Jingle!
Jingle!
Jingle!
Hurrah!
For old
Kris Kringle!
On this
Very Night
He comes
With his Dolls and Sleds and Drums.
Christmas Trees
Abloom with joy
For each
Little Girl and Boy.

Christmas
Pleasure
Seems to be Flowing out
For You
And me,
But some Keep that Spirit going
Thru' the Sunshine
Thru' the Snowing.
God bless 'em!
Polly's wish
For you is this:
A perfect round
of happiness

ASTONISHED! Well, I should say I was when I peeped into the workshop of the Deane-Little Hat Shop and saw such a bevy of young women as busy as bees. No wonder, though, for Omaha's smart set certainly appreciates that Mrs. Little's hats all have a decided style. I was charmed with a little green satin hat which had just been finished for a prominent society girl of the younger set. It was beautifully braided with taupe chenille. This shop has a wonderful display of new tailored and dress hats for immediate wear.

THE newest sport hats are of satin and come in sage, brown and the new beige shades. They are exceptionally smart.

SUCH a busy, busy week as this has been—what a joyful one, too! I felt like a little Kris Kringle buying so many pretty things for people out of town, who were asked me to shop for them. Tomorrow morning I'll have the picture in my mind of all those lovely gifts being opened—and the exclamations of delight from the happy recipients.

WHY not help revive the quaint, old Yuletide custom of placing lighted candles in the windows Christmas Eve?

CAN you believe it? Blouses straight from Fifth Avenue every week—and just the same exquisitely lovely things that all femininity adores and wears when they come from Franklin Simon's or other Fifth Avenue shops. You really must see this wonderful display of French blouses at Thompson-Belden's. Pretty, filmy chiffons and Georgettes in the new shades of gold, lilac rose and pastel blue, and the more practical, but always beautiful crepe de chine.

REALLY, a woman couldn't help but be charming in her rose-colored boudoir, with a negligee of rose silk crepe, over which falls a mantle of billowy chiffon.

LUXURIOUS! Well, I should say I thought of being able to lie cozily in bed and read without injuring your precious eyesight—and you can adjust your light at will from 1 to 48 candle-power without raising your head from the pillow with a Dim-A-Lite—sold at Burgess-Granden's for $2.50. A wonderful lamp where there are invalids or small children in the home.

I visit the shops each week and keep posted on "what's new." If you live out of town I'll be glad to shop for you. Or if you are planning to entertain I will be glad to select the flowers and favors for your party. All the stores mentioned in my column are perfectly reliable, so if merchandise is not satisfactory your money will be cheerfully refunded. I will have stores send parcels C. O. D.

I HOPE that one of my Christmas surprises tomorrow morning will be one of the new machine-type coffee percolators.

GIRLS home from boarding school should know about the dainty undergarments and tailored blouses which can be made to order at The Lingerie Shop, 509 Bee Bldg.

I NEVER saw such attractive Hungarian anoraks as those shown in one of the small shops, made by a clever little lady from New England.

FOR a New Year's gift, can you imagine anything more welcome than one of the specially done-up boxes of delicious candy of which Thompson-Belden's have a complete line?

SOMETHING unusual is going to happen at the A. T. Benson's Specialty Shop right after New Year's. This smart shop, which was opened only this season, is going to favor you by having an early clearance sale. This is especially interesting news, for the stock is so fresh.

THE afterglow of a summer evening sunset surely must have been the inspiration for a rose-tinted girlish net gown every girl should have. The pendant ribbons in a shower effect from the high girly were each finished with a tiny silver rosette. The voice of white net embroidered in filmy flower effect and the ruffled skirt was banded with silver.

YOULL love this with a white lace collar—accompanied by "Kiss Me Ula Ula." Fredric Bowers sang it at the Orpheum. Drop into Hoopes and get a copy.

FIGURED cotton crepes are used extensively for millinery.

GREAT Opportunity! After Christmas shoppers who have been favored with bank checks in place of the usual "can't use it" present will find a bonanza at the Art and Music House of A. Hoopes Co.—for they are putting on a house-clearing sale in place of involving the stock. Handsome picture frames, rare bric-a-brac and a splendid line of musical instruments at remarkably low prices.

JAPANESE padded silk robes for infants will make the dear baby so comfy these cold days.

I MAGINE it! Twenty-five different styles in party slippers—that's what I counted in the windows of Napier's Booterie the other day. Such lovely designs in gold, silver, plain satin, patent and the ever-popular beaded effects—ranging in price from $4.00 to $20.00.

