

FUND FOR FRENCH WAR ORPHANS HELP

New National Society Set on Foot in New York With Definite Purpose in View.

OUR DEBT TO FRANCE

With an organization remarkable for its completeness, considering the very short time that has elapsed since its inception, the "American Society for the Relief of French War Orphans" has opened permanent headquarters in the Equitable building, 120 Broadway, New York City.

The deeds of Lafayette and Rochambeau and their gallant soldiers are chronicled in American history and form some of the brightest pages. The debt of America to France for its generosity, which Washington declared "must inspire every citizen of the states with sentiments of the most unalterable gratitude," has never been repaid. It is possible that it never will be, but the exigencies of the terrible war that for more than two years has been devastating Europe will enable Americans, out of their prosperity and abundance, to show, in a measure, their "unalterable gratitude."

Orphans in Plenty. There are already in France more than 200,000 children made fatherless by the war and in extreme need of help. The French government, overburdened by the enormous expense of carrying on the war, is unable to make a sufficient allowance for the proper maintenance of these war orphans. Its stupendous burden will, long after the war, preclude the possibility of adequate aid to the families of dead and incapacitated soldiers, and it is hoped and confidently believed that Americans will cheerfully share the burden, by giving, each according to his means, enough to care for and educate the orphans of France and enable them to become self-supporting.

The American society will have a nationwide membership, and will cooperate with existing relief societies in the United States and in France wherever it is found possible. No effort will be made to bring French orphans to this country, or to create new agencies for their care in France. It will work in such a manner that a personal sympathetic connection will be established between the donors of funds in this country and the needy orphans of France.

Division of Membership.

Membership in the American society is divided into four classes—founders, who will pay $500 or more a year; benefactors, who will contribute $250 annually; sustaining members, who will give $100 a year; and contributing members, who will contribute less than $100 per annum. Contributions in any amount which the donors may see fit to give will be solicited from the general public. All expenses of administration and operation will be borne by contributions made by the members for that specific purpose, and one-hundred cents of every dollar donated by the public will be used for the purpose of relieving the orphans of France.

Officers and Directors.

The active officers of the society are: William D. Guthrie, president; James Stillman, vice president; J. Pierpont Morgan, vice president; Ambrose Monell, vice president; Thomas Cochran, treasurer; Reginald H. Giles, assistant treasurer; Clyde A. Pratt, general manager, and Snowden A. Fahnestock, secretary. The honorary vice presidents are: Edward Douglas White, chief justice of the United States; John Cardinal Farley, archbishop of New York; Right Rev. David H. Greer, bishop of New York; William G. Sharp, ambassador to the French republic; Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador to Great Britain; Robert Bacon, former ambassador to the French republic; Myron T. Herrick, former ambassador to the French republic; Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university; Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton university, and Dr. John H. Finley, commissioner of education of the state of New York.

The directors of the society are: George F. Baker, jr.; James M. Beck, S. Reading Bertron, Cornelius N. Bliss, jr.; James Byrne, Thomas L. Chadbourne, jr.; Thomas Cochran, R. Fulton Cutting, Charles Stewart Davison, Eugene Delano, Daniel Guggenheim, William D. Guthrie, Alexander J. Hemphill, Adrian Iselin, George Grant Mason, Charles T. Mathews, Ambrose Monell, J. Pierpont Morgan, Victor Morawetz, Dwight W. Morrow, Otis A. Mygatt, Seward Prosser, Percy A. Rockefeller, Sylvanus L. Schoonmaker, John W. Simpson, Charles Steele, James Stillman, Lewis A. Stimson, Willard D. Straight, Henry M. Tilford, Edward Tuck, Frank A. Vanderbilt, George W. Wickersham and Albert H. Wiggin.

Donations to the French war orphans fund should be sent by checks or postoffice money orders to the order of the American Society for the Relief of French War Orphans, Room 1435 and 1436, 120 Broadway, New York City.

Stewart Products Service Station's Business Booms

The Stewart Products Service station of Omaha received ten days ago a shipment of 250 phonographs. This entire lot was sold and while the factory has a large production, at this time it is behind on orders. Back of the Stewart phonograph are the same men, the same means, the same brains and the same facilities that have developed the Stewart-Warner Speedometer corporation, the largest automobile accessory business in the world. Stewart motor car accessories are found on practically every automobile.

Dodge Bros. Motor Car Gets Grand Prize at Show

Dodge Brothers have been notified that the Dodge Brothers' motor car has been awarded as a grand prize at the Panama-Pacific exposition to the prize winning exhibitor in the palace of machinery.

The selection was made by a committee of eighteen chosen by the Machinery Exhibitors' association of the palace of machinery. The committee was unanimous in its choice after an examination of all cars selling at approximately the same price.

In making its announcement the committee said: "This decision was reached only after a most careful consideration of the merits of the many cars selling at about the same price as the Dodge Brothers' motor car, as well as the financial standing and responsibility of the manufacturers themselves."

FAVORS SALARIES FOR EVANGELISTS

Church Commission Will Say Some Plain Things About Sunday's Free Will Offering Plan.

COUNCIL MEETS SOON

St. Louis, Nov. 25.—(Special.)—It is learned on unquestioned authority that the commission on evangelism of the federal council of churches will say some very plain things concerning the Rev. William A. Sunday's "free will" offering, in its report to be made to the council at its forthcoming meeting in St. Louis. More than that the commission will recommend, it is said, that all evangelists, Sunday with the others, be taken charge of by the churches themselves, according to religious bodies to which they belong, their finances regulated and supervised, and evangelists paid salaries.

The commission will tell the council, it is said, that almost all professional evangelists have united in expression of a desire that they be put on an official basis, as are ministers, and money matters be taken off their hands. The commission does not state whether Sunday has himself joined in the appeal, but it is informally stated that he has not done so. The commission will say, it is known, that some measure of harm is done by the Sunday "free will" offering plan. Public criticism of it is known to be general, and it is not mitigated by the fact that Sunday gives much of it away. It is certain that the council will adopt the recommendations of its commission.

Flaws in Management.

Other reports to the council will show unhealthy conditions in church management. There will be presented a careful survey of the whole state of Ohio. That survey will make plain, it is known, that tremendous sums of money are lost in so-called Christian work. There are places that are over-churches, and also places that are overlooked. In not a few places where large sums of money should be spent only very small sums are available, while in other places money is poured out and wasted. The council will also hear that throughout the whole United States there has been a very serious deterioration of family religion. Instead of the war making Americans more religious, as it has done in France and England, prosperity or other cause seems to have made, so the council will hear, inroads upon the church in the home and the home in the church. The council will hear that something must be done immediately. Conditions are more serious in cities of New England and the middle west, and less so in the south and on the Pacific coast.

Propositions to be put up to the council include one to get into the temperance cause in behalf of workingmen, and to take hold of the plans for the saving of human lives, especially in factories where machinery is in use. The saving of life by all possible means will, however, become a part of the tasks of American churches as it has not heretofore been, if the council takes action it is expected to take. In this line the council will hear from a commission of education in the public schools, the Gary and other plans.

It seems the council has been in constant touch, since Europe went to war, with the churches of Germany, France and Russia, and of course England. Certain things the German chancellor has said in the Reichstag have been from relations with the council, and with the churches of Germany. Plans are perfected, and will be acted upon in St. Louis, for larger work by Christian churches in America and in all European belligerent nations immediately the war ends. The St. Louis meeting is an executive one, coming every four years, and its date is December 3, continuing that week. William Jennings Bryan is to conduct public meetings, at his own expense, but in co-operation with the council, during the sittings of the council.
