Heart Failure, Not Broken Neck, Causes His Death

Ansley, Neb., Nov. 2.—To the Editor of The Bee: It having been reported locally and by some enterprising reporter to the effect that the death of William Gretz on the Ansley foot ball field was due from rough handling, which resulted in his neck being broken, I take this means as a spectator and attendant physician to say that the above report is not only incorrect, but unfair to the game and especially to the Ansley players.

The young man had hardly started with the ball when tackled. He fell, not backward, as reported, but forward on his side. He started to get up, but turned about and lay down as if short of breath. I was at first called, then told he was all right; in fact, he said so himself. However, I walked out where he lay. When I reached him I noticed his difficult breathing, and at once felt for his pulse, but found none in the wrist. I then listened with the stethoscope for the heart beats, but found the heart had stopped. He breathed irregularly for several minutes, but all efforts to revive him were in vain.

After we decided there were no hopes for him, we made a thorough physical examination, but found no signs of fractured vertebra or other marks of violence. We found quite a marked enlargement of the thyroid gland, or a goiter; also some swelling around his ankles. I therefore feel that I am correct in saying the death was a result of over-exertion because he had a weak heart, which is very often attendant with goiter. In this opinion I am sustained by Drs. Young and Higgins and also Chiropractor C. R. Woolley, all of whom assisted in trying to save the young man's life and made a thorough physical examination.

While it is very regrettable that he should have passed beyond while taking part in a friendly game it is no more than often happens under existing conditions while in any scuffle, wrestle or other exertions. In view of these known facts it is very manifestly unfair to term it a foot ball fatality, but should be called a case of heart failure while indulging in a game of foot ball. Very sincerely, C. L. HOUSEL, M. D.

Woman in Prison Taken to Milford For Birth of Child

Lincoln, Nov. 2.—(Special Telegram.)—Mrs. Gertrude Schaub, brought to the penitentiary from Omaha seven months ago to serve a term for issuing checks with no funds in the bank, gave birth to a daughter at the Milford Industrial home Monday, where she had been taken, that the child would not be born within prison walls. The mother will be returned to the penitentiary in a few days and the child will be kept at the home until a place can be found for it.

Princeton Alumni 3 to 1 for Hughes

New York, Nov. 2.—(Special.)—For Hughes, 2,098; for Wilson, 651. This is the result of a non-partisan poll of Princeton alumni taken by a committee of graduates from that university under the auspices of the Hughes National College League. The poll reveals that 492 Princeton alumni who voted for Wilson in 1912 are going to vote for Hughes this year; whereas, fifty-seven is the total Taft and Roosevelt vote which is going to Wilson. Equally significant is the fact that 360 men who voted for Roosevelt in 1912 are going to vote for Hughes and only thirty-seven for Wilson. In other words, over 90 per cent of the progressive vote is going to Hughes. Of the 2,098 men for Hughes, 492 voted for Wilson in 1912; 360 for Roosevelt, 890 for Taft and 356 did not vote. Of the 651 ballots cast for Wilson, 473 were by men who voted for him in 1912, thirty-seven by men who voted for Roosevelt, twenty by men who voted for Taft and 121 by men who did not vote. In 1912 three Princeton graduates voted the prohibition ticket and two the socialist.

RAILROAD MEN GET WISE TO FLIMFLAM

Workers Are Coming to Support Hughes as Discover Deception Practiced.

WHAT THIS LAWYER SAYS

New York, Nov. 2.—(Special Telegram.)—Something is going wrong with the program of the Big Four railroad brotherhoods to deliver the votes of all railroad workers to Wilson. Governor Hughes has a labor record, too, and it is winning the support of wage earners on the railroads, even the railway trainmen, despite the frantic attempt of the presumptive beneficiaries of the Adamson act to hold them in line for the president. The National Hughes alliance today pointed to a flood of enrollments from railroad men as proof of the declaration that railroad men are rallying to the support of Governor Hughes. Among a batch of signed enrollment cards received were those of five employees of the Erie railroad, of a railroad conductor of the Boston & Albany living at Pittsfield, Mass.; of a Pennsylvania railroad brakeman living at Philadelphia, Pa., and of a fireman of the Jersey Central at Bayonne, N. J., who, by the way, recorded the fact that he voted for Wilson in 1912. A brakeman of the Jersey Central signed from Bayonne; from Jersey City came the coupon of an assistant foreman of a section gang on the Pennsylvania railroad. A Pennsylvania railroad clerk at Rahway signed and a freight clerk of the Baltimore & Ohio sent a card from Elizabeth. A claim clerk of the Lackawanna railroad signed, an Eric man enrolled from Paterson, a draughtsman who voted for Wilson last time enrolled from Newark and a station agent of the Jersey Central at Barnegat signed. This batch of cards happened to be largely from New Jersey, but the records of the alliance show that the movement toward Hughes among railroad men as shown by these cards is just as true of other states.

