Brownell Hall Tutor Says America Offers Artist Widest Opportunity

That this section of the northwest contains talent which, if developed properly, will mean much for the musical future of this region and of the whole country, is the belief of Miss Lucella Anderson, head of the violin department of Brownell Hall.

"American voices are already conceded to be the most beautiful in the world," said Miss Anderson, "and I believe that America will produce the coming violinists. Among the younger generation of violinists are to be found already such noted artists as Maud Powell, Albert Spaulding, Eddy Brown, Fossinger, Kathleen Parlow—a Canadian-American—and many others.

"No other country offers such unlimited opportunities for a career," says the Brownell Hall instructor. "Many a gifted and well-trained young student abroad is condemned to a life of comparative poverty because of lack of opportunity.

"In the United States, on the contrary, the artist has an abundance of opportunity for recognition and advancement. This is especially true in the south and west, where there has been a remarkable popular awakening in regard to the value of music as a factor in daily life.

"New York now has more and better concerts, operas, symphony orchestras, than any other city in the world. It is perhaps true that Americans are more impressed by and demand an astonishing technique rather than exquisite phrasing of a composition; but this fault will be overcome by a great spread of musical knowledge.

"In this development, which is already under way, I think the northwest will have a notable part." As Brussels correspondent of the Musical Courier during her residence abroad, Miss Anderson had many interesting experiences in meeting and talking with world-famous musicians.

MAKES CHARGE OF MALICE

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 25.—Motives of the prosecution were attacked in the criminal court yesterday in the opening statement of the defense in the trial of Prosecutor Oscar D. McDaniel, who is charged with having murdered his wife.

"No motive has been shown why he should have killed her," the attorney said to the jury, "but we will prove to you by the evidence in this case that the motive behind his prosecution is blighted and perverted ambition, and jealousy, coupled with the greed of gold that makes the palms of detectives itch."

He Shows Emotion. The accused man sat among his relatives, giving no sign of emotion, except when his attorney told in low tones of how the prosecutor had returned home after answering a decoy telephone call, to find his wife, attacked and bleeding on the floor of her bed room.

Attorney Grows Dramatic. Gabbert dramatically recited the defense's version of the incidents the night Mrs. McDaniel was murdered and concluded:

"They found him in his home bathing his wife's blood away. Before she died, this man, charged here with having murdered her, who was in a state of collapse and who, as state witnesses have testified, bent over and put a kiss upon her—the last he ever was to give her."
