STEWART HAS BOX OF TRICKS HIDDEN

Cornhusker Mentor Covers Up and Hides Every Single Play of Attack.

SAVING UP FOR THE DAMES

By FRED S. HUNTER.

"It'll be time for the flowers, boys, when the Cornhuskers tangle with Notre Dame," groaned about 90 per cent of the 7,000 spectators when hostilities between Nebraska and Ames were concluded Saturday with Nebraska on the long end of the close 3-to-0 count.

Those Cornhuskers, who for the last five years have humbled the pride of the mightiest and who have been regarded by many Nebraska enthusiasts as invincible, looked woefully and pitifully weak Saturday. They cinched the Missouri Valley championship, but that was expected. But they didn't show any foot ball that would tempt a man to predict a victory over Notre Dame.

But here and there in the stands around Nebraska field sat a real student of foot ball who looked farther than the surface in watching the Cornhusker play, who studied the methods and executions of Stewart's charges and who sized each play up for himself after the game. And those chaps didn't send out any hurry calls for the undertaker.

Watchful Waiting.

"Doc Stewart is a foxy coach. He proved that to us just a few weeks ago. The Cornhuskers played the same kind of foot ball against the Kansas Aggies that they played against Ames Saturday. The offensive was puny. A week later against the Oregon Aggies, a much stronger team, the Cornhusker offensive was a powerful affair. It ripped the Oregon machine to pieces the full sixty minutes of play. That was Stewart's work.

Last week during practice for the Ames game Stewart only put his warriors through one scrimmage and that scrimmage was practically entirely devoted to working up a defense for the Ames play. The scrubs carried the ball, not the varsity. Why was that? In the first place a number of the Huskers were hurt in the Nebraska-Wesleyan game. And in the second place Stewart didn't intend to show anything in the Iowa Aggie game.

Fools the Scouts.

Assistant Coach Rockne of Notre Dame saw the game Saturday. So did Coach Olgert of Iowa. And if they got any kind of a line on the Cornhuskers they're wonders. The Cornhuskers did not open up once Saturday. They played straight foot ball except for several unsuccessful attempts to forward pass and every pass was made from straight formation. No shifts were tried. No tricks were tried. Only half a dozen end runs were tried. Ted Riddell, an exceptionally fast man who can be counted upon to skirt the wings for good gains, was only given the ball a couple of times. Dobson, who has shown ability to receive forward passes, was only called upon on one pass and he captured that one for a good gain. He is also a good line plunger, but wasn't used at all. Stewart was holding back in that Ames game. Perhaps he didn't intend it to be quite as close, but we have a hunch he is satisfied.

When Stiehm Did It.

Perhaps you remember two years ago when the much-heralded Michigan Aggies invaded Nebraska. The odds were 2 1/2 and 3 to 1 on the Michigan crew and every Nebraska conceded the defeat. But what happened? The Aggies were literally overwhelmed.

Jumbo Stiehm covered upon the Aggies that time. Covering up is an old trick of Stewart's. He's done it before at other places. And he's more skillful at it than even Jumbo Stiehm. By their victory Saturday, the Cornhuskers put their seventh consecutive Missouri Valley conference title on ice. Kansas alone remains to dispute that title and Ames has beaten Kansas so it is believed the Cornhuskers will win without a great deal of trouble.

Three Surprises.

Three surprises marked the play of western teams Saturday. The defeat

CARPENTIER WANTS TO BOX Darcy.

GEORGES CARPENTIER.

Georges Carpentier, member of the French Flying corps, still wants to fight. Even his part in the war hasn't taken it out of his blood. Carpentier has written a letter to Les Darcy, the Australian, who is now in this country, in which he takes it for granted Darcy soon will be on the firing line, and says that after the war, "if we are both alive," he would like to box him and will concede whatever weight Darcy might make if he becomes a heavyweight.

of Minnesota at the hands of Illinois was the most startling. Minnesota was a heavy favorite in the conference, while Zuppke's eleven was thought to be weak. It was another case of where a coach was covering up. Zuppke had taught the Illinois a wonderful forward passing attack and it wasn't expected as Zuppke's men displayed it for the first time against the Gophers. He completely out-guessed the crafty Williams.

More Hope for Nebraska.

The victory of the Army over Notre Dame was also a surprise. The Hoosiers were the favorites. But Olyphant and Vidal, two western products, proved to be too much. The success of Vidal against Notre Dame is rather pleasing news to Nebraska supporters. Vidal will be remembered

COURSING MEET COMES TO CLOSE

Clair Dogs, Owned by Reagon and Woodworth, Take Merchants Hotel Stake.

ROCKWELL BEAT HIGH LIFE

Reagon and Woodworth of Utica, Neb., captured the Merchants Hotel stake and the Chris Lyck cup in the final day of the coursing meet at the Douglas County Fair grounds, when the two Clair dogs, Dick Clair and Babe Clair, ran true to form, and won both ends of the semi-final round in this state event.