ONE of the newest things for the young school girl is the Baby French Hoel. It is a low design embracing the style of the high-heeled model.

BOARDING school girls will be delighted with the assortment of school, dinner and Sunday dresses found at A. T. Benson's, 1512 Farnam.

JUNIOR waists of barred white dimity and mercerized poplin with collar, sleeve-bands and the cuffed waist line, which is so popular in color, for the girl who is no longer little, and yet not grown up.

THERE are feathered fans for the girl who will dance through the Holiday season, in lovely blues, pinks, white or a stunning black one to give that artistic touch which so enhances the beauty of an evening frock. Thompson-Belden's have beauties from $5.00 to $17.00.

DON'T forget that dainty handkerchiefs of Madeira embroidery or lovely initialed ones will be just as welcome for New Year's gifts as for Christmas.

AFTER Christmas, what? A special item of interest to shoppers will be the drop in prices on ready-to-wear garments at Lamond's, that exclusive shop in the Rose Bldg., because the new spring styles are coming in. You'll surely want to avail yourself of this special opportunity.

FOR the boarding school girl, separate wool skirts in patty checks and stylish plaids. Pick one in three? Why, of course! What girl these days would be without them?

IVE told you before and I'm going to remind you again, because I don't want you to forget or neglect going to the delightful refreshment nook in Merritt's Drug Store, Rose Bldg. Try a chocolate malted milk there this week. You'll surely say it's the best you've ever tasted. Merritt has beautiful New Year cards and special candy.

LIKE the fragrance of a flower, wafted from the new Cloth of Gold perfume.

"IM so grateful to Miss Johnston," said a sweet-faced little elderly lady to me yesterday. "She has really done wonders in relieving the pain in my feet—I thought it was rheumatism, but after she removed the callouses the pain left like magic." Miss Johnston, Comfort Shop, Rose Bldg., specializes in the care of feet.

SILKS are more popular than ever for the spring. Mustard, white and pearl grey are the prevailing shades and harmonize with any gown.

THE trend in the east is for short-haired furs, such as minkskin and ermine. But after the removal of these furs were worn almost exclusively at the Army and Navy game—and as you know, furs worn at this game are the criterion for the next winter season. Thompson-Belden's furs are specially priced this week. If you receive a gift of money for Christmas I really don't know of any better way to invest it than in one of the handsome fur sets or pieces shown at this store.

A TOUCH of color—a bit of white—how much do dainty girls like at the throat and to Milady's appearance? What pretty collars are being shown? The high collars with a touch of filmy lace net are becoming surely to the tall and stately girl; but rather should the short and stout wear something that gives her throat a longer line.

A T. Thompson-Belden's are really a wonderful assortment of New Year's cards and calendars.

REMEMBER! When you have your Christmas "thank you" notes to write, the Meyer Stationery Co., 1511 Farnam, has the appropriate styles in correspondence cards and note paper. Don't forget Meyer's for New Year's cards.

ONE of the very newest things in millinery I saw this week was a charmingly girlish hat made entirely of tiny baby blue velvet ribbon. It was an exact copy of one shown in "Vogue."

FLOWERS! Don't you love 'em? The pots of varicolored Cyclamen I've seen have made me long to have one for my very own. One deep red one fairly bespoke the love one would wish to express as a gift for the New Year's season, so rich were its blossoms—and so lasting! You can have a blooming Cyclamen plant, these brilliant and unusual flowers from the Sunny California—Poinsettias—which are also good for another Xmas season, if one only knew it. I've ordered mine from Hest & Swoboda's.

MUSIC

By HENRIETTA M. REES.
ERRY CHRISTMAS! As you are reading these few words chimes may be ringing and Christmas music sounding from some of the many churches, as the old, old story of the birth of Christ, the shepherds in the fields and the chorus of angels is told in song. Christmas and Easter are two great religious events when music is most generally called upon to assist in more intimately and ideally bringing home to the worshippers the significance and importance of the day. Most of the churches will have special services, and choirmasters and singers have been working earnestly in order to give of their best, and to deliver the message of the music. And after all, that is the main thing. Music is merely a means of expression, more subtle, more abstract than words, and much more suggestive and elusive accordingly. He who uses it well must be the master of it. If he writes in it, he must have something to say, and subjugate the means completely to it. If he interprets he must make its technique and science his handmaidens, that he may clearly and honestly bring to others the message that he finds.

