CITY PLANNERS TRACING H. C. OF L.

Map of City Showing Food Distributing Centers is Being Prepared.

CIVIC LEAGUE IS HELPING

Where are the food-distributing centers that serve Omaha's 200,000 people? Where are they with reference to the bulk of the population? How much duplication is there in serving certain territories, and how many sections of the city are there where service is hard to get? These are questions that are to be answered by means of a comprehensive map soon to be prepared and to be on exhibit in the court house December 13 to 23, in connection with other exhibits the City Planning board is to have there at the time. George T. Morton, chairman of the city planning board, told of some things this exhibit is to contain in a talk before the directors of the Civic League at the Commercial club rooms at noon.

That H. C. of L. The map of distributing centers is expected to be of great interest in connection with the live issue of the high cost of living.

Everybody knows that from four to six milk wagons of competing dairies pass his door every morning. That is duplication, and one of the items that enters into high cost. Grocers' wagons of a half dozen competing stores cover the same territory and duplicate. The City Planning board does not know whether it can do anything about all this or not, but it will at least have a map that will show where all these wagons start from.

Mr. Morton also told the Civic League about the plans for widening Twenty-fourth street and other work planned by the board.

At the next meeting of the Civic League directors the league will have under discussion the various phases of the high cost of living. Secretary Stanley Rosewater will collect what information he can in the meantime on the subject, being glad to get suggestions by mail or orally from anyone who has a phase of the subject that might be of interest.

Irene Daniels Will Have to Swear She is Not Sister's Husband's Wife

Douglas county officials are determined to clear up the Aldridge-Daniels marriage license case—a case that has been entered on the records as one of the strangest in the history of the state and resulting in legal complications which have set Omaha attorneys' tongues a-wagging.

It all started over a mistake in names, as far as officials can ascertain at this time. Alva A. Baldrige, a Lincoln, Neb., salesman, came to Omaha and took out a marriage license with the avowed intention of wedding Miss Arline Daniels, one of the prettiest of the crop of maidens at Decorah, Ia. Miss Daniels has a twin sister by the name of Irene.

"Cupid" Stubbendorff got the names entered on the marriage license records as "Alva A. Aldridge and Irene Daniels." The given names of the twin sisters sound so much alike that the mistake went unnoticed at the clerk of the county court's office and at the parsonage of Rev. J. A. Maxwell, who performed the marriage

HAPPENINGS IN THE MAGIC CITY

Civic Improvers Discuss Plans to Get New Burlington Station. TAXPAYERS LAY PLANS Civic improvers met last evening at the South High School building. The proposition of obtaining a new Burlington depot on the South Side was the principal topic of the evening. President J. L. Duff presided.

"We must extend our operations to the state legislature," Judge J. J. Breen, prime organizer and leading spokesman for the organization said. "You men would be surprised if I were to enumerate some of the things that delegations of local citizens have done by meeting with committees of the state representative body.

"If we are to obtain a sub-branch railroad station here we must bring the matter immediately before the public and introduce it in the form of a bill at the next meeting of the state legislature. The railway commissioner will undoubtedly be interested, and will officially act on request of the state body."

The need of a new depot was commented on with vigor by Vincent Vasek, well known local dry goods merchant, who is a heavy taxpayer. Mr. Vasek spoke of the need for a solid organization of taxpayers which would stand for improvements here.

President Duff and Mr. Breen reported that they had interviewed officials of the Burlington railroad in quest of action of the proposed building of a new railroad station. The officials they said, were favorable to the idea and although not promising anything definite left the impression that they would sooner or later act favorably. The president deferred appointing any committees until after

Good Teeth Will Lessen All Crime

Dr. A. O. Hunt spoke on a free dental dispensary, at the Commercial club at noon. "All the dentists of Omaha want is a chance and a place to give away their services to the children in the care of teeth," said Dr. Hunt. He declared that care of the teeth had a tendency to cut down the number of epidemics, and Miss Ruth Freeman of Chicago upheld him in this in a brief talk. She declared a big per cent of the vice in Chicago and other large cities could be avoided if the children had better care of the teeth, as the brain was affected by bad teeth and careless mouth hygiene.

Mogy Bernstein, who took part in the symposium, declared that while he was probation officer in Omaha 50 per cent of the children that came before the court were in need of dental attention.

Damage Suits Taken To the Federal Court

A number of important suits against the Rock Island Railroad company have been finally transferred from the Pottawattamie county district court to the federal court. The suit of Arthur C. Storz of Omaha asking $10,000 damages for the death of Mrs. Storz, who was killed on the Woodbury avenue crossing on the evening of June 8 last, when her sister, Mrs. Bartlett, of Omaha, was also killed, when their automobile was struck by a Rock Island passenger train, was among the number. Another was the action of Peter Larsen, asking $15,000 for the death of his wife, killed by a switch crew at the South Seventh street crossing while she was returning from the grocery carrying food intended for her husband's supper. The suits were taken from the state court by the railroad.

The Milwaukee railroad also took into the federal court the action brought by the county board and the Minden, Neola and Norwalk drainage district to enforce the assessments of the Mosquito creek drainage ditch. The railroad company filed a claim for $21,500 damages for right-of-way and other expenses connected with the establishment of the ditch and was allowed $350. The railroad appealed to the district court and the county began suit.
