City to Move Against All Who Fail to Clear Walks

City Commissioner Jardine notes that many property owners and tenants have failed to clear their sidewalks of ice which formed from the recent snow. He adds that during the last week this ice has been in a condition which made removal easy. He will instruct the sidewalk department to proceed against those who have failed to observe the law on this matter.

Dad Dornblazer Swore He Would Go to Omaha in Spite of All the Hogs.

HE'S WITH FARMERS' UNION

An attack, made upon him by a vicious boar in his hog lots down in Texas, could not keep O. F. Dornblazer from attending the convention of the Nebraska Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative State Union in Omaha today.

Mr. Dornblazer is national organizer for the union. He is 75 years old, has been married fifty-six years, and has been a booster of the Farmers' union ever since its inception.

But during his talk to the 750 delegates gathered in the Auditorium he limped slightly in proceeding back and forth over the stage. Down in Texas the swine still have a little of the fighting blood of the old Texas wild hog in them, so when "Dad" Dornblazer stepped into his hog lot the other day, the old boar popped up his bristles and made for him. In the melee the old gentleman got horned a little by the big ivory tusks, and then severely wrenched his knee in leaping over a fence to get clear. But he rubbed the knee faithfully with liniment from the topmost shelf in the kitchen, and swore he would go to Omaha in spite of all the hogs in Texas.

Farmer Is Goat.

So here he was Wednesday morning, declaring in loud tones that the dealer gets the farmer going and coming, and that the only remedy is organization and that organization through the Farmers' union. He declared the farmer is the greatest producer of wealth in the United States, pointed out that the government said so in its reports, "and then," he said, "after telling us we are the greatest producers of wealth, they turned around and passed a federal farm loan act to loan money to the farmers, thereby showing clearly that we don't get all we produce, or we wouldn't need this help."

The Clay Center Farmer's union orchestra is here with a half dozen or more pieces, and music abounded when the convention opened.

W. F. Baxter of Omaha delivered the address of welcome and H. C. Elwood of Creighton responded.

C. S. Bassett of Atlanta, Ga., national president of the Farmers' union, made the convention a co-operation talk just before the noon hour.

Growth in Omaha.

State President Gustafson in his address in the afternoon showed something of the growth of the exchange in Omaha where goods are dispensed to the farmers. He showed that during 1915 the business done by the exchange amounted to $300,000, and during 1916 it reached the $1,000,000 mark. In the single item of binder twine alone, he said, 2,250,000 pounds were sold in 1915 and 4,700,000 pounds in 1916.

He reviewed the growth of the organization, showing that in 1911 the first local was organized in the state; that in December, 1913, the state union was organized, with 245 locals and 5,000 members; that in 1914 there were 460 locals, with 11,000 members; that January 1, 1916, there were 731 locals, with 20,000 members, and that at present there are 1,024 locals in the state, with a total membership of 30,000; that in 1915 there were eleven counties organized; that January 1, 1916, there were eighteen counties organized, and that at present there are thirty-four counties organized.

Education Squabble.

On the subject of schools and education President Gustafson said: "The farmer does not demand special privileges. We are only demanding that we may spend our own money to educate our children, and we resent all attempts made by the 'boss educators' to say how and where our children shall be educated. If every farmer in Nebraska only knew what the program of these 'boss educators' is and what the results would be if their program is carried through they would surely get busy at once and do all in their power to block their plans."

The farmers are here for a three days' session. About 750 attended the opening session in the morning and it is expected that nearly 1,500 delegates will be present before the close of the convention.

Embargo On Grain to Seaboard Points Lifted

Omaha railroad freight officials are advised that the embargo on shipments to Boston and New York has been lifted, particularly as applied to grain. It is reported several large freighters have arrived at these ports and are taking on loads for England, Norway and Sweden. The embargo, however, probably will be replaced before the end of another week.

Word has reached Omaha that the congestion at New Orleans and Galveston is pretty well cleared up and that of each of these ports there is considerable elevator space available for grain. As a result large shipments are going south over the Missouri Pacific and Rock Island.

Butler Studies Geography While Confined in Hospital

J. P. Butler, city gas commissioner, is taking advantage of his convalescent period at St. Catherine's hospital, by studying the geography of the world. Colonel Heafey sent a book of European geography.

One of the ambitions of Mr. Butler's life was to know the rivers, mountains, countries, cities, lakes, seas, and other divisions of mundane land and water.

Now he believes he could stand at the head of any geography class. Mr. Butler suffered a compound fracture of a leg several months ago. He expects to be able to return home within a few weeks.

Among those who attended the conference from Omaha were Miss Esther Johnson, Mrs. F. H. Cole, Mrs. C. W. Hayes, "Gus" Miller, K. F. Schreiber, T. F. Sturgess and E. D. Gepson.

Scales Salesman Is Charged With Bold Embezzlement

Charged with having defrauded the Standard Scales company of $500, Marion C. Carrol, a former salesman for the concern, has been bound over to the district court on a charge of embezzlement under bonds in the sum of $580. The alleged offense took place last April when Carroll is said to have sold several sets of scales to farmers without having turned in the money. Jacob Baar, manager of the concern, swore to the complaint.

Clark Austin, a negro, who shot and killed Cecil Smith, another negro, on January 6, has been bound over on a charge of first degree murder.

Dodder Leaves Estate Worth Fifty Thousand

Edward Lanning Dodder, the well known Omaha undertaker and lodge man who took his own life last week, leaves a $50,000 estate.

Petitions for a special administrator and for the probate of the will have been filed with the county court by A. S. Churchill, the family attorney.

The widow, Della Dodder, who is to have the bulk of the estate, asks to be appointed special administratrix.

The late undertaker owned real estate in Omaha valued at $15,000 and in other states worth $20,00. His personal property is estimated at $15,000.

Though the widow receives all of the estate, with the exception of $1,000 left to a 21-year-old daughter, Lucile Dodder, two minor children, Eloise, 5 years old, and Edward, 2 years old, are also named as heirs in the petition.

It is set forth that Mr. Dodder at the time of his death had outstanding accounts of $336, as well as $3,000 in the bank, in the undertaking establishment's name, and that it is "decidedly best for all that the business be kept going, at least for the present."

Farmers Subscribe to Federal Farm Loan Bank

Farmers of Nebraska and vicinity not only expect to benefit by the new Omaha federal farm loan bank, but are anxious to insure its success by purchasing stock in the institution. Hundreds of letters are pouring in upon Collector of Internal Revenue Loomis from farmers subscribing for small blocks of the $750,000 of stock.

Two more thousand-dollar sales were recorded yesterday, when Charles L. Deuel and Blanch Deuel each subscribed for $1,000 of the issue. Both are of this city.
