LYNCH-CLARK ROW UP TO THE JUDGES

in Celebrated Court House Imbroglio.

Judges of the district court Satur-Lynch and Sheriff Clark.

The bone of contention in the fight is a job paying less than $100 a month in which the judges had to be called in to say whether Lynch's man or a Clark employe was entitled to rattle the levers in a "two-by-four" ele-

Crowd to Witness.

The court room was crowded with judges, commissioners, the sheriff and his deputies, engineers, firemen, jani-tors, the county attorney, elevator operators, lawyers galore and other operators, lawyers galore and other interested courthousers.

Adherents of the Lynch crowd glared at the sheriff's deputies—and the latter glared back.

But there were no hostilities. The presence of the judges seemingly put a "peace dove" angle to the hearing. County Attorney Magney suggested that the issue in the case was whether the commissioners or the sheriff had the right to appoint an elevator operthe right to appoint an elevator oper-ator. He said that the law gives the county board this right. One of the sheriff's attorneys made a countersuggestion that maybe the issue was whether the sheriff was to run his own office or let someone else run it for him

Commissioner Lynch told the judges that he had given his man strict orders to "live up to the rules."

Sheriff's deputies told of repeatedly signaling for the elevator whose conductor, they asserted, didn't answer their signals and the prisoners finally had to be "walked" to the court room.

The judges took the case under advisement for a decision this week.

When the Interstate Commerce commission gave the railroad permission to charge the increased rate during the last winter the permission was for a limited period of time. That permission expires May I, and it is definitely understood that the roads are preparing to ask the commission to extend that permission.

The rate of demurrage now in effect under this permission is $1 per car for the first day it is held after the expiration of free time, $2 for the second day, $3 for the third day, and $5 for every day thereafter.

This interstate demurrage increase was allowed by the Interstate Commerce commission as a kind of emergency measure, designed to help relieve the car-shortage situation. It was thought that the holding of cars by the shippers long after they should normally have been expected to be unloaded was one of the causes of the car shortage. It was hoped that the increased demurrage charge would furnish an incentive to shipers to unload cars quickly and put them at the disposal of the railroads again. How much this may have done toward relieving the pressure no one can say, but the fact remains that the car-shortage condition was not noticeably relieved after the permission to extend the permission that the holding of cars shought that the holding of cars who the permission to extend the permission to extend the permission to extend the permission that the permission that the holding of cars shought that the holding of the permission that the permissi
