ment of much Lenten solemnity during the last week.
Suffs Get Some Attention.

The suffragists among us have been attracting to themselves considerable attention during the last few days in spite of revolutions in Russia and railroad strikes in our own fair land. Their school, together with the lecture given by Prof. F. M. Fling on Friday evening, have been the high points of last week, which naturally brought dinners and luncheons and teas in their wake, and this week the Political Equality League will give a card party at the Blackstone on Monday afternoon. Our fertile brain wonders whether these suffragists will buy all Mrs. Shuler's decks of suffrage cards in her suffrage kit to use on the occasion. One of the suffragists, a well known woman (you may guess her name), said, "If the people come to Prof. Fling's lecture they will see what really nice persons we are. We are not freaks and frumps!" The delightful parties which have been given for the visiting lecturers and the card party at the Blackstone tomorrow will serve as ample proof that the ranks of Omaha suffragists are not to be despised in the social world.

One funny thing we wish to confide in you before we close. It is rather "suffragistic" in character, that's why it comes to our mind. Ignorance may speaking, he trotted right off as fast as he could, back to the Henry home, though it was many blocks away.

What Society Has in Prospect.
Hollister Review will give a card party Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Turnbull.
Omaha Alumni chapter of Sigma Nu will hold its annual banquet Saturday evening at the Fontenelle. Covers will be laid for seventy-five. Men from Nebraska and Iowa and the entire active chapter of the University of Nebraska, including about thirty men, are expected to be present. No formal toast list will detract from the jolly spirit of this fraternal affair. The committee in charge is composed of Messrs. William L. Randall, V. R. Brown and E. J. Krahulik.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Fell are

Mrs. Elwood Bailey, who are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Philippi, will be guests of the club.

The Novelty Dancing club will give its next dancing party March 30 at Harte hall.

Easter Plans Maturing.
Mrs. Walter Page and her daughter, Mrs. John Trinder, are going east about the first of April to be with Richard Page in New York during his Easter vacation from Lawrenceville. Mrs. Trinder will also visit her husband's family in Philadelphia.
Miss Marion Weller, who went to Chicago two weeks ago to visit friends, will accompany her sister, Miss Dorothy Weller, to visit their old school, St. Mary's, at Knoxville, Ill., for the Easter holidays. Miss

Mrs. E. C. Henry and Caesar are good friends and inseparable companions. Mrs. Henry sells automobile trucks and manages a large hospital with the same grace and facility with which she presided at a large social function at the Hotel Fontenelle, the recent birthday dinner-dance of the Rotary club, of which her husband, Dr. E. C. Henry, is president.

BEFORE us on the motley wall, which might have given Mr. Frank Alvah Parsons, that esthetic gentleman, particular fits, is a poster of the now famous Apolita Galli-Curci. We fail to see the Mona Lisa smile upon her face, as some have done, but there is some baffling quality which speaks of unknown hardships borne calmly which have changed her face to a mask to hide from the curious world the steps leading up to her discovery and miraculous success in Chicago this winter. The last century dress which is her costume, the last century style of curls over the ear, accentuate the impression of aloofness which her likeness gives.

All of this goes to show that appearances are very deceiving, for we have it on authority that Mme. Galli-Curci has had a very untroubled and tranquil career as a musician, and is happily married to an artist of note whose paintings are soon to be exhibited in Chicago. She is known as the legitimate successor to Adelina Patti, not only in musical renown, but in ancestry, for they are both descended from the same stock, a mixture of Spanish and Italian blood.

Probably it is this mysterious quality of her face and her sudden rise to popularity which is drawing the crowds to hear her not only in Omaha, where she, by good fortune, appears before any eastern engagements begin, but in Chicago, the place of her debut. Tuesday Morning Musical club members are responsible for this great good fortune to Omaha music lovers. They will present the Italian madame as the last number of their outside concert programs for this season. Later a program of student numbers will come to conclude a year of brilliant and successful concerts.

