Sioux Indians Hold Big Council On Death of Friend

"Pahaska" (the Long-Haired One) is not forgotten by the Ogallala Sioux Indians. "Pahaska," as his red-skinned friends called Colonel William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), will live long in their memory.

"The Ogallala Sioux Indians of Pine Ridge, S. D., in council assembled, resolve that expression of deepest sympathy be extended by their committee in behalf of the Ogallalas to the wife, relatives and friends of the late William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) for the loss they have suffered; that those people who have endured may know that the Ogallalas found in Buffalo Bill a warm and lasting friend, that our hearts are sad from the heavy burden of his passing, lightening only in the belief of our meeting in the presence of our Wakan Tanka in the great hunting ground.

"CHIEF JACK RED CLOUD, Chairman of Committee."

PORTLAND HOTEL BURNED

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 20—The Grand opera house on Cherry street, near Third avenue, was burned today. Assistant Fire Chief Gillam is killed, another man is missing and eight men were injured.

The alarm was turned in at 6:15 a. m. At that time the interior of the theater was burning fiercely. Firemen entered the building with hose and the roof crashed down, burying them. The tall Alaska building and the Hotel Rector, adjoining the theater, were saved.

The Grand lately had been used as a moving picture and continuous vaudeville house.

With the northward growth of the business district the theater became unprofitable. It was built for John Cort, and was under his management for a dozen years or more.

Assistant Chief Gillam was taken from the flames with both feet charred and his body badly crushed and burned. He died on the way to the hospital.

Mother of Three Will Fight for Them To the Bitter End

Mary E. Kinney, who, with her divorced husband, John F. Kinney of Minneapolis, figured in a series of legal battles for possession of their three children, who were granted to the father by a Minnesota court, but who had been living with the mother in Omaha, has filed a motion for a new trial.

The children, John F. Kinney, jr., Catherine Kinney and Margaret Kinney, were brought into court on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by the father, but by a temporary restraining order the children cannot be taken outside the jurisdiction of this court until the case is definitely settled.
