

WILSON WILL TAKE OATH SUNDAY NOON

Formal Ceremony for His Second Inaugural in Open Air East of Capitol.

WILL DELIVER AN ADDRESS

Washington, March 3.—Formal ceremonies of inauguration which mark the beginning of the second term of President Wilson and Vice President Marshall will be held at noon Monday in the senate chamber and in the open air at the east front of the capitol.

Precedent for holding inaugural ceremonies on March 5, when March 4 falls on a Sunday, was set as early as 1821 by President Monroe, on the advice of Chief Justice Marshall and was followed by Presidents Taylor and Hayes. President Wilson's inauguration is the fourth under such circumstances.

Only One Flag in Sight.

Nothing has been left undone to make the occasion a great demonstration of Americanism. The capital has been decked in American flags and the red, white and blue to the exclusion of all other colors. The note of patriotism predominates in every ceremony of the day; it is the motive of the inaugural procession, and is the theme of what is expected to be the most elaborate display of night fireworks ever seen in the country.

At the capitol, where the inaugural stand has been built on the plaza at the east front, a great space has been roped off, where the president's military escort, including the cavalry from Fort Myer, the West Point cadets and the entire corps of midshipmen from Annapolis will form a square while Mr. Wilson is delivering his inaugural address.

The formal ceremonies are set by program to begin at the capitol at noon. Ordinarily they seldom have started at that hour because they have been dependent on the end of the session of congress. Often in the last hour crush and hurry the hands of the clock in the senate or house have been turned back as there was need, so that whatever time it really was, it officially was 12 o'clock noon when congress ended its session and the inaugural ceremonies began. The convening of the senate of the next congress in extraordinary session. All this is altered this year because March 4 falls on Sunday.

Program for Procession.

Early Monday morning preparations will begin at the White House for the president's procession to the capitol, where first he will attend the inauguration of the vice president in the senate chamber, and then, later, with the whole official party go to the stands on the plaza.

The president's escort of cavalry will be assembling in the White House grounds about the time the joint inaugural committee of congress arrives to escort the presidential party to the capitol. The committee is composed of Senators Overman of North Carolina, Smith of Georgia, Warren of Wyoming, Representatives Rucker of Missouri, Garrett of Tennessee and McKinley of Illinois.

About 11 o'clock, if the program is carried out according to arrangements, the presidential party will be ready to leave the White House for the capitol. The Senate cavalry troopers will head the procession; they will come to the president and Mrs. Wilson, accompanied by Senator Overman and Representative Rucker. Next will be the vice president and Mrs. Marshall, with Senator Smith and Senator Warren. The vice president's escort will be the black horse troop from the Culver Military academy. In a third conveyance will be Representatives Garrett and McKinley and Chairman Harper, of the local inaugural committee. It will be the first time within the memory of local officials that a vice president's wife has accompanied him in an inaugural procession.

President and Vice President

Washington, March 3.—President Wilson will take the oath of office for his second term in his room at the capitol at noon Sunday. It will be administered by Chief Justice White of the supreme court. Mr. Wilson plans to go to the capitol shortly before noon to sign bills and therefore decided it would be impracticable to take the oath of office in the White House, as was at first contemplated.

While no special invitations for the ceremony at the capitol have been issued, members of Mr. Wilson's cabinet will be with him, advising him on bills passed in the closing hour of congress. Mr. Wilson has decided to take the oath again on Monday in front of the capitol just before he delivers his inaugural address.

Ceremony in the Senate.

While the president is on his way to the capitol the remainder of the inaugural party will be assembling there. The capacity of the galleries in the senate chamber is not great and for that reason only two tickets of admission have been issued to each of the senators and senators-elect and only one to each representative or representative-elect. These same tickets entitle the holders to seats on the inaugural stand outside. The reserved gallery on the east side of the chamber will be set aside for invited guests of the president, vice president, president pro tempore of the senate, speaker of the house, justices of the supreme court, members of the cabinet and senators. The diplomatic gallery will be reserved, as usual, for families of members of the corps. The doors for those holding cards of admission to the galleries will be opened at 10 o'clock, and an hour later the doors of the senate chamber will be opened to those entitled to seats on the floor.

