

WILL ASK PAPER MAKERS INDICTED

Federal Grand Jury Considering Case of Manufacturers
Who Boosted Prices.

FRANCIS HENRY IN CHARGE

Washington, Feb. 11.—Federal investigation of the news print paper situation has uncovered enough evidence, it was made known today, to warrant the Department of Justice asking indictments of paper manufacturers for alleged anti-trust law violations. Already, it was learned, a federal grand jury in New York is taking testimony to determine if there has been a criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade. Bainbridge Colby and Mark Hyman have been retained as special assistants to the attorney general to aid in the inquiry.

Henry to Prosecute.

The Federal Trade commission, which has furnished much of the information on which the Department of Justice is taking action, announced today that Francis J. Henry of California has been engaged as a special attorney in the commission's inquiry into high news print prices, and that under his direction the commission would continue its investigation after a preliminary report is made to congress early next week. Additional data will be supplied to the Department of Justice as fast as it is obtained.

The report to congress, which was to have been made Monday, probably will be delayed for some days because of the illness of one of the commissioners. It will be in the nature of an interim report and will cover the efforts of the commission to find a solution for an apparently news print shortage and relief for publishers from almost prohibitive prices that have obtained for about a year.

Never a Shortage.

The Federal Trade commission, it is understood, will report that it has found that increases in news print prices within the year are from four to twenty times the advance in production costs. It will say there never has been an actual news print shortage and that manufacturers have helped create a panic among publishers by intimating there was one.

Havana Aroused by Report of a Plot to Upset Government

Havana, Feb. 11.—Havana was stirred today by reports of a revolutionary movement. During the night the secretary of the interior, Aurelio Hevia, notified the civil and military authorities that a plot to overthrow the government had been discovered, involving civil and military officials and rumors that high army officers had been placed under arrest, spread over the city, causing both excitement and alarm. There had been mutterings of an uprising ever since the presidential elections in November last, the result of which has not yet been determined.

It was reported, but authoritatively denied by Secretary Hevia, that Brigadier General Pablo Mendieta, brother of Carlos Mendieta, liberal vice presidential candidate, and General Espinoza had been detained. These stories were later disproved by the appearance of these two officers at the palace.

Shelton Entertains Live Stock Men of This City

Shelton, Neb., Feb. 11.—Special Telegram.)—A special Pullman on No. 14 this morning brought a party of thirty-five live stock commission men, packing house representatives and railway officials here from Omaha and today they were entertained by local feeders and business men. The afternoon was spent in automobile rides to the yards, where thousands of sheep, cattle and hogs are being prepared for market.

Shelton for many years has had the reputation of being one of the most extensive feeding stations in the state and this evening a banquet held in Redington's hall, at which 150 sat and listened to music furnished by a colored saxophone quartet from Omaha. At the close of the banquet short speeches were made by Bruce McCulloch, Omaha; W. E. Reed, manager of Clay, Robinson & Co.; Superintendent Ware of the Union Pacific; C. B. Reynolds, Shelton, and a representative from the State university.

Much praise was given the committee in charge of the arrangements by the Omaha visitors for the splendidly arranged program.

Will Attempt to Pray the German Army Out of France

Paris, Feb. 11.—Solemn public prayers will be offered for the French armies throughout Lent through the action of Cardinal Lucon, archbishop of Rheims and Cardinal Amette, archbishop of Paris. The cardinals sent to all the bishops of France, a letter reading in part as follows:

"The hour is grave. Spring will bring, as everybody expects, a resurgence of the intensity of war operations on both sides. The hellions will make an effort which each will want to be a decisive one. Our soldiers will fight every day. Must we not pray every day while they are making the supreme effort with arms? Let us make a supreme effort by prayer."

Unidentified Man Killed In South Side Yards

An unidentified man, probably a laborer, was found dying in the railroad right-of-way last night at 10:30 o'clock at Railroad avenue and Washington street, South Side. He had evidently been thrown under the wheels of a train while trying to catch a ride. He died at the South Omaha hospital before midnight.

A small amount of money was found on his person and jewelry was taken in several places "P. S." He was about 35 years of age. His tie-pin was marked "Jeff."

MAC DOWELL MUSIC CAPTIVATES OMAHA

Recital by Great Composer's Widow Proves Occasion of Delight to Attendants.

PIANISTE OF MUCH MERIT

By HENRIETTA M. REES.

Mrs. Edward MacDowell, pianist, and the widow of the greatest American composer, completely captivated an Omaha audience last evening at the Young Women's Christian association auditorium. She appeared for the benefit of the Peterborough colony for creative workers, which is the work of the MacDowell Memorial association, and under the local auspices of Edith L. Wagener, who was at one time a pupil of MacDowell, and who made a few brief introductory remarks.

Mrs. MacDowell captivated by her own delightful personality, her interpretations of her husband's music, and by the interest of her program. She, more than any one else, realizes the value of ideal environment for creative work, environment such as MacDowell only had for a short time in his life, and her unselfish enthusiasm in helping to finance the Peterborough colony as such a permanent place could not but be seen and admired.

Explains the Purpose.

In her brief talk at the opening of the program she told something of the aims and purposes of this institution, how it has grown from a small and uncertain beginning to definite and assured success in the accomplishments of those aims, and of her interest in seeing it a financial success as well.

Besides the brief talk, Mrs. MacDowell prefaced many of the numbers she played with a few remarks about how they came to be written or with a brief incident in connection with them which added an intimate touch and personal interest to them.

It may have been a surprise to more than one present to realize what an interesting program could be given from the works of MacDowell alone, a fact by the way which speaks eloquently of his genius as a composer, and his versatility of subject matter. It was a tribute to Mrs. MacDowell as a pianist, that through her playing the richness of "chord fabric," the tonal coloring and many were expressed clearly and intelligently to the audience.

Music Well Played.

All of her numbers were well interpreted with dynamic contrasts and individual conceptions of the numbers, all the more interesting through her close association with the composer. All of the numbers are so colorful, and atmospheric, that it surprises all the more that each in its way can be so different. "Flute Idyl," largo from the "Sonata Tragica," "Winter," from Opus thirty-two, and "A. D. 1620" from the "Sea Pictures" were especially enjoyable to the writer. "From a German Forest" was a rich and beautiful number, and was so enthusiastically received that it was repeated. The brilliant "Witches' Dance" closed the program, but as everyone remained in their seats, and Mrs. MacDowell in response to the heartiness of the applause added three extra numbers "To a Wild Rose," "Scotch Poem" and "The March Wind."

Hollweg Thinks U-Boats

Will End the War Quickly

Paris, Feb. 11.—The Berlin Kreuz Zeitung, according to a Geneva dispatch to the Temps, says that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg counts upon the submarine to end the war quickly.

"Every day badly employed," adds the paper, "is lost for Germany and gained for England, which perfects its means of defense. We must hasten our action. Five or six months will suffice. May God grant that we do not renew with out submarines our experiences with Zeppelins."

The newspaper expresses the conviction that less than seven weeks of submarine warfare will "put England out of action."

Omaha Whistlers Sweep The Plate at St. Joseph

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 11.—(Special Telegram)—Omaha won not only the Richards trophy in the play of the Central Whist association here today, but also the honor of being selected as the city in which next year's tournament will be held. C. W. Martin of Omaha was elected president and June Abbott of Omaha, secretary and treasurer of the association. To an Omaha team, Hoberg and Giehn, also went the St. Joseph trophy for two-man play.

Council Bluffs finished second in the team play, with Grand Island third, and Bartlesville, Okla., fourth. The latter team led until this afternoon, when Omaha went into the lead and remained there.

Local Greeks Try to Land Alpha Tau Omega Meet

Attempts are being made to land the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity convention for Omaha in 1920.

A meeting of alumni was held yesterday at the Fontenelle hotel and President A. C. Kennedy, of the local chapter, appointed a committee consisting of Earl W. Porter, Attorney Chandler Trimble and Byrd Sells, to organize the campaign to land the convention, which will be an exceptionally big one. Assurance has already been given that Omaha will have the help of Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, besides Nebraska.

Life at best is full of chances. Nobody can tell what a few years may bring forth. Riches take wings and fly away. Relatives and friends off. The most promising marriages often end in disaster.

No human foresight can altogether protect a girl against the contingencies of fate, but if we have trained her to some trade or profession so that she has in herself the ability and skill to make a decent living, we have at least averted off from her the worst blow of disaster. We have given her an anchor to the windward that will hold her safe while the storm blows over.

Teach your girls some way to support themselves, because it is the surest way to protect them against system and efficiency and, above all,

Teach Girls a Business, Says Dorothy Dix; Some Day They May Need It

By DOROTHY DIX.

There are millions of parents in these United States today who are wondering just what to do with their Mamie or Sadie, who graduated from high school last June. They have neither the inclination nor the money to send her off to college. They are well enough off for her not to be forced at once into office, or store, or temptation. Suppose, father, there should come some crash in business that would sweep away your little fortune, and you should die leaving your family penniless. Such catastrophes happen often, and girls gently and delicately reared as yours are thrown suddenly out into the world to sink or swim.

If your girl has a good trade at her fingers' ends, she will swim safely into shore. But if she knows nothing on earth to do that will earn enough to keep body and soul together, you know what is almost sure to happen when her clothes are in rags, when she is shivering with cold, when she is starved and despairing.

Suppose a girl marries well, but disaster overtakes her husband. He may fail in business, or lose his situation through no fault of his own. He may become an invalid. He may die, leaving her with a house full of children. It is a tragedy if the wife is a helpless untrained woman who knows no way of making a cent. Her husband may perish for lack of a little help, or for lack of proper nourishment. Her children may be separated and sent to public institutions because she cannot feed them.

But if she has been taught some gainful occupation, the situation is merely a misfortune. She can step into the breach, keep her family together, and work out their salvation.

Above all, having been trained to some gainful occupation, is the sharp sword with which a woman can protect herself against a brutal husband if she has the misfortune to marry such a one. There is nothing more pitiful in the world than the fact that untold numbers of women have to endure daily martyrdom of abuse and ill-treatment from men who kick them about as if they were dogs, and like dogs they have to lick the hand that beats them, because they have no way by which they can support themselves and their children.

