

Personal Gossip : Society Notes : Woman's Work : Household Topics

Society Notes by Mellificia

November 14, 1916.

To be a member of the courtesies committee of the Omaha Fine Arts society means to be always on the alert and ready to perform the little civilities which are the "sauce to meat," as Lady Macbeth says. Your attitude must be receptive and pleasant, that is the secret of the success of the little affairs which the organization gives from time to time. Artists and lecturers have been entertained in Omaha this fall at pleasant informal luncheons at the Fontenelle through the efforts of this well organized committee.

Now a more serious bit of work is falling to the lot of the courtesies committee. For the large art exhibit in the ball room of the Fontenelle there must be hostesses. Each member on whom the lot fell accepted gracefully, even though she knew not the day nor the hour. "We just take it for granted that we'll have to do our little share," said one.

The hostesses named for the week of exhibit are:

Sunday, 12—Mrs. W. A. Hedick.
Monday, 13—Mrs. Dick Stewart.
Tuesday, 14—Mrs. W. R. McKen.
Wednesday, 15—Mrs. Herbert Wheeler.
Thursday, 16—Mrs. William Sears Poppleton.
Friday, 17, and Saturday, 18—Mrs. A. L. Reed.
Sunday, 19, and Monday, 20—Mrs. Charles T. Koutse.

Kensington Luncheon.

Mrs. S. E. Matheson gave a pretty Kensington luncheon at her home today. The approach of the Christmas season made needlework a more pleasant recreation than bridge. Yellow chrysanthemums formed the table decorations. Covers were laid for:

Madames—
Joseph Barker,
A. E. DeWitt,
J. DeWitt,
L. M. Holliday,
George Miller,
A. N. Smith,
W. R. Overmire,
A. W. Sydney.

Birthday Surprises.

A birthday surprise was tendered Mr. P. W. Caskley last Friday evening. Cards and dancing occupied the evening. Those present were:

Madames and Messieurs—
P. W. Caskley,
C. F. Caskley,
Freight Commission,
Harry Dodge,
Dwight Pratt,
Misses—
Lillian Pope,
Mrs. Fred M. Cox.

Dundee Bridge-Luncheon Club.

Mrs. Fred M. Cox entertained the members of the Dundee Bridge-Luncheon club at her home today. The table decorations were in chrysanthemums. Mrs. R. E. Davis and Mrs. Sumner Brees were guests. Club members are:

Madames—
Anna Raymond,
Donald Ballard,
John Brink,
Bessie Nisley.

Oratory Department Luncheon.

Work and play were combined at the luncheon given to new members by the oratory department, Omaha Woman's club, today. Conventional after-dinner speeches were made as follows: Introductory remarks, the leader, Mrs. O. W. Malmstrom; address of welcome, assistant leader, Mrs. S. A. Collins; response for new members, Mrs. C. A. Lutz; talk, "The Art of Expression," Mrs. Lawrence; talk, "What Expression Means to Me," Mrs. E. S. Jewell; closing remarks by instructor, Miss Amy Woodruff.

Mrs. E. M. Syfer, club president, and Mrs. W. C. Lambert, past leader, were honor guests.

Pleasures Past.

Mrs. William Koenigsroegge entertained Monday afternoon for her house guest, Mrs. Jerry Ryan of Davenport, Ia., an old school friend. Other informal affairs are scheduled for Mrs. Ryan's stay.

Miss Sophia Weinstein entertained fifty guests at her home Sunday evening in honor of her cousin, Miss Sarah Rubin, and Miss Fannie Gollerman, both of Rock Island, Ill. The evening was spent in music and games.

Stag Party.

Miss Norma Bertram was hostess at a stag party Thursday evening. The evening was spent in games and music, after which an oyster supper was served. Those present were:

Misses—
Edith Zeller,
Edith Ravington,
Ruth Wright,
Marion Foley.

For Miss Mathers.

Miss Marian Mathers of Greenville, Pa., arrived this morning for a visit with Miss Mildred Todd. Miss Katherine Krug had an informal four-some for the young women at the Orpheum today. Tomorrow Miss Mildred Todd will entertain at bridge and Miss Helen Van Dusen will give a luncheon for her Friday. Other affairs are being planned by members of the younger set.

Tuesday Evening Dancing Club.

The Tuesday Evening Dancing club will give its regular party at the Hotel Fontenelle this evening from 7 to 12. The organization is becoming very popular among the members of the two dancing clubs which united to form it.

Dancing Party.

A dancing party will be given by the young people of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Thursday evening at Jacobs Memorial hall, 1716 Dodge street.

Dale Auction Bridge Club.

Mrs. E. R. Moore entertained the Dale Auction Bridge club Friday afternoon. High score was made by Mrs. J. B. Fradenberg.

Paraglo Club Dance.

The Paraglo club will give another dancing party at the Hotel Rome Thursday evening of next week.

Korona Klub.

The Korona Klub is entertaining

each Thursday and Saturday evening at dances at Druid hall. A prize masque ball will be given Thursday evening.

Adah Kensington.

Adah Kensington, Order of the Eastern Star, will meet Thursday afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. J. M. Henry. Mrs. Ed Kohansky will be assistant hostess.

Theater Parties.

Society is finding a great deal of amusement in the remarkable tricks of Thurston, the magician, who is at Boyd's this week. At the Monday evening performance Mr. and Mrs. Ward Burgess and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nash occupied one of the front boxes. Mr. and Mrs. George Meyer had a party of three.

