From Henry Hornberger

The body of Henry Hornberger, 30 years of age, until recently pharmacist for J. L. Brandeis & Sons, arrived in Omaha Monday and was buried after services at 1 o'clock Tuesday at the Jackson chapel. Interment was in West Lawn cemetery.

Death was due to tuberculosis. Mr. Hornberger had gone to Albuquerque, N. M., in the hope that his condition would improve. He arrived there January 21 at noon and died that evening.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Hornberger is survived by his mother, Mrs. J. Dearing of Winnebago, Neb. The Hornberger home was formerly at 2201 Chicago street.

City Council Approves

New Plan of Banking

The city council approved the new plan of depositing city funds. Time deposits of $25,000 a month for three months, beginning March 1, will be placed in the Security State bank and the State National bank, with open accounts in other banks. The two banks mentioned offered the city more than 2 per cent interest on time deposits of six months. The superintendent of accounts and finance will invest a portion of city funds in improvement district and school warrants.

HOW CAN WHEEL BE FLAT AND ROUND TOO

Learned Street Car Man Elucidates the Perplexing Question to Mr. Groh.

NOW HE KNOWS REASON

By A. R. GROH.

"Why are flat wheels?" This winter weather has made them plentiful. They pounded on my ears so much that I propounded the above question to a street railway man.

He was a very learned man. Oh, very learned, indeed. And witty, too. Almost as witty as myself.

He answered me scientifically, metaphorically, polysyllabically and sily-logically.

"There are really no flat wheels," he began with a smile.

"Pardon me," I said, "but out where I live you can hear the wild flat wheel calling to its mate both by day and by night."

"Nevertheless," he persisted, "and strictly speaking, there are no flat wheels. If they were flat they would not be wheels, don't you see? And, vice versa, as long as they are wheels they cannot be flat. The terms are mutually contradictory. You get my thought?"

"Some thought!" I exclaimed, pointed.

Or a Square Circle.

"You see, we might just as well talk of a square circle or a round triangle as of a flat wheel," he rambled on.

"Yes, or of an intelligent interview with certain people," I appended, not without subtle wit and innuendo.

He was silent, eyeing me suspiciously.

"You know what I mean," I said, following up my advantage. "I am speaking of wheels commonly found on street cars and which come up the street, punctuating the circumambient atmosphere with dull bump-bump-bumps against the patient rails."

"Ah, now I grasp your meaning," said my witty little friend. "You refer to wheels, round wheels, on whose periphery there is, at some point, a slight flatness."

"Your perspicacity and perspicuity are perfect," I said. "Now, elucidate, please. Why are flat wheels?"

Wheels Slide.

"I will tell you," he said. "In such weather as we've been having this winter, the rails are often slippery. When the cars are stopped suddenly the brakes sometimes lock the wheels and they slide along the rail for a few feet or yards.

"With several tons of weight on each wheel, you can imagine the grinding that they get against the rails. That is what makes them flat."

"Is there any cure for flat wheels?" I asked.

"If the grinding hasn't gone through the outer surface of chilled steel, the wheels can be ground down to perfect roundness," he said. "But if the grinding has penetrated through that little layer of chilled steel, the wheel is ruined and must be discarded. Rectifying of flatness in wheels is constantly going on."

"I thanked him warmly for his masterly elucidation of a subject that has been puzzling me.

He protested that no thanks were needed, that conversation with me was in itself ample reward for any slight service he might have rendered.

And so we parted with mutual expressions of respect.

U. P. Has Little Perishable

Tied Up by the Blockade

Union Pacific freight officials are congratulating themselves in having so little perishable stuff out on the line in Wyoming during the blockade and cold spell. All citrus fruit was held back, instead of having been sent into the zone of cold weather. One hundred and fifty carloads of apples and potatoes, coming in off the Short line from Oregon and Washington, were run down to Green River and there put into the round house and consequently there will be no losses from freezing.

Mother and Two Children

Play Firemen Profitably

Assisted by her two young children, Mrs. Charles Wittlake, 3424 North Forty-first street, fought and extinguished a fire in the kitchen of her home which firemen believe would have destroyed the place if it had not been conquered just when it was.

An overheated range set fire to the kitchen walls. Mrs. Wittlake called her children and they helped her fight the flames with buckets of water. When the firemen arrived the fire was out. The damage was slight.

Omaha in Federal Fight

Against Price of Paper

The high cost of paper has hit Uncle Sam with a bang. An order received by the postmaster raises the price of stamped unprinted envelopes from $21 a thousand to $21.52. The increase on paper, not counting the value of the stamps, is approximately 32 per cent. All postmasters were instructed to make an invoice on the envelopes they have on hand and notify the department at once. The increased price goes into effect immediately.

Injuries He Received Makes

Him Worth to Kill Himself

Setting forth in his petition that at times he feels he ought to kill himself, John Humer, formerly employed as a car repairer for the Union Pacific, has filed suit against the railroad in district court for $15,000 damages. The temporary spells of dizziness in which he is tempted to commit hari kari are caused, he alleges, from injuries he suffered on September 16, 1916, in an accident at the railroad shops in Omaha.

Fanning, Miller and Weis

Pay for Triple Trouble

Claude Miller, Frank Weis and Charles Fanning of Council Bluffs put on a row in front of 1002 Douglas street and as a result a plate glass window in Steve Colomba's saloon was broken. In police court they were each fined $5 and costs.

MORE NEW LIGHTS HAVE BEEN PLACED

Council Spots Nearly Two Hundred More in Various Parts of the City.

UNDER THE NEW CONTRACT

The city council approved locations for 165 more new electric lights, making a total of 365 new locations which the Omaha Electric Light and Power company will be directed to install according to terms of the new five-year contract.

The list follows:
