When movement finally did start prices paid were, on paper, a little better than yeaserday, but allowing for the fact that the fleetes of the majority of today's offerings were not very set, while most of yesterday's run was soaked, traders called today's market to no case more than strady, and considered most of the sales 10 6 Lie lower. Good handy Mexican insules that brought $14.40 were similar to those that sold for a dine less yesterday, but they were comparatively giv. Lighter Mexicans that were not so well finished landed at $14.35, and other stiff sold on down, according to quality and weight, $14.10 huying some westerns. A number of traders expressed the belief that choice light Mexicans would still offing $14.50. At best it was a slow trade, and even at noon not everything had been charred.

The only sheep that came in were direct, nothing of consequence in the mature class showing up, Builk of the lambs offerings were in killing fiesh, and there sermey little liktheed that anything would go for shearing, while fectors were entirely lack-ling.

The threatened railroad strike is a source of much uneasiness to the grain trade and while the strike would probably not be of long duration the special residual trade and while the strike would probably not be of long duration the general feeling is that it would be a bearish factor as long as it lasts. The situation today was decidely bearish and while wheat openel steady seround yesterday closing prices, a heavy selling pressure by shorts uson forced a sharp break in wheat which was followed by price losses in both corn and oats. The local trade was not very active and most of the local business was done by the local erowd in May wheat and May corn. The closing price on May wheat was about to lower corn closed at a 14x declin, and May oats closed about 14x lower.