We women talk a lot about the wrongs of our sex, but every political injustice and social injustice that has ever been perpetrated against us sinks into nothingness before the wrong that our parents do us in not teaching us some way to support ourselves.

They send us out into the world helpless and defenseless, with no weapon with which to protect ourselves. They put us at the mercy of poverty and cold and hunger and brutal men, for these are the cruel lot of the woman in need who knows no way of making enough money to provide for her daily wants. It is the crime of all crimes, and that it is committed in the name of love does not palliate it, nor change its effect.

Life at best is full of chances. Nobody can tell what a few years may bring forth. Riches take wings and fly away. Relatives and friends off. The most promising marriages often end in disaster.

Certainly the possibility of such a thing does not justify a father and mother in risking leaving a helpless, poor old maid to either go to the poorhouse or live around on relatives-in-law who don't want her.

But it does not injure a girl's chances of marriage for her to learn how to support herself. It increases them. Girls who work in offices have ten times the chances to marry than society girls have. Moreover, no woman makes so good a wife as the business girl who knows from experience the value of promptness and who knows from actual experience how hard money is made.

No woman who has ever earned a dollar looks at it with the same eyes that the woman does who has only had money given her. The one thinks it grows on trees; the other knows it comes through blood and sweat, and she handles it accordingly.

If your girl has a good trade at her fingers' ends, she will swim safely into shore. But if she knows nothing on earth to do that will earn enough to keep body and soul together, you know what is almost sure to happen when her clothes are in rags, when she is shivering with cold, when she is starved and despairing.

Suppose a girl marries well, but disaster overtakes her husband. He may fail in business, or lose his situation through no fault of his own. He may die, leaving her with a house full of children. It is a tragedy if the wife is a helpless untrained woman who knows no way of making a cent. Her husband may perish for lack of a little help, or for lack of proper nourishment. Her children may be separated and sent to public institutions because she cannot feed them.

But if she has been taught some gainful occupation, the situation is merely a misfortune. She can step into the breach, keep her family together, and work out their salvation.

Above all, having been trained to some gainful occupation, is the sharp sword with which a woman can protect herself against a brutal husband if she has the misfortune to marry such a one. There is nothing more pitiful in the world than the fact that untold numbers of women have to endure daily martyrdom of abuse and ill-treatment from men who kick them about as if they were dogs, and like dogs they have to lick the hand that beats them, because they have no way by which they can support themselves and their children.

And their husbands know this and take advantage of the knowledge. These men would not dare to ill-use a wife who could go back to her old job.

For these and a million other good reasons I implore all parents, as they love their daughters, to have them taught some gainful occupation by which they can support themselves.

Financial independence is the best gift that any father and mother can make to their daughter, and to withhold it from her is simply gambling with her future.

That is a good way to start it, sed Pa. It sounds fine, sed Pa.

It doesn't sound very fine to me, I said Pa. You mustn't rite this essay for me, I have to rite it myself. I have to tell the teacher it is mine & I don't want to tell a lie.

That is rite, Bobbie, sed Ma. Your father to take up piece of paper & rite me out to see a moving pictre while you rite your essay. Your father is a escort, not a essay-ist, sed Ma.

CENSOR CUTS OUT ATTACKS UPON U. S.

Austrian Paper Has Three Large White Spots in Editorial Denouncing Wilson.

VIENNA PRESS MODERATE

Vienna (Via London), Feb. 11.—Government circles and the public generally view the delayed action of President Wilson regarding the relations between Austria-Hungary and the United States as a somewhat favorable omen and wonder if no rupture is to occur. The newspapers, in a majority of cases, hold a similar view, with the result that the tone of the editorials is losing all its sharpness, save in the case of a few radical papers, of which the Reichs Post, the most prominent Catholic organ, is the chief instance.

The Reichs Post had three large white spots, inflicted by the censors in an editorial attacking President Wilson this morning. Judging by the little that censors permitted to appear the editorial must have been extremely rabid.

Do Not Commit Themselves.

All the other papers this morning confined themselves to discussing the attitude of the other neutrals toward the president's act regarding Germany and expressing the hope that the American government would learn therefrom that the central powers case was not so one-sided as the friends of the entente would have the world believe.

Several papers, knowing the government's attitude in matters affecting President Wilson's actions, refrained from committing themselves editorially on that subject, taking up the necessity of fuel and similar matters instead.

The Associated Press learns that the Austro-Hungarian government yesterday instructed the military and other public safety organizations that the greatest possible courtesy should be shown all Americans in any event and that possible complaints by any American should receive prompt attention at the hands of all the authorities.

Case Looks Hopeful.

At the American embassy the opinion was expressed this morning that the case looked hopeful. At noon the papers published, with apparent satisfaction, a wireless dispatch from New York to the effect that the American government had not taken real measures against German and Austro-Hungarian shipping, reports of which were widespread here. The dispatch in question, which stated that Washington had instructed the American officials to proceed with caution and courtesy, made the best possible impression.
