Observe Nebraska's Statehood.
The fifth annual banquet of the Nebraska Legislative Ladies' league was held Thursday evening at the Lincoln hotel. State officers and members of the legislature were guests of honor at the dinner, celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of Nebraska's graduation from a territory into a state. Flags were draped on the walls of the large room and each place was marked by a small silk flag and vases filled with goldenrod, the state flower, alternating with yellow tapers in crystal sticks. Three hundred were present. Mrs. A. E. Sheldon, president of the league, introduced the following toasts: "Our Guests," by Mrs. Keith Neville; "Our Honorary Members," by Mrs. Edgar Howard; "The Tree Planters," by Mrs. Lloyd Thomas; "As We See Ourselves," by Mrs. Laurie J. Quinby; "As Others See Us," by Mrs. Richard Neal; "Nebraska and the Fine Arts," by Mrs. William A. Apperson; "Beyond Fifty," by Mrs. Allen W. Field. A "Nebraska" song, written by Mrs. George Write, was sung.

The last number was a play, "The Nebraska Woman—A Study in Progression," by Mrs. Homer K. Burket's League players in their first appearance. The play was given in three scenes, depicting life of fifty years ago on the open plains when the Indians roamed at will; the women of twenty-five years ago busily engaged in the forming of various clubs; and the present day, when the women appeared before the court to show why they should or should not have suffrage debate, but like the "white man" in the first scene, appeared in the suffrage debate, but like the "white man," were divided in their opinions.

MRS. N. P. DODGE, Jr., is proposed by the nominating committee of the Tuesday Morning Musical club as one of the new members of the board of directors. Mrs. Dodge is not only a patroness of music, but she is herself a talented violinist. Before her marriage Mrs. Dodge was a Boston girl. Her interest extends to the Drama league and Fine Arts society and to the Nebraska Anti-Suffrage association, on which board she also serves. Mrs. Dodge is one of the patronesses for the large Unitarian subscription party Friday evening. Philip, her little son, is not the least of Mrs. Dodge's interests.

INTERESTS of society everywhere are so diversified that Joseph's cloak of many colors would be a fitting mantle to throw over the motley throng, for there would be somber or brilliant hues to suit all. One society writer of gaiety at Palm Beach, Coronado, Atlantic City and other places in Florida and California, says: "Lent is here, but judging from the reports of festivities during the last week, the sackcloth being worn seems of golden fabric and the ashes, ashes of roses."

Another, writing from New York, sees another side of life and says: "The drab curtain of Lent has fallen. The social set is demonstrating that it means to observe the season of inaction in the old-fashioned way." To the "ominous, far-away roar of the war" she attributes this change from recent seasons. Smart people more than any others, are impressed with the awful nature of war. They have been abroad in the midst of it. They have helped to nurse the wounded of other wars to health. This helping has drawn them out of themselves. The women have become prepared for something bigger and better than pouring tea in a drawing room.

Omaha women are about evenly divided in their observation of the season. Some are giving up bridge, others are sewing for charity. The number of sewing circles is one of the chief indications of Lent. The Original Cooking club had luncheon at the Omaha club Friday, and afterwards went to the war relief room in the Baird building for sewing. That war relief room is a very remarkable place, by the way.

That it is clean, light and airy you may take for granted. Everything is arranged in orderly fashion from sewing machines and work tables to ravelings and scraps of cloth. There is not a particle of waste, for each minute thread or snip of muslin is saved in the waste basket set conveniently under the table and is used in the stuffing of pillows. Those pillows are a perfect delight to the eyes. Around the tables are seated the women whose names you may read among the patronesses of prominent and worthy movements. They work faithfully with very little interruption and only a little conversation to add speed to the flying fingers.

