Prof. Fling a Social Lion. Dr. Frederick Morrow Fling's an-mual visits to Omaha to lecture on behalf of the Equal Franchise so-cises who delight in having this bril-liant man and gifted conversationalist as honor guest at their tables. In past years, as this year, the requests ior dinner engagements have quite exceeded Dr. Fling's time, and so many are disapointed. The fling is a member of that small reclusive club of Lincoln men called The Round Table, which might be fought a miniature of the famous originon club. At this club he has been subjected to many grillings and ayoung son in his household the ta-bies have been turned against him sorticularly since the advent of a-bies have been turned against him sortical cristics. this evening. The Original Cooking club mem-bers who are still in the city were en-tertained at luncheon by Mrs. George Bernhard Prinz. Miss Halcyon Cotton and Miss Marjorie Beckett entertained at an informal kensington and kitchen shower at the home of the former this afternoon for Miss Harriet Cop-ley. Perhaps you think that is not an event of enough importance to be recorded in the public prints. But you err, ah, you err grievously. There are hundreds of people to whom this announcement will have far more interest than the day's news of the European war. Yes, indeed. For you must know that my locks have been strangers to the shears for well nigh six months. Exactly 249,-867 jokes, jests and quips have been hurled at me because of them and 1,247,869 people have looked their dis-approval at me in the streets and pubpproval at me in the streets and pub-

approval at me in the streets and pub-lic places of the city. So you see this is an important event and should be recorded in the paper. It was just 10:04 a. m. when I walked firmly into the tonsorial par-lors conducted by Mr. Otto Meyer in the Bae building.

Could Stuff a Mattress. "Get out an extra," shouted another

Get out an extra, shouled another wit. A third came up and solemnly re-quested the privilege of shaking hands with me. A fourth declared that he wanted to get a little of the shearing, just enough to stuff a mattress. And a fifth ventured the opinion that the city improvement clubs had prevailed on me to take this step, so important to the city's well-being. The news spread to the business of-fice and "all the lit-le girls going on their way to lunch met me and greeted me with a smile." I really think these girls ought to treat me with more respect. Office boys who heard the news came out and peeked around the cor-ner, looking guilty and hastening ner, looking guilty and hastening away when I spied them. I am happy to be able to announce that moving pictures were taken of the event and will be shown at all leading theaters next week. Buy for a Warehouse

No woman need have unsightly hands if she gives them a little at-tention. They need not be small and petite, nor yet perfect in shape, but scrupu-lously clean, and with a little extra to the eye and a joy and beauty to the owner as well as to the observer. Diskussion of the observer. the owner as well as to the observer.

Dishwater is not such a menace to the owner as well as to the observer. It certainly is a pleasure to watch the manipulations of a refined lily-white hand. Not only does it add materially to the whole appearance, but insures a certain amount of poise and self-confidence. If we do not have sufficient self-re-ter to think it is. If one is care-well as softening qualities. Through cleanliness, above all and self confidence. If we do not have sufficient self-re-tagect to attend to all the minor de-tails of our person we cannot demand the respect from strangers. Many a woman, no doubt, will say "How can I have beautiful hands when I am compelled to do all my own housework?" There, madam, that is the secret, and therein lies the merit, to possess beauty in spite of work. Housework is not as injurious to the skin of the hands is very sensitive, a pair of loose gloves should be slipped over them when perform-ing any particular menial tasks and above all things never permit any foreign matter to eat its way through the pores of the skin.
