Russian Dancers Get Much Notice; Tuesday Morning Musical Attraction

The Pavley-Oukrainsky ballet of Russian dancers, which will be presented at the Brandeis theater the evening of November 2 by the Tuesday Morning Musical club, is being accorded the most enthusiastic reception wherever it appears and critics have none but the highest praise for the beauty and grace of the dancing of Pavley and Oukrainsky and their assistants.

Andreas Pavley, born in India of Dutch and Russian parents, studied with many of the greatest ballet-masters of Europe, where he instantly won recognition as a rarely gifted exponent of poetic and classic dancing.

His first tour of the United States was with Mme. Pavlowa and he was engaged to dance with her during her last German tour, the famous Bacchanale.
