ripal show blood lines will have been finished soon. The special classes are to be judged Friday and Saturday. There is to be a parade of all the prize-winners thus lar, including the grand champions of show breeds, Friday.

Women to Judge. One of the features of Friday's program will be the "judging" of the little pigs at the show. These young porkers, ranging in ages from a week to five weeks, are in the litters of twenty odd sows entered in the different classes.

The pigs will be "judged" by a committee of women, to be appointed by the swine show officials; the squeal-ers are to be given the once over, not on points as to their chances of fuon points as to their chances of fu-ture greatness in hogdom, but on "beauty"—if a pig can be said to be beautiful. The committee of women will choose the "cutest" piggies and tie dainty, perfumed pink ribbons on them. Some of the visiting hogmen were remarking that they'd like to be pigs for a day or so Great White Father William "Billy" McCune, Omaha's first friend of the Indian, states that an additional delegation of 150 Indians arrived Wednesday, making a total of about 450 Indians here for the parade. These visitors invited themselves, but they were taken to Fort Omaha and provided for with the other Indians who arrived earlier. It seems that the second delegation of Indians understood that a general invitation had been extended to the tribe. One of the Indians is 93 years of age.

Cash Mental Agony Multitudinous troubles are trailing Fred Hunt, veteran of the Spanish-American war, magazine agent, fisherman, furrier and house boat dweller, according to his suit filed in district court against the American Smelting and Refining company asking $5,000 damages. Hunt alleges that he lost a leg in the Spanish-American war and was forced to give up his work as a furrier to become an agent for magazine subscriptions. He built a canvascovered houseboat on the Missouri at the foot of Douglas street and existed by fishing in the muddy stream. The climax of his troubles came, he says, when six employes of the smelter pounced upon his pile of drift wood at the houseboat, removed it and dragged him 150 feet to the offices of the company, thence heading him for the police station in the Black Maria. Hunt complains that he was held in the city jail without cause and that he has been compelled to suffer physical and mental agony.
