Yellowstone Park Scenograph for the Visiting Teachers

You can see Yellowstone park on the third floor of the Brandeis stores any day this week between 10:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. A little theater has been arranged with seats for quite an audience and a talking machine to provide music. The "scenograph" shows the upper geyser basin of the park where over fifty geysers are shown. These spots at intervals varying from one minute to fourteen days sending their streams of water up from thirty to 259 feet. On the "scenograph" you see the Old Faithful geyser in the foreground and other geysers in the background. A line of stage coaches moves along the road toward Old Faithful inn. Clouds are moving across the sky. A cloud of steam gurgles and spurts from Old Faithful geyser. Then the stream of water is shot into the air. "Old Faithful," says the lecturer, "spouts every sixty-five minutes, sending a stream of hot water two feet in diameter to a height of 150 feet." Night now descends on the scene, the lights in the hotel are lighted and the stars come out in the sky. Soon a storm comes up, accompanied by bright lightning. After a while it is drawn again and the stage coaches draw up in front of the hotel to take the sightseers through the park. The show is for the public, the visiting teachers being especially invited. The performance and lecture are given every fifteen minutes.

Another Factory Locates in Omaha

Omaha is to have a washing machine factory, two stories high and employing thirty-five to fifty people. D. D. Rullman of St. Joseph, Mo., who, with his brother, has been successfully manufacturing the Rullman washing machine in St. Joseph for twelve years, has come here to locate a new factory for the manufacture of these machines. Mr. Rullman has already moved his family here. They are now living at 1804 Lothrop street. The factory is to be located on the west side of Twentieth street where that street meets the Belt line a short distance south of Ames avenue. The Missouri Pacific Railway company has agreed to put in a spur of track to provide shipping facilities. Ground is to be broken for the new plant this week. It is to be a brick building two stories high, with 100-foot front and 120-foot depth. It is to be modern in every detail. The washing machines produced by the Rullman company are made for electric, water or hand power. The industrial committee of the Commercial club has been in conference with Mr. Rullman for some months with regard to Omaha's desirability as a location.

Pinch Constable For What Judge Did

Judge Vincent Hascall was in a hurry to catch the train that would carry him to Lincoln and the Nebraska-AMES game. So he borrowed the car of his constable, M. J. Roach, 2559 Marcy street, and hastened to catch it. Being unable to park the auto in its right position and catch the train at the same time, he caught the train. Later Roach was arrested for leaving his conveyance where it should not be parked. Monday morning Vincent Hascall heard of his deputy's predicament and appeared in court to take a plea of guilty for the offense for which his subordinate had been pinned. But the magistrate said no, and proceeded to tell Roach a number of things and then fined him $10 and costs. Deputy County Attorney Ramsey, who was sitting in the prosecutor's chair, and Judge Hascall rescued Roach from the bull pen and went his bond after he had appealed the case.

Health of Omaha is In Good Condition

Health office statistics for October showed a decided improvement over the same month of 1915, with the exception of typhoid fever cases. There were twelve typhoid cases last month, as against one during October last year. Diphtheria cases dropped from 126 to 33 and scarlet fever from sixty-four to sixteen. Smallpox was reduced from seven cases to one case. Health Commissioner Connell stated that the health of the city was never in better condition than at present.

DAYS OF THRILLS AND RED TORCHES

Groh Recalls Days When Bryanites Rented All Halls and G. O. P. Stayed Outdoors.

BRYAN STILL FIGHTING

By A. R. GROH. It is interesting to look back on presidential elections of other years and observe the changes. Take the election of twenty years ago, for instance. (Of course, this will hardly be remembered by the ladies. They were nearly all small children then, or perhaps not yet born.) It seems to me that the campaign was "lots more fun" than it is now, though that may be because I saw it with boyhood's enthusiastic eyes. You don't see any "torchlight processions" and "flambeau clubs" nowadays. They don't fire off cannon and have marching men shooting off Roman candles and carrying torches as they did in the big McKinley parade here in 1896. In that year, I see by The Bee files, Bryan and Sewall and Bryan and Wilson were the "popocratic" candidates and McKinley and Hobart made the race for the republicans. Where They Were Then. In the year 1896 Charles Evans Hughes was a practicing lawyer in New York; Woodrow Wilson was a professor of jurisprudence at Princeton; a man named Theodore Roosevelt was president of the New York City police board; Charles W. Fairbank was a lawyer in Indianapolis and Thomas R. Marshall (now vice president of the United States) was even more obscure than he is now, for his name wasn't even in "Who's Who," and it didn't get in, either, until 1912. William Jennings Bryan is the only big figure of the 1896 campaign who has survived the fight of years and is still big. The Bee of late October, 1896, foretold the great victory of McKinley. "Fight for Bryan Hopeless," "All for McKinley," said the headlines, and on the day after election one big heading proclaimed victory. It read simply, "McKinley."