Weddings of Interest Impend.
Two weddings of exceeding great interest to you and to us will take place this week. One is the marriage of much-feted Miss Harriet Copley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Copley, to Mr. Earl Burket, which will be solemnized Wednesday evening, the other the nuptials of pretty, musical Miss Jessie Neale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Neale, to Mr. Ralph Weirich, which will follow the first by one day.

In speaking of weddings our thoughts turn to the army wedding which will take place probably in the fall, when Miss Edith Russell of Ann Arbor, Mich., daughter of the late Prof. A. C. Russell, biologist of note and Alaskan explorer, and Mrs. Russell, will wed Mr. John Singleton Switzer, son of Mrs. J. S. Switzer of Fort Crook. The young soldier graduated last year from Ann Arbor, where he met his bride-to-be, and is at present at Fort Leavenworth until the first of April, when he will go to Brownsville with the Fourth infantry, his father's old regiment. His fiancée is a modest, pretty brunette. She attended school at St. Mary's, Knoxville, Ill. Mr. Switzer is a member of the Zeta Phi fraternity.

Some Are Observing Lent.
Theater parties are conveniently enervating the mid-Lenten season. Last Thursday Mr. Carême marked the middle of this time of fasting and prayer. In general it has been strictly observed and one charming bride even carried her observance to the point of abstinence from all pre-nuptial affairs. The visit of Mrs. Perry Allen of New York to her mother, Mrs. William G. Sloan, at the Colonial, has been the occasion for the most frequent entertaining that any popular visitor has received for "quite a spell." Other popular visitors have served as an excuse for an abandon-grin at you from it, but here goes! Do you know that wives of the city are not listed in the city directory. Widows and misses and men and buildings are, but the poor married woman is taboo!

Society Woman in Business Role.
Osato snapped Mrs. E. C. Henry in a rare moment—that of her "reversion to type," let us call it, for this charming woman, mistress of all the social graces, is now too busy selling motor trucks and running a hospital to have many leisure moments like this.

Any one of three occupations would be sufficient to keep the average woman busy, but Mrs. Henry can manage all three. Running Lord Lester hospital is very interesting and Mrs. Henry enjoys it, especially as the institution is at the service of the government, if ever the necessity arises. Mrs. Henry, too, is personally interested in the nurses, of whom there are forty-five, and she resents all attacks such as Rev. Savidge made upon them recently as unjust and unworthy, coming from a minister.

But it is the automobile game which fascinates Mrs. Henry the most. It's selling trucks, not just motors, she glories in. And here is the queer part of it—a woman's business point of view: "I like to sell trucks because it saves horses the abuse of heavy loads. Every time I see a truck heavily laden, I am thankful a horse is saved from pulling that load," she says.

Uni-Students Take Over Paper.
The biggest social affair of the year at the University of Omaha was given by the freshman class Friday evening in the gymnasium of the school, when about 300 were present. The athletic building was artistically decorated. Through the center ran a string of lights and Chinese lanterns from which extended streamers on either side. At the extreme end of each streamer was placed a pennant and intermingled with these were fancy drawings of school life.
The wearers of the green caps by far out-classed all previous precedents when it came to choosing real interesting games. The first game was a mixer affair. Each student was given a bag of candy beans. If anyone succeeded in making anyone else answer a question he was entitled to a bean. In this game the coeds played on the boys' vanity and won many a sweet bean. They would say, "Have you met my friend," and the boy would fall invariably. The boys reciprocated by inquiring about the latest spring headgears for girls.

The next game played was called "Running a newspaper." This paper had eleven departments and the guests were equally divided into that number of groups. Each group was given about half an hour to edit its section and then they were read aloud. Some of the contents were very amusing. The news department had it that Ford is now making portable meat grinders; the society editors announced that one of the students had engaged himself to the dormitory cook; the fashion hints said that, although the earliest fashions started with the fig leaf, the present styles would have to be classified as antediluvian; the weather forecaster prognosticated a violent brain storm preceded by flunking notices; the advertising department said, "Why be ignorant; come to the University of Omaha; no brainless need apply; a complete course offered in Chinese history"; the editorial offered to reduce the high cost of living by suggesting that we eat less; in the question box was found the following: "How far can a cat spit?" Answer: (Continued on Page Two, Column One.)