Eight boxes were occupied by the Shriners, to whom the magician paid the compliment of appearing on the stage in red fez. He directed many of his remarks to the lodge men in the left box. One of their number acted as the "brave man" in a mysterious trick.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Frank Slovak and her daughter, Miss Marie, returned Monday morning from a three weeks' vacation trip on the Pacific coast.

Mrs. A. Nabstet of Chicago, who has been the guest of Mrs. L. M. Holliday for two weeks, expects to remain two weeks more.

Mrs. Albert Smith of Sioux City is the guest of Mrs. M. Murray.

On the Calendar.

Cerle le Langage will meet with Mrs. Ralph B. Elliott Friday afternoon to study French.

Social Gossip.

Mr. and Mrs. William Garratt have moved from the Hamilton to the Potter apartments.

Mrs. Gottlieb Storz is expected to return from Excelsior Springs Saturday.

Mrs. Flagler Buys Million-Dollar Site for New Home

New York, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Henry M. Flagler, widow of the railroad magnate, has taken title to ground on upper Fifth avenue, valued at $1,000,000. The site is in the fashionable residential district and it is understood Mrs. Flagler will build a mansion on it and make this city her home. Mrs. Flagler, who is reputed to be worth between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000, is to be married tomorrow to Judge Robert Worth Bingham of Louisville, Ky.

Beck Buys On Douglas Street, Where He Will Build

Contractor Alex Beck has bought the northwest corner of Twenty-second and Douglas streets from Chauncey J. Wilts of Fullerton. The property has been in the Wilts family for over forty years. Only a cottage occupied the ground. The price paid was some $36,000. Contractor Beck will improve the ground, it is said, with apartment houses. There are two lots with a south frontage of 278 feet.

May Decide This Week To Withdraw Pershing

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 13.—After the conference today of the Mexican-American joint commission, it was intimated that an agreement providing for the withdrawal of the American punitive expedition might be reached before the close of the week.

New Record Price for Cattle at Kansas City

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 14.—A record price for beef cattle was paid at the local stock yards today, when forty head, averaging 1,357 pounds, each sold for $11.40 per 100 pounds. The previous high price was $11.35, paid in December, 1914.

Revival of Market Basket

A speedy return to the old-fashioned market basket will effect a sharp reduction in the high cost of household commodities, according to Charles F. Southard, instructor in salesmanship in the Brooklyn night high school. Mr. Southard was born on a farm, went to the city in his youth to enter the produce business and later became an advertising man.

He has followed the newspaper articles on market conditions with interest, and believes that solution of the vexing problem of reducing the cost of table necessities lies in the rejuvenation of the market basket.

"We need more than anything else to popularize the discarded market basket or its equivalent," Mr. Southard said. "If a woman wants a package of matches costing 5 cents, she goes to the telephone, spends 5 cents for the call and causes the grocer to spend more money for a boy to take it to her door."

"Another important factor is the endless wrappings which envelop goods today. Formerly a woman stowed her purchases into a roomy basket and walked home with them. Now each article must be wrapped and bound with twine, and hence the cost to the ultimate consumer goes skyward."

"I have applied for a stand in the Washington market, and expect to get permission from the superintendent of public markets to deliver a short talk each afternoon on the value of a return to the market basket. I shall go into the butter and egg business, getting my supplies from farmers by way of the parcel post and selling with just enough profit to make the investment worth while."—New York Herald.

Cauliflower Salad.

Boil a small head of cauliflower in salted water. When cold break into small pieces. Add one-half cupful of cold boiled peas and one-half cupful of finely chopped celery. Serve on lettuce leaves with either French dressing or mayonnaise. A little grated Parmesan or American cheese may be sprinkled over the salad before the dressing is added.

Timely Fashion Hint By Raconteuse

Every woman should have a rough and ready outfit, one that should she desire to go to town in it, would serve appropriately for this occasion as well as for harder wear. A suit of dark gray cloth with short flaring skirt and three-quarter length coat is sparingly trimmed here with beaver fur.

The convertible collar and unusual belt arrangement are noteworthy. Button boots and a simple draped turban hat complete the costume.

The Age of Tolerance

By CLARA REESE.

Never mind; as he grows older he will become more tolerant toward the opinions and beliefs of his fellow men. He will learn to know that there really is a "faith of the fathers," and that it is relied upon by most excellent people. And he will find out, too, that there really is an "established church," and that there is a category of chapels, and meeting places, and houses of prayer, and of public worship, and upper rooms and sanctuaries; he will begin to note the worshiper instead of the details of creed and the manner of devotional observance, and it will largely depend upon what he finds in the devotee that will hasten or delay the tolerant spirit.

These are the days when an individual may be gauged for what he really is, and not measured by the standard of creed or tenets, unless, indeed, he is putting his own particular sect to shame, and then it usually happens that some one of contrary belief calls attention to this fact. So, there is an incidental point to consider, the making or marring of the distasteful faith by the conduct or misconduct of the individual. But just now it is the question of intolerance which is up for consideration.

Youth and the prime of life are not only vanity, but they are very often the season of a most bigoted outlook, of illiberal views, and an obstinate, unreasonable protest against any opinion or doctrine or line of ruling which is not in their code or law. And sometimes this youth speaks loudly on the street corners or in boisterous long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established and long proved meritorious customs and usage. And sometimes this youth comes to grief. But it more frequently happens that youth advances by degrees to older age and with increased years a certain wisdom is developed, a wisdom which leans toward tolerance. For instance, as an illustration, take young parents. Sometimes their policy with children is the enforcement of the strictest of domestic blue laws, or vice versa, and unrestrained indulgence. But when the next generation appears, woe betide the daughter-in-law in the pulpit, or attempts to override long-established