

STOIC INDIAN BOY CALLED BY DEATH

"Little Chief," Brave Warrior Against Pain, Dies at St. Joseph Hospital.

CHUMS ARE PALLBEARERS

"Little Chief" is dead. The stoic charity patient, an 11-year-old Sioux Indian, whose cheerful indifference to pain for the long months that he has suffered won the admiration of the nuns, doctors and nurses at St. Joseph hospital, has gone to the happy hunting grounds. He was buried Friday morning in Gregory, S. D.

Peter Selwyn was the little chief's right name, but his sobriquet is what his chums and the hospital authorities called him. Peter was a leader of boys. Despite his lame leg (the victim of a tubercular knee) the young Indian joined with his little white friends in their pastimes. Peter steadfastly refused to believe that he was going to get better, but never complained.

No Fear of Death. Recently, when he had been brought back to the hospital from St. Francis academy to undergo another operation, "Little Chief" turned to the attendant nun and said: "Sister, I am going to die soon."

"No, chief, you are not. You are going to get better after this operation," was the reply.

"You try to encourage me," said Peter. "I don't need encouragement. I am not afraid to die."

Nuns Weep. Nurses and nuns wept when Peter died. And moist were the eyes of his six chums who acted as pallbearers. Rupert Weir, Paul Schoeppe, William Laux, Francis Krebs, Leo Coyne and Philip Weinert were boys with whom the little red-skinned lad always liked to play and they carried the white coffin that bore Peter from the hospital to the train.

Father B. Sinne officiated at a requiem mass in St. Joseph hospital's chapel before the boys carried the "Little Chief" away. All the patients who were physically able attended the services.

Open the Store Each Day With Christmas Carols

In keeping with the spirit of the season, Burgess-Nash open their store each morning with the singing of Christmas carols and anthems.

A chorus of mixed voices has been gathered together from among the employes and sing from the balcony on the main floor every morning at 8:30 o'clock.

"Christmas carols were an invention of the early church to offset the joyous license of paganism," said Louis C. Nash. "Song was an expression of rejoicing among the Romans. Hence the making of pious canticles, simple in form, so that they might be sung by learned and ignorant."

"Such is the origin of the custom, which still lingers in certain parts of England, of 'Waits' going from house to house on Christmas eve and singing carols."

G. C. Bedford, Popular Implement Man, is Dead

Grover Cleveland Bedford, popular advertising manager for the International Harvester company, died Thursday night at his residence, 5132 Dodge street. Mr. Bedford was 27 years old and is survived by his wife and infant daughter, 2 weeks old; his mother and two brothers, George C. and W. H., of Council Bluffs, and three sisters.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning from the residence to St. Cecilia's church at 10 o'clock, with interment at Holy Sepulcher cemetery.

Gets a Wallop and Then Loses His Big Bank Roll

Two white men, well-dressed, introduced themselves to W. L. Preston of Portland, Ore., in a saloon "somewhere in Omaha" Thursday night and drinks helped to foster the new friendship. Then the duet suggested a promenade. Preston agreed, walked with them under the Tenth street viaduct, got a wallop on the head and a long sleep. When he awoke, his chums and $75 were gone.

TEUTONS ROUNDING UP ROUMANIANS

Latter Are Not Expected to Make Stand Until They Reach River Buzeu.

FIGHT ON THE WEST FRONT

(Associated Press War Summary) The rounding up of Roumanian troops is being continued by the Teutonic forces. The latest statement by the German war office announces the capture of 8,000 additional prisoners, together with twenty-six guns. Apparently the Roumanians and such Russian troops as were aiding them are still on the retreat north-eastward and military commentators for the most part do not expect a stand to be made by the Roumanians before the line of the Buzeu river is reached.

This line virtually closes the neck of the province of Moldavia, running eastward from the Hungarian frontier to Galata on the lower Danube on the Bessarabian border. It is regarded as a strong defensive line and one easily susceptible of reinforcement from Russian sources.

On the Franco-Belgian front the only recent operation of note has been in the Verdun region, where the Germans yesterday claimed the capture of the summit of Hill 304, west of the Meuse. Today Paris announces that the Germans have been driven from a "section of the trenches on the eastern slopes of Hill 304," which they had occupied.

In Macedonia the Bulgarians are violently contesting the efforts of the Serbians to make further advances east of Monastir.

The French navy has lost a battleship, the 12,750-ton Suffren, which left port November 24 for L'Orient, a French naval station in Brittany, and has not since been heard from. It is considered by the French admiralty to have been lost with all on board. Its usual complement was 770 men.