Both dogs went through all the rounds easily. With Jerry, owned by Virgin and Shark, won the special stake by winning in the final round from Muddy Roads, 17 to 6. This race was a long one, as the score indicates. The jack was a frisky animal and he gave the hounds a merry chase, but was eventually killed when he tried to escape by leaping over the canvas. That he had not been trained for the escape was evident, as he had several opportunities to get away, but did not try for the escape.

Two match races were also held. Honey Moon won a match race from Gold Top by a score of 5 to 2. Honey Moon is another Virgin and Shark dog. Grace Rockwell, owned by W. B. Flack of Grand Island, defeated High Life in the other match race, 6 to 5. A dispute arose over this race, the owner of High Life disagreeing with Judge Ray Page's decision. Grace Rockwell went into the race a 3 to 1 favorite in the betting ring and takers of the short end joined with the owner in the dispute. A lot of argument raged for several minutes.

The betting ring was a busy place, with heavy odds being placed on most of the races. On a few races the wise boys, who generally gave the odds, took the short end and on dogs that had been beaten every day before against dogs that had won everything before, and returned winner. There is a suspicion that it is possible to "whisper to a dog" just as it is to just as it is to a horse.

Occasionally the betting lagged and a crap game and pitching dollars to a line amused those of sporting inclinations.

Bluffs Midgits Defeated.

The Postentines won from the Council Bluffs Midgits, 80 to 1. The Postentines interference was too much for the boys across the river. Tom Eivins was far the star of the game, crossing the Midgits line for four touchdowns.

Bancroft High Loses To West Point Team

West Point, Neb., Nov. 5.—(Special.)—The local foot ball team defeated Bancroft high yesterday in the hardest fought game of the season by a score of 17 to 15.

Features of the game were the accurate goal kicking and line plunging of Captain Howarth, left half for the locals, and the end running and defensive work of Left Half Cates for the visitors. During the game Voght of Bancroft fell and sustained a broken ankle, and Lloyd Francis, also of Bancroft, had his nose broken in two places. Lineup: WEST POINT. Bancroft. Bank

BOWLING SCORES IN OMAHA ARE BETTER

Local Pin Tumblers Begin to Show Signs of Real Form as Season Progresses.

GET READY FOR ST. LOUIS

Bowling scores of last week were quite an improvement over those of previous weeks, showing that Omaha sharks are commencing to realize that they have been hopelessly out of form and in no condition to enter the big Middlewest tournament, which starts in St. Louis this month. They are still a little wild and lots of practice is still needed if they expect to compete successfully against the teams from other cities.

The season's prize fund will be larger than ever, due to the large entry list. It is expected St. Louis will enter 100 teams and that Chicago will be there with twenty teams. Peoria, fifteen, and Omaha, Kansas City, Sioux City, St. Paul and Des Moines will have their usual four to eight teams, but the real surprise is the fact that smaller cities, which formerly entered only one team each, sent in entries for two or three teams. There are several of these. Mason City, Ia., has entered three; Dubuque, two; Burlington, never represented before, two; St. Joseph, three; Cedar Rapids and Davenport, Ia., two teams each. Teams have been entered from Taylorville, Ill., and Doe Run, Mo. Several towns, such as these, which have never entered before, are lining up this season with one or two teams each.

A few Omaha teams have already announced definitely their entrance in the big meet. The Brandeis, Storz, Metz and All-Stars will make the trip, and the Oma, Jetter's Old Age and Luxus teams are considered practically certain. The Home Restaurants of the Booster league also contemplate taking the voyage.

The annual meeting will be held Sunday, November 19. This meeting will be especially interesting on account of the keen competition between three cities for next season's event. Des Moines, Kansas City and Peoria are already playing politics and endeavoring to line up delegates from other cities.

Tourney at Lincoln.

Omaha teams will have an opportunity for tournament practice at Lincoln next Saturday if they enter the big handicap tournament which is being held this week. Lincoln has entered twenty teams and teams will enter from Wahoo, Omaha, Fremont, Grand Island and Columbus. The entry fee is $1 per man in each event, and all will be paid out in prize money. About four teams will enter from here. Saturday has been set aside for Omaha teams, and two more are needed to fill the reserved spaces. This will be an excellent opportunity for Omaha teams to get in condition for the big St. Louis fray.

South Dakota Holds The Michigan Aggies To an Even Score

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 5.—For the first time in the history of the school, South Dakota university held the Michigan Aggies to a 3-to-3 score at Vermilion today. South Dakota was the aggressor throughout the contest, keeping the ball for the greater part of the time in the Aggies' territory. The visitors fought like real Wolverines, but were unable to score until three minutes before the final whistle.

Coach Walker of Norfolk telephoned The Bee last evening that he was intent on a game for Friday or Saturday of next week and would be open to a proposition with any high school team of ability in the state. At the last minute Gothenberg for unexplained reason, he says, backed out of a contract to play.
