

CONVICTS SHOULD BUILD THE ROADS

Judge Troup Disputes Sheriff Clark's Theory of Feeding Literature to Prisoners.

PRACTICAL PENAL SCHEME

Sheriff Clark, self-appointed board of censorship of one, of newspapers and magazines that are daily distributed among the prisoners in the county jail under the new regime, believes that the members of the reading class break the monotony each day about six hours' worth, anyway. Each morning the sheriff operates on the morning papers and puts the scissors to all items of crime and lawlessness that might inflame the minds of the county boarders. Six papers are distributed daily and every two or three days the sheriff hands out eighteen new magazines—magazines that are, at least, new to the prisoner, though some of them are a few months old. As the reading class is an innovation introduced by the sheriff on his own hook, he has to buy the papers with money from his own pocket.

Judge's Dictum.

On the floor below the sheriff's office is a judge who is of the opinion that county jail prisoners should be out making roads, exercising their muscles on the rock pile or something of the sort. Judge Troup recommends legislation that will allow counties to work prisoners on something which will bring in some money. The money derived from the toil of husky, healthy county jail prisoners could fittingly be used to help pay the expenses of the poor farm, county hospital and other institutions, where the inmates are unable to do much physical labor, the judge asserts.

UNDUE INFLUENCE CHARGED BY WIFE

Suit Filed in District Court Involves Estate Valued at Sixty Thousand Dollars.

ALLEGED ILLEGAL TRANSFER

A deed of trust of real estate valued at $60,000 is involved in a suit brought in district court by James C. Ish and his wife, Anna M. Ish, against the First Trust company of Omaha and Leah M. Ish, Lois F. Ish, James K. Ish and Lusy G. Ish, minor children of the plaintiffs. It is set forth by the defendants that the complainants had no right to convey by deed of trust certain real estate by reason that James C.

Ish had only a life estate therein, the fee simple title resting in the children. The petition states that on February 15, 1916, the plaintiffs executed and delivered to the trust company, as trustee for the benefit of the children and the wife and mother, certain real estate belonging to the father.

Ish alleges that by the terms of the will of his mother, the late Martha C. Ish, who left him the property in question, he was forbidden to sell, convey or mortgage any of it. The petition also asserts that the wife was forced to sign the trust deed by threats and undue influence by the husband and that it was not her free and voluntary act. It is alleged that "she protested until overcome by the stronger will of her husband, who threatened her with physical force."

Gives up Vandeville.

George H. Sutton, the handless billiard player, has given up vandeville exhibitions and returned to his old work of displaying his skill in billiard rooms.

NURSES RESENT PROPOSED LAW

Doctors Join With Them in Branding New Bill as a "Public Menace."

WANT TO KEEP STANDARDS

Registered nurses and doctors all over Nebraska are up in arms over the introduction in the legislature of a bill to reduce the requirement of study and training for registered nurses.

"The present requirements in Nebraska," said a member of a committee from the State Nurses' association, "are one year of high school, at least, and three years' training in an accredited hospital before the candidate can take the state examination. These are the requirements in all other states, some even requiring four years' training.

"The bill, introduced in the legislature by Dr. George Reneker of Falls City, makes no educational requirements at all and calls for only six months of training."

"The efforts of an army of would-be nurses to get certificates without adequate preparation are responsible for the bill now pending in the legislature, known as house roll 230."

"Passage of this bill would flood the state with a great number of incompetent nurses which would be nothing less than a public menace."

"Other states have congratulated Nebraska on the high standard attained in nursing. This bill would destroy this standard and would militate against the proper nursing of the sick."

State Medical commission, has received a flood of letters from doctors, nurses and others all over the state protesting against any such law as is proposed in the bill.

Wild Horse Men Ask for New Trial On Ground of Error

That the court erred in refusing to direct the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty at the close of the "wild horse" case is one of the sixteen reasons set forth in a motion for a new trial by attorneys for J. Sidney Smith, C. A. Smith, B. F. Burwinkle and William Hinkley, found guilty for using the mails to defraud in selling wild and imaginary horses on the government reserve in Coconino county, Arizona.

Further grounds set forth in the petition are that the jury was biased because of reading newspapers and because of the prejudice of Juror Ben Gallagher.