In another room sits a solitary figure busily measuring, cutting and stamping. This woman, whom busy Mrs. Harold Gifford frequently consults, is "Grace Redick," official shipping clerk of the organization. Around the room stand filled and partly filled boxes and trunks of pillows, bandages and other clean, neatly folded articles. On shelves, carefully covered, are bundles of blanket samples which will be matched and made into large and warm coverings for wounded men. The greatest lack still is old linen to use inside the packing boxes. Thursday-afternoon, there was a special treat in the shape of delicious sweetmeats from Chicago, which the Misses Willard were sharing with the work-

Variety Lenten Observances.
Trinity Parish Aid society, is making tray cloths and garments for hospital patients. The Altar Guild of Trinity cathedral is sewing for a bazaar, which they intend to give after Easter. Other clubs are sewing for the Child Savings Institute and for the United States Navy. Nearly everyone is sewing, for that is a pleasant penance.

Miss Menie Davis said the other day: "None of my friends are observing Lent in any unusual way, but most of them are going to church. That helps some." Many others are following the same plan, so that Bible classes and church schools are flourishing. One delightful matron, you may guess her name, said, "Mother, I think I shall try to go to church every day this Lent." Her mother looked at her soberly a minute, then replied, "Daughter, couldn't you spread it out through the year a little?"

Aside from these usual ways of observing the time of abstinence and good deeds, Mrs. T. R. Rutledge has hit upon a really novel way of chastening the spirit. It is an altogether up-to-date thing to do and one calculated to reduce the High Cost of Living, about which everyone is talking in these troublesome times. You must have guessed already that Mrs. Rutledge is doing without King Potato in every way, shape and form. Mrs. Franklin A. Shotwell has a really instructive way of observing Lent. Instead of denying herself any special thing she has elected to follow the Boy Scout motto and do one kind deed each day.

Unitarian Juniors' Dance.

The largest affair yet arranged by the energetic young people of the Unitarian church will be given under the auspices of that church Friday evening at Turpin's hall. A large subscription dance, the proceeds of which will swell the building fund for the church to be erected at Turner boulevard and Harnes' streets, in the spring, will be the attraction. The committee in charge consists of the Misses Leeta Holdrege, Agnes Russell, Adelaide Fogg, Dorothy Parsons, Mary Newton, Helen Bennett, Minerva Quinby, and the Messrs. Alan McDonald, Dan G. Cary, Sam O. Cotner, Arthur L. Palmer, Ned Aitchison. The dance program will consist of both old time and popular dances.

Patrons and patronesses for the event are: Messrs. and Mesdames Walter H. Abbott, W. F. Baxter, Frank Boyd, B. W. Capen, N. P. Dodge, H. C. Everts, Arthur English, Harold Gifford, C. B. Horton, G. W. Holdrege, J. P. Justman, Louis Kyle, John McDonald, H. S. Mann, Grant Parsons, Kenneth Reed, C. W. Russell, Rudolph Von Lutgen, A. D. Hoag, A. W. Jeffers, G. J. Ingwerter, R. F. Leaven, W. J. Dewinter,

The scenes were full of clever witticisms, and the last one held several "take-offs" on the work of the present legislature. The cast included Mesdames H. Aldrich, H. K. Burket, Dexter Barrett, Grant Martin, J. C. F. McKesson, C. B. Letton, Edgar Polleys, A. W. Richardson, S. K. Kier, W. A. Clemmons, W. L. Bates and Miss Berna Miskell.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the banquet consisted of Mrs. Edgar Howard, Mrs. C. P. Peterson, Mrs. C. W. Beal, Mrs. Willis Reed, Mrs. A. W. Richardson and Mrs. Keith Neville.

The officers of the league are: Mrs. Keith Neville, honorary president; Mrs. Addison E. Sheldon, president; Mrs. Edgar Howard, vice president; Mrs. William L. Bates, secretary; Mrs. Willis Reed, treasurer.

For War Relief Fund.

the Auditorium. Old and young are enlisted in the corps of workers who are aiming to make this a successful affair in order that a large sum may accrue to the war relief fund.