When the president arrives at the capitol he goes to his room and awaits the hour for beginning the ceremonies. Representatives and representatives-elect will assemble in the house chamber and march over to the senate chamber, entering at the south door. Meanwhile the diplomatic corps, represented in full regalia, will be assembling in the marble room, and when the party is complete, will be announced and escorted to places on the senate floor. All others entitled to admission to the floor will, meanwhile, be entering through the bronze door. When all this party has been seated, the supreme court will be announced and will be followed by retiring senators and representatives. Members of the cabinet and high officers of the army and navy will have seats reserved for them. Then President Wilson will be escorted to the chamber and seated directly in front of the vice president's desk. The committee on arrangements will take seats to his right and left. The vice president will be escorted into the chamber, and after the president pro tempore has called the senate to order in extraordinary session, the oath of office will be administered to the vice president, who then will deliver his inaugural address. Following that he will administer the oaths of office to the incoming senators.

Officials Will Fill Room.

Representatives and representatives-elect will assemble in the house chamber and march over to the senate chamber, entering at the south door. Meanwhile the diplomatic corps, represented in full regalia, will be assembling in the marble room, and when the party is complete, will be announced and escorted to places on the senate floor. All others entitled to admission to the floor will, meanwhile, be entering through the bronze door. When all this party has been seated, the supreme court will be announced and will be followed by retiring senators and representatives. Members of the cabinet and high officers of the army and navy will have seats reserved for them. Then President Wilson will be escorted to the chamber and seated directly in front of the vice president's desk. The committee on arrangements will take seats to his right and left. The vice president will be escorted into the chamber, and after the president pro tempore has called the senate to order in extraordinary session, the oath of office will be administered to the vice president, who then will deliver his inaugural address. Following that he will administer the oaths of office to the incoming senators.

Thirty senators take the oath of office. Sixteen have been re-elected. Of the sixteen new members, nine are republicans and seven are democrats. New senators to be sworn in are: Democrats—Jonah O. Wolcott, Delaware; Park Trammell, Florida; A. A. Jones, New Mexico; Peter Goetz, Idaho; Charles Kenneth D. McKellar, Tennessee; William F. King, Utah; John H. Kendrick, Wyoming. Republicans—Hiram W. Johnson, California; Harry S. New, Indiana; Frederick Hale, Maine; Joseph E. France, Maryland; Frank B. Kelogg, Minnesota; Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, New Jersey; William M. Calder, New York; William C. Knox, Pennsylvania; Howard Sutherland, West Virginia. Re-elected senators who take the oath are: Democrats—Henry F. Ashurst, Arizona; Charles A. Culberson, Texas; Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Nebraska; Henry L. Myers, Montana; Key Pittman, Nevada; Arthur Furness, Ohio; James A. Reed, Missouri; Claude A. Swanson, Virginia; John Sharp Williams, Mississippi. Republicans—Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin; Henry Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts; Porter J. McCumber, North Dakota; George P. McLean, Connecticut; Carroll R. Page, Vermont; Miles Poindexter, Washington; Charles E. Townsend, Michigan. Senators who retire with the end of the Sixty-fourth congress are: Democrats—Nathan P. Bryan, Florida; William E. Chilton, West Virginia; Charles F. Johnson, Maine; John W. Kern, Indiana; Luke Lea, Tennessee; Blair LeMay, Maryland; James E. Martine, New Jersey; James A. O'Gorman, New York. Republicans—Thomas B. Catron, New Mexico; Moses E. Clapp, Minnesota; Clarence D. Clark, Wyoming; Henry A. Du Pont, Delaware; Henry E. Lippitt, Rhode Island; George T. Oliver, Pennsylvania; John D. Works, California; George Sutherland, Utah.

Parade to the Plaza.

At the conclusion of the ceremony of swearing in new members the party marches out through the rotunda and to the inaugural stand erected on the plaza. This procession is arranged by custom in the following order: Sergeant-at-arms of the senate and sergeant-at-arms of the house. Marshal and clerk of the supreme court. Chief justice, associate justices and reporter of the supreme court. The president of the United States and chairman of the arrangements committee. Members of the arrangements committee. Ambassadors to the United States. Ministers to the United States. Former presidents. Former vice presidents. The vice president and secretary of the senate. The speaker and clerk of the house. Retiring members, members-elect and officers of the house. Members of the cabinet. Governors of states and territories. The ranking admiral of the navy and his staff. The chief of staff of the army and his staff. Officers of the army and navy, who, by name, have received the thanks of congress. All others who have been admitted to the senate floor. Those who have been admitted to the galleries.

Exercises at the Stand.