Brotherhoods' Counsel Speaks

In a statement made public here today, Miles M. Dawson, a member of the advisory council of the American Association for Labor Legislation, praises Governor Hughes and shows how President Wilson tricked the railroad brotherhoods by the so-called Adamson eight-hour law. Mr. Dawson is well qualified to speak on the subject, for he was counsel for the brotherhoods at Washington during the agitation that preceded the enactment of the Adamson law and was present at the hearings before the senate committee on interstate commerce when the bill was under consideration. Mr. Dawson has long been associated with the brotherhoods and was a witness for them in several arbitrations. "The foremost trait of Charles E. Hughes is unwavering devotion to duty," says Mr. Dawson. "That explains his character and it is his career. It explains, for instance, why he is so slow to accept new responsibilities; he expects to fulfill them."

"At Albany, while he was governor, was the 'open door.' He received in the big room, before all who gathered there, all comers on public business, friends or foes, rich or poor, powerful or friendless, and he listened or observed. There were no private conferences, no visitors' upon public business except in public. The 'back stairs' both literally and figuratively disappeared. He welcomed open criticism of proposed legislation; the sharper the better. Those mistakes could be remedied, or if too late for that the faulty bill could be vetoed. This legislation was brought to such perfection that little of it failed of its full purpose. "Devotion to duty also explains the things which Hughes did for workingmen, more legislation for their real benefit than this state has ever seen, every line of it thoroughly wrought out after deliberation and submission to criticism. "Charles E. Hughes was my fellow member on the Social Reform club of this city twenty years ago, a club which supported labor's cause constantly and consistently, and in which the movement for workmen's compensation in this country originated. It was so identified with Woodrow Wilson as a reformer, grossly insulting organized labor, as of late he insults classes of citizens, whom he thinks he can with impunity, and possibly with political advantage. About the "Eight Hours." "So, also, regarding the eight-hour controversy. The railway brotherhoods demanded an eight-hour day, with time and a half for overtime, and they refused to arbitrate because no offer was made to arbitrate this plain issue, and because a long list of counter claims regarding things long ago settled by agreements, compromises or arbitrations was set up. "Had a proposal been made by the railroad managers for eight hours at ten hours' pay, leaving out the time and a half for overtime the brotherhoods would have rejected it and struck rather than stood for it. The brotherhood leaders instantly accepted this very proposal when made by the president, though they would have rejected it had it been made by the managers. Had they not the railroad managers would have accepted. The brotherhoods would have been universally condemned as to make a strike hopeless. The brotherhoods have, as yet, nothing but the prospect of increased wages, for the eight-hour day they must again give battle. Every item on Wilson's legislative program is intended to be put through in the short session in which the brotherhoods expect to fight."

SPRINGFIELD HAS POLITICAL NIGHT

Hughes Club Entertains Whole Town in Honor of Kennedy and Baker.

JEFFERIS MAKES ADDRESS

Springfield, Neb., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—After a busy morning spent in Lincoln visiting the freight houses and large business concerns where numerous voters are employed, John L. Kennedy, republican candidate for United States senator, carried his campaign into Sarpy county Wednesday and closed the day by speaking before an audience of about 600 men and women in the tabernacle at a barbecue held here tonight under the auspices of the Springfield Hughes club.

Ben S. Baker, republican candidate for congress from the Second district, joined Mr. Kennedy at Gretna, and A. W. Jeffers of Omaha came here early this evening and all had a part in the speech making. W. G. Kick of Springfield, republican candidate for county superintendent, also spoke. Clarence Keyes, republican committeeman, presided.

Whole Town at Spread

Before the speaking all Springfield turned out to partake of a supper of cheese and "hot dog" sandwiches and doughnuts and coffee, provided by the Hughes club under the direction of Frank Comie, president and Roy Harberg, secretary. Miss Eula Bates was in charge of the tables and George Bates was master chef de cuisine.

On the platform sat H. P. Shumway, candidate for lieutenant governor; E. B. Nickerson, candidate for county attorney; Charles Martin, candidate for county treasurer; Charles Hutter, candidate for sheriff; Fred Iske, candidate for representative; Ernest Ruff, candidate for county clerk; Fred Ball, J. M. Elwell and W. H. Davidson. A large number of voters gathered here from all over the county and the meeting was the best that has been held here during the campaign.

Asks Hughes' Election

Mr. Kennedy's speech dealt largely with patriotic questions and the large moral questions in the campaign. He pleaded for the preservation of the American idealism which in McKinley's time made the United States a world power, honored and respected abroad and loved and revered at home. To accomplish this he asked for the election of Charles E. Hughes as president and Ben S. Baker as congressman and himself as United States senator. This proposal was met with a wild burst of applause and cheering. Mr. Baker talked at length on the tariff and the needs of the country after the war. His speech was good natured and well received.

As to the War Argument

A. W. Jeffers said in part, "We are told that Wilson kept us out of war. But I say that he came very nearly getting us into war with Germany. So near did he come that our respected democratic citizen, William Jennings Bryan, resigned from the cabinet rather than be a party to a transaction of the president's which would have plunged this nation into war with Germany. After Mr. Bryan resigned the policy of the Wilson administration was changed and the note to the Berlin government altered. If we are to thank any one for keeping us out of war let us thank William Jennings Bryan and Kaiser Wilhelm, but for whom we would have been thrown into war by President Wilson."

Democrats Change Over

The spirit of "America first and only" which prevailed here tonight, caused many who had been noncommittal to announce themselves for Hughes for president. Many local democrats assured Mr. Kennedy of their intention to vote for him because of his fearlessness in taking a stand on moral questions, and his clean and wholesome manner of campaigning.
