Mother's Campaign Elects Her Soldier Son to a County Office

Mrs. Halligan Looks After the Political Interests of Her Boy While He is On the Border.

North Platte, Neb., Nov. 18.—Although woman has not been given a vote in Nebraska, she may yet play an important part in politics. To the effort of Mrs. J. J. Halligan of this city, is largely credited the election of her son, Captain P. R. Halligan, company E, Fifth Nebraska infantry, to the position of county attorney of Lincoln county, defeating George N. Gibbs, the present county attorney.

Captain Halligan was named as the republican candidate for county attorney at the spring primaries. Shortly after, he was active in raising the North Platte company of the Fifth Nebraska regiment and was chosen captain of the company.

When Captain Halligan left North Platte for the Mexican border he gave up his chances of personal contact with the voters of the county and actively pushing his campaign.

Humbled Mothers Threaten to Spank Gang Members Unless They Behave

"Your parents are more to blame than you boys," declared Judge Leslie of the juvenile court when eighteen South Side lads, ranging in ages from 9 to 14 years, appeared before him to answer charges of breaking into freight cars in the railroad yards and stealing quantities of soap, butter and grain.

The mothers of the majority of the boys, and some of their fathers, were with them in court. Some of the mothers admitted that their sons came home with cartons of butter and soap, but denied that they knew the stuff had been stolen.

Judge Leslie sentenced all of the boys to the state industrial school at Kearney, but afterward reconsidered and said he would give them "one more chance." The judge ordered the three ringleaders of the gang to

WILL TRY MICKLE PLAN IN CHICAGO

Health Inspector Will Try to Show People How to Live on Forty Cents a Day.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—John Dill Robertson, health commissioner, who has started a high cost of living investigation with a view to showing Chicagoans how to live on 40 cents a day, is planning a "diet squad" to prove his contention that 40 cents a day is sufficient for good and wholesome food.

Dr. Robertson proposes selecting twelve persons from his department, who shall be fed for two weeks on a diet recommended by him. Weight and general conditions of the subjects are to be taken before the dieting begins and after it is ended.

The diet squad, a room at the health department will be utilized and food and a cook will be provided by the department.