Hurl Eggs. The campaign was full of roughness, as the headlines recite. "Brutal Acts of a Bryan Mob. Cigar Butts and Eggs Hurlled at J. G. Carlisle by Free Silverites at Cincinnati." "Ready for Bryan Rowdies," was the heading of an article telling of the measures taken by Chief of Police Sigwart of Omaha. "Bryan's Last Speech Made Curious Crowds Jam Halls to See the Boy Orator and Return to Watch the Great McKinley Parade." This was a heading on the day before the election. There's a wealth of unconscious humor in the first four words, isn't there? "Miles of Marching Men. Popocrats Have Hired All the Halls, so Republican Demonstration Will Take Place in the Streets," said the headlines over an account of one of those parades with flambeau, Roman candles and marching men. They fired off cannons and hammered on anvils while the parade marched. Today we have our parade in automobile advertisements rather than with flambeau and Roman candles. I wonder if the boys nowadays get the same thrill from an automobile parade that we did from a "flambeau parade" in 1896.

Judge Seeks Home For a Little Lad

Is there anyone in Omaha who wants to make a home for a well-mannered, healthy, 12-year-old American boy—a boy whom Judge Leslie of the juvenile court has taken such a liking to that he says he would take him into his own if he didn't have children of his own? Alvin Bushnell is the lad's name. His mother is dead and his father is well, his father is in a distant part of the country and has relinquished all rights to his son. Judge Leslie had planned to send young Bushnell to Lincoln and have the state authorities there seek a home for him. Alvin isn't an incorrigible and so can't be sent to the state industrial home. The juvenile court judge has decided to seek a home for the boy in Omaha and is trying his best to find out if there isn't some family in this city that would take Alvin, at least for a few months.

China Scoffs at Christian Europe

"War-mad Europe's challenge to Christianity has thwarted China's Christian progress," Miss Ruth Paxton told her hearers Sunday at the young Women's Christian association vesper service. Miss Paxton, who was association missionary at Tientsin, China, spoke on "Adequate Christian Preparedness." "Preparedness has come to mean to us a military thing, a means by which other lands and other peoples may be conquered, and all for the pomp of power. But the Christian idea of preparedness is infinitely broader than the soldier's definition. 'Tell a Chinese follower of Confucius today of all the good being done for the glory of God in Christian countries and he will politely but pointedly make reference to Europe, where Christians are killing Christians by thousands.'

POLICE BREAK UP CROOKS' SYNDICATE

One Woman and Two Men Are Trapped—Had Organized Band for Shoplifting.

TWO OTHERS STILL FREE

The activities of an organized band of shoplifters, who in the last week have stolen goods valued at more than $500 from the Brandeis, Burgess-Nash and Hayden stores, have been halted by the efforts of Detective Paul Sutton, whose work has led to the arrest and conviction of Mr. and Mrs. "Jack" McQuirk, 1720 Dodge street, and Russell Wagner of the same address. Two others, a man and a woman whose identity the police have not yet ascertained, escaped. It has been the practice of the missing woman and Mrs. McQuirk to visit the principal stores of the city and through slits cut in the sides of long, loose-fitting cloaks, steal the articles that struck their fancy. Saturday night Sutton, who had been working on the case for several days, located the outfit at 1720 Dodge street. McQuirk Boss. McQuirk is the proprietor of the establishment. Sutton phoned headquarters and Chief of Detectives Maloney, Detectives Rich and Pzanowski, together with Officer Larry Finn of the Brandeis stores and Officer O. Tagal of the Burgess-Nash stores responded. They surrounded the house and in this manner were able to get three offenders and a large quantity of the stolen property. The man and woman who escaped did so by a clever ruse. Evidently the culprits were aware of the officers' presence outside, for the two who got away were locked by the others in a room, the door of which fastened with a padlock on the outside. The police passed by this room and when they left the pair forced the barrier and escaped. Woman Faints. In police court Mr. and Mrs. McQuirk and Wagner were sentenced to ninety days in the county jail. Upon hearing the sentence pronounced Mrs. McQuirk emitted a wild shriek and fell over backward in a faint, (not faint). She was removed to the matron's department. Wagner's function as a member of the crew was to dispose of the stolen articles.

Shoots Man She Finds in House

Miss Freda Keuchenhoff, 22-year-old daughter of the proprietress of the Grand Union hotel, Twenty-sixth and L streets, South Side, shot and perhaps fatally wounded Robert Broderick, 30, whom she found prowling in the house early this morning. Broderick is in the South Side hospital, in bad shape. Police Surgeons Loay and Shanahan say he has slight chances of living. Miss Keuchenhoff said Broderick, who is a stranger to her, had no right in the house. He could not make a satisfactory explanation of his presence to the police when questioned at the hospital.

GRAIN IN STORAGE INCREASES HERE

Corn Bins Practically Empty Because of Great Demand for the Cereal.

WHEAT ALMOST TRIPLE

Though outside parties are taking large quantities of grain, the quantity in storage continues to increase rather than diminish. This holds true particularly with wheat and oats. Corn, however, is in such demand that the surplus has been reduced until the bins are practically empty. The following from the inspection report shows the quantity of each kind of grain in storage in Omaha elevators, in bushels, as compared with the corresponding date of one year ago: Wheat Now 1,525,000 Year Ago 601,000 Corn 6,000 86,000 Oats 2,088,000 647,000 Rice 207,000 25,000 Barley 25,000 30,000 Totals 3,855,000 1,402,000
