

Negro Holdup Draws

Long Sentence in Pen
William Owens, a negro, who was captured by Policeman Ole Knutson on the night of October 11 shortly after he had held up Nels Knutson, the former's brother, and at the time of his arrest was in the act of relieving another victim of his valuables, drew a from three to fifteen-year sentence in the penitentiary in Judge Sear's court.

Owens pleaded guilty to the holdup charge. When the policeman had marched Owens into the police station at the point of a revolver on the night of the holdup, Owens "teased up" to six other "stickups" in the few days previous to that time. Ever since his arrest Owens has been lamenting the fact that he's the "unluckiest niggah in the world."

Suspended Fine on Two
For Talking Too Loudly
Elmer Henley and Mary Todd, Sixteenth and Cuming streets, both colored, were arraigned before the police magistrate charged with fighting. The weapons for the duel were the English language. The blows came so fast and furious that the linguistic combatants awakened the neighbors, who in turn aroused the police. Both were fined $25 and costs, which was later suspended on promise of less oratory.
