ADDRESS TO TEACHERS

"American institutions have been subjected to strains and stresses in the last two years, which they have never known before. The world has been asking whether there is an American nation, or only a congeries of racial elements inhabiting these United States, Even some of our people have felt doubts on the subject. This has set us to examining with ritical care our American institu-itons. As a result of this examina-tion all have agreed that if we are successfully to operate the melting pot of the races, the schools are the laboratories in which the work must be done.

Those were words uttered by Ar-thur R. Wells, chairman of the teach-ers' committee of the Board of Edu-cation, addressing the teachers' forum cation, addressing the teachers' forum yesterday afternoon in the city council chamber.

Continuing, Mr. Wells said: "Whether our cit/zens from Europe are able to forget their former allegiance or not, we may still hope that those of the second and succeeding generations, who pass through our public schools may have their habits of thinking and living refined and purified, the dross of old world custom cast aside and forgotten, and their lives fused into a common American whole. Obviously, therefore, the primary purpose of maintaining our public stream. mary purpose of maintaining our public school system is to make good American citizens. There is no place in the mind of any loyal American for any divided allegiance.

"Every citizen must learn to take an intelligent part in local affairs, to know his own mind and exercise his own choice, to understand and vote with an eye single to the good of our common country on the great issues that are decided by the ballot box. Unless the children acquire these ideas from their books, their instruction, and the very atmosphere they breathe in our public schools, the process of fusion will never be complete. For their encouragement our fellow citzens, old and young, of foreign birth and antecedents, must be made to understand that Americanism is not wholly a matter of birth and inheritance, but of thinking and living.
