Sales made during the sarity part of the day were, however, about steady. There was considerable unevanious to the trade, goine stuff looking, if anything, stronger, while in apolts a weaker tendency was notedy. A wtring of weighty Colorado lambs touched $15.0, while other stuff landed around $5.96213,00. The best of the offerings were heavy, and on this account it was not expected that the top would be as high an yesterday's. Feeder buyers seemed uncertain as to what their course should be and fittle actual business was done sarly in the day.

Hughes Has Entered Into No Understandings, but Will Maintain American Rights.

'MAN OF PEACE," HE AVERS

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 12 .-Charles E. Hughes, in his twelve-hour campaign tour through West Virginia, yesterday outlined before audiences his policy toward the maintenance of American rights, declared that in stating his stand he had-"no agreement with anybody," and referred to the United States as being "before the world, a great neutral nation to vindicate the integrity of international law, and the rights of neutrals." To an audience at Parkersburg, Mr. Hughes said:

"I stand for the development c the American nation, according to the genius of its institutions; for the honor of our country in the protection of American citizens, and, with respect to every American right on land and sea, for its firm enforce-

"We are before the world, a great neutral nation, to vindicate the integ-tity of international law, the rights of neturals, and I stand unflinchingly for the maintenance of the rights of American citizens with respect to life, property and commerce."

In repeating these statements here conight the nominee coupled them with a satement made earlier in the day before an audience at Parkers-

"I have no understandings, no agreements, no intrigues with anybody, he said. "But I stand for the inter ests of the United States and the pro-tection of American lives, American property and American commerce

Hearer Puts Question.

A man in the Hunfington audience shouted to Mr. Hughes: "What about the Virginia debt case?"

"The Virginia debt, sit, is a matter," replied Mr. Hughes quickly, "to which the supreme court of the United States gave its best consideration, a decision, which you and everybody decision which you and everybody else ought to respect."

A roar of applause greeted this statement.

"We are dealing with the record of the present administration." Mr. Hughes said. "When that administration's record is examined, its detenders seem to protest as though it were a subject which should not be critically analyzed. We cannot make progress in that way.

A Man of Peace. statement.

"I desice to consider some of the actions which have been taken in order that we may make a fair estimate. The other day it was said that the alternative of the present policy of the administration was war, that any one who urdertook to criticize that action must necessarily favor war. I am a man of peace, and it is because I desire to see American peace safeguarded that I insist upon a firm and unflinching maintenance of American lights and such policies as will deserve and hold the esteem of the entire world.

"The policy of a sound enforcement of known rights is not a policy of war. It is a policy of security, of self-respect. When this pation forgets the dignity of its own citizenship. "I desire to consider some of the gets the dignity of its own citizenship, and the rights of its own citizens, it will enter upon a period of decadence, will invite insults, and will surely end in overwhelming disaster. Must Be Done.

"No party can stand before the American people and say that it will not maintain American rights, and I propose that this shall not simply be said, but that it shall be done. "During the last three years and a half we have had ample opportunity to estimate words and actions. The executive, by his unofficial spokesman, sent word to the man whom he refused to recognize as at the head of the government of Mexico, not Omaha, Oct. 12.—Prairie Hay—Choice upland. 810.000 10.60: No. 1, 810.00 1.00: No. 2, 81.000 1.00: No. 2, else. It was an indefensible act of war. For a while the executive in his sound discretion could recognize or refuse to recognize Huerta as he pleased, according to his judgment of the stability of that government, and the stability of that government, and its ability to perform its duties. Under international law he had no authority to engage in a personal war upon the man who happened to be at the head of the only government Mexico knew."

Mr. Hughes reviewed American relations with Mexico since Huerta's time. The nominee declared that the administration's policy had been one of intermittent war.

time. The nominee declared that the administration's policy had been one of intermittent war.

"When we summoned the entire National Guard to our border what condition was that, a condition of peace or a condition of war?" he asked. "The judge advocate of the army has given his opinion that it was a condition of war. Now, I am not going into a recital of the seconds, but I merely say this: That you might be willing to see anarchy; you might be willing to give over our citizens and their property to the ravages of military robbers; you might be willing to see spasmodic and ineffectual intervention; you may be able to do all that, but do not say that your policy is a policy of peace, when it has been a policy of intermittent peace without honor, and intermittent war without honor.