On the inaugural stand the president will take a seat with the chief justice on his right and the committee on arrangements and the sergeant-at-arms of the senate on his left. Former presidents, former vice presidents, associate justices of the supreme court, the vice president, secretary of the senate, senators and former senators will be ranged in long lines of seats to the right of the president. Just behind them will be seated retiring members of the house and members-elect. The diplomatic corps also will be seated to the president's right and to his left will be governors of states and territories, members of the cabinet, and the military party which accompanied the president from the senate chamber.

When the president takes the oath at the public ceremony the chief justice steps forward, Bible in hand, to administer the oath of office. He repeats, and the president, touching his lips to the Bible, repeats after him, the oath prescribed by the constitution: "I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

March to the White House.

The next thing on the program is the delivery of the president's address. At its conclusion most of the party except the president and vice president and their escorts return to the capitol, while the president and vice president, with their escorts, head the inaugural procession to the White House.

When the procession has reached the court of honor directly in front of the executive mansion it will halt while the president, vice president and their parties take places in the reviewing stand. Then the procession will pass along, disbanding a little further on. The steady stream of marchers often requires six and seven hours to pass the reviewing stand.

By the time the last of the marchers have passed it is dark and from the great green expanse at the foot of the Washington monument comes the sound of exploding bombs, which gives the signal for a display of fireworks. The president and his family generally see this spectacle from the south windows of the executive mansion, while thousands of people, grouped on the sloping mound which rises to the base of the monument, see it as if assembled in a natural amphitheater. It is always past midnight before the last of it is over.

ELKS WOULD SELL AND BUILD ANEW

Younger Members Plan to Dispose of Property On Fifteenth Street.

SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

Omaha Elks are discussing the proposition of selling their property on Fifteenth street and building a commodious and modern home in a quieter section of the city, near the business center and yet away from the noise of busy streets. The matter has not yet been presented to the organization in a formal manner, but the younger members are giving it serious consideration and within a month or so expect to have a definite plan to present.

Annual election of officers Friday evening resulted in the elevation of Thomas B. Dysart to the position of exalted ruler. Others elected were: Charles Docherty, leading knight; John Barrett, loyal knight; Judge Sears, lecturing knight; I. W. Miner, secretary; Charles L. Saunders, treasurer; John Killian, Tyler; Charles Weatue, member of executive committee.

Pratt Harwood, retiring exalted ruler, was elected as delegate to the grand lodge meeting at Boston next July. Raymond G. Young is alternate delegate.

Political Equality League Has Annual Meeting in June

In the absence of Mrs. F. D. Wead and Mrs. Fred Carey, president and first vice president of the Political Equality League, Mrs. Mary Dykeman Williams will serve as president, it was decided at a meeting Friday night at Mrs. S. B. Wilson's office. Plans for reorganizing the forces of the league for the next campaign and for raising this organization's share of the Douglas county apportionment to the state suffrage fund were discussed. The annual meeting will be held in June.

Prof. Fling Will Lecture Here on Phases of War

Dr. Frederick M. Fling, professor of European history at the university of Nebraska, will give the first of his series of lectures on "The Various Phases of the Great War," under the auspices of the Equal Franchise society, next Friday evening. These lectures, which are to be given in court room No. 1, fourth floor of the court house, are free to members of the society. The subject of the first lecture will be "Liege to the Marne," taking in the first phase of the war.

Two Power Ranges

Extravagant Performance With Economical Operation

NO longer need you forego—for reasons of economy—the pleasure of owning a big super-powerful car of the utmost class and distinction.

For now you may have power and speed in rare abundance without the expense it formerly took to operate the super-powerful cars in ordinary driving.

Two separate and distinct power ranges make the Peerless Eighty Horsepower Eight a car of "dual personality."

It has a total range of performance which hitherto has been possible only in totally different and opposite types of cars—both highly desirable but not previously to be had in combination.

A "Loafing" Range

In its "loafing" range the Peerless Eight gives you that quiet, smooth, flexible, distinctive performance which you would expect of a car of real class.

But in this "loafing" range it is operating on half rations—consuming fuel so sparingly as to put many a lesser powered six to shame, even many a four.

A "Sporting" Range

And when you want or need super-power or emergency speed, it's yours in this same Peerless Eight which serves your ordinary requirements with such grace, distinction and economy.

You have only to open the throttle wider to release the double poppets and give her full fuel rations and utterly change the whole character of your car.

For in her "sporting" range she is a brute of a car capable of a brush with any contender no matter what its class.

See us at once and let us show you how measurably two power ranges increase the pleasure of driving yet meet the requirements of economy.
