Poetry. POEMS OF THE GREAT WAR. Selected by J. W. Cunliffe, New York. The Macmillan company. $1.50. This book refutes the statement that is sometimes made that the European war is not inspiring the modern poet to great work. Here is a collection of verse which is notable not only for the number of poets represented, but for the very quality of each individual selection.

Miscellaneous. A HANDY GUIDE FOR BEGGARS. By Rachel Lindsay. New York. The Macmillan company. $1.25. In this book Dr. Lindsay writes of sundry explorations made while afoot and penniless in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—a wonderful tramping trip—and the book is full of rare adventure.

NEW IDEALS IN BUSINESS. By Ida M. Tarbell. New York. The Macmillan company. $1.25. An account of their practice and their effects on men and profits. The conclusions which Miss Tarbell has reached from these sound investigations argue well for the future of American business.

WHEN THE PRUSSIAN CAME TO POLAND. By Laura de Turzaynowicz. New York. G. P. Putnam's Sons. $1.25. This is the story of an American woman, the wife of a Polish noble, who was caught in her home by the floodtide of the German invasion of the ancient kingdom of Poland. How truly she was in line with the German advance may be appreciated from the fact that iron-handed Von Hindenburg for some days made his headquarters under her roof.

SUSPENDED JUDGMENTS. By John Cowper Powys. New York. G. Arnold Shaw. $1.50. Essays on books and sensations which express the various thoughts and reactions which have been produced in the author by the re-reading of his favorite writers. He has added to the critical essays a certain number of others dealing with general topics.

INSIDE THE GERMAN EMPIRE. By Herbert Bayard Swope. New York City. The Century company. $2.00. A record of observations and deductions in Germany during the latter months of 1916; the work of a trained American newspaper man, who has just returned from the kaiser's empire, after being accorded during his visit unusual opportunities to see and study men and affairs.

SOCIAL RULE. By Elsie Clowis Parsons. New York. G. P. Putnam's Sons. $1.00. The author discusses social classification as a means to social control. She suggests that desire to control nature through science, to control the non-personal conditions men live under, is becoming a substitute for the age-long desire to control men themselves. In this diversion of the "perpetual desire of power after power" she sees the greatest chance for an increase of social freedom.

ENFORCED PEACE. Published by the League to Enforce Peace, 19 Fifth Avenue, New York. Proceedings of the first annual national assemblage of the League to Enforce Peace, Washington, May 20-27, 1916, with an introductory chapter and appendices giving the proposals of the league, its officers and committees.

Juvenile. THE CHILD OF THE MOAT. By I. H. Holborn. New York. G. Arnold Shaw. $1.25. A real book for real girls. Their brothers will like it; their parents will like it; but they will like it best of all. If Mr. Holborn's success in the new field is commensurate with that in the old, this child's story should be a great success.

AESOP'S FABLES WITH ILLUSTRATIONS. By P. Opper. Philadelphia. J. B. Lippincott company. $1.50. If a magic wand could make old Aesop's fables, the Ape, the Fox, the Crow, the Crane, the Eagle, the Lamb, the Raven, the Cock, the Wolf, the Cat, the Frog, see themselves in this up-to-date edition they would doff their hats to Mr. Opper and say: "You have the humor, the fun and the spirit of us all—thank you!" This is the best edition of one of the world's best books.

THE ISLANDS OF THE BLEST. By George Gallup. Boston. The Sterling Press. The poems which appear in this little volume represent the gleanings from an active life, devoted to helping to better the conditions under which mankind lives. Mr. Gallup's poems are all of a hopeful and most of them of a cheerful nature. Mr. Gallup is a thinker as well as a poet. A pleasing, yet deep, philosophy is beneath the surface of his poetry. Many of the lyrics have been published in magazines and two were winners in poetical contests.

THE BOY SETTLER. By Edwin L. Sabin. New York. Thomas Y. Crowell company. $1.00. Mr. Sabin has a quiet vein of humor and a keen sense of the picturesque. He knows how to tell a western story without dwelling on the "blood and thunder" aspects and still inject plenty of excitement of the right sort. His latest book is written in his happiest style.

CONCORDIANS MAKE MERRY AT BANQUET

Hoax Perpetrated at Expense of Member Throws Crowd Into Near Panic.

PESSIMISTS ARE SCORED

A woman, hurried and flurried, rushed into the banquet hall of the Henshaw Thursday evening, during the early stages of a banquet of mixed company, and sought the father of an infant she carried in her arms. Up and down the hall of merriment she walked until her troubled face fell upon W. F. Roessig, to whom she consigned the child. The crowd was thrown into something of a panic at first, but it quickly developed that the whole thing was a hoax planned by the committee which had in charge the first annual banquet of the Omaha Concord club. Nearly 200 men and women, members and their wives and sweethearts, gathered at the tables and enjoyed a program of riddles, and music and wit, mixed with a little bit of seriousness.

The Concord club was organized a year ago. The banquet of yesterday was the occasion for installing these new officers for the year. Thomas F. English, president; Dr. Stanley E. Reed, first vice president; Carl J. Ochiltree, second vice president; Dean T. Smith, third vice president; H. S. Syler, secretary-treasurer; Samuel Johnson, retiring president, gracefully relinquished his command. He explained that the club stood for optimism and good cheer and was opposed to pessimists, described by the speaker as a class of people who have the choice of two evils and take both.

Carnival Spirit Prevails. The attendants were vari-colored caps of fantastic designs and they sang many paraphrases of popular melodies. Judge Woodrough of the federal bench presided as toastmaster.

He urged that character-building should not be lost sight of in the great commercial strife.

"We would like each other better if we understood each other better," were the words of Chaplain Pouchier, recently returned from the Mexican border. He upheld the Golden Rule as worthy of everybody's consideration. "Let us enter into a fraternity of fellowship and brotherhood," was his parting admonition. Bruce McCulloch of South Side gave an interesting talk of the greatness of Omaha as a live stock and packing house center. W. A. Ellis of the Commercial club spoke for Commissioner Manley who was unable to be present. F. S. Howell painted a word picture of lawyers as paragons of virtue and exemplars of all that is best. A. W. Jeffers contributed to the post-prandial olio. Carl Ochiltree, D. T. Smith, Leslie Dick and the Misses Davis were heard in songs.