Worthy Christmas music and that which endures was written, not for the beauty of its sounds, but to deliver a Christmas message or to tell its wondrous story. Christmas music must be sung or interpreted with this idea constantly in mind. When this idea it serves its true function, and brings its powerful influence to bear upon the listeners in its proper and impressive manner.

What nice thing do you suppose is going to happen tonight? Something because of Christmas eve, connected with Christmas and relating to it? Why, we are really and truly going to have some Christmas carol singing in Omaha. Everybody may not hear it, for in comparison to the size of our big city only a few people will be singing, but a great many will hear it, and it will do much to spread the "tidings of gladness and joy" and to revive one of the most beautiful of old European customs.

Groups of from fifteen to twenty apiece from the Young People's society of the St. Mary's Avenue Congregational church are going out. This Young People's society is a large and enthusiastic organization and the interest of this church in music is well known, and they will sing in several places in the city.

The Hanscom Park Methodist Episcopal church young people are also going out, and they have several antiphonal songs which they have most expeditiously learned. These young people, under the inspiration of Miss Eleanor Stalder, started with the idea of carolling for the "shut-ins" and for the sick at hospitals, but have enlarged their plans and will sing many other places as well. There will be about forty of them altogether. Some thirty from the Unitarian church also are planning to go about singing carols.

Undoubtedly there are many other groups to sing carols in different parts of the city also, who will do their part in spreading Christmas joy.

This is only a beginning, but it will undoubtedly bring much inspiration and the highest kind of genuine pleasure. How fine it would be if it would lead to some definite systematic plan for next year, in which a great many more people might join, and not only participate, but co-operate in bringing these lovely old Christmas songs again to life. But over and beyond the reviving of a beautiful old custom and the spreading of Christmas gladness, however, in this kind of activity is to be found the true community spirit. We hear much of this nowadays, but sometimes we look for it vainly. It is not to be found in the hall where a program has been arranged, where one person sings, and other plays more or less discriminately.

ly, a group of others present several selections, and everybody else listens, or is supposed to. But where many people get into the game themselves, and actively co-operate toward the common enjoyment or welfare, there it is always present.

Interesting reminiscences of the late F. Paolo Tosti, song writer, who recently passed away at his home in Italy, are published in Musical America this week. They are principally the collections of Antonio Scotti, the great baritone, who was a close friend of the composer of "Goodbye." Tosti always carried bits of paper with him upon which he jotted down ideas for songs that came to him, wherever he happened to be. Much of his composing was done outside of the musical season and at the seaside. He never wrote a grand opera, but contemplated an opera buffa at one time. He taught singing and played his own song accompaniments very well. For many years he lived in London, and was knighted by King Edward. He was instructor of the English royal family. He was a great joker, and of an extremely lovable personality. His songs, well known far and wide, are both many and beautiful.

In the same magazine is an interesting interview with Herbert Witherspoon, distinguished voice specialist of New York. He says that about one person in a million breathes correctly; that breathing is all-important in singing. He favors laws to check incompetent vocal instructors, who through ignorance, in their presuming to direct the use of the delicate vocal organ can wreck the health and life of those under their care. He points out that the incompetent piano and violin teachers can do but little physical harm through their poor teaching, in comparison with the poor vocal teacher. He says that there are two kinds of vocal teachers, the teacher who makes money and the teacher who makes singers. He feels that there is no system in the present methods of teaching and in the near future he is to establish a school embodying the ideals which his twenty-one years of concert and opera experience and constant musical investigations have given him.

Hans Richter, famous German conductor, died at his home at Bayreuth, Bavaria, during the early part of this month. He was for many years considered the greatest Wagnerian conductor, and was one of the greatest personalities in the musical world of his day. He had retired from active musical work some years ago, and his last few months were devoted to literary pursuits.

Musical Notes. The Tuesday Morning Musical club concert for January 2 has been postponed to Tuesday afternoon, January 10, when the Pionizek quartet, internationally known as one of the finest chamber music organizations, will appear with Miss Corinne Paulson, pianist. This is Miss Paulson's first appearance publicly this season, and the Pionizek quartet has not been heard in Omaha for several seasons.

Mr. Karl Tumberg of Seattle, Wash., will return to Omaha the first week in January. Mr. Tumberg is a well known artist of the western coast, and last summer gave a recital at the home of his cousin, Mr. L. E. Kilgus, at this city. He will have charge of the music at the Blackstone hotel this winter.

A neat folder announcing the season of 1916-1917 has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Kelly. It contains various newspaper comments, a brief resume of their various recitals, outline of their recital plans and of their series of programs.
