Farnam Street Bargain

Elegant 8-room, all modern home, well arranged and finished, nearly new furnace, best of plumbing. House is not new, seither is it one of the ancient models. The good repair and general condition makes it as good if not better than many of the new showy houses; good garage at rear of lot; very choice $9-fost south front lot, on Farnam St.

To build this house today would cos at least $5,000. The lot, if vacant, would surely be a big bargain at $2,000.

To settle an estate this property must be sold within the next few days. We are authorized to quote a price of $1.500 for this property. The house Nn. is $220 Farnam St. Look at it from the outside, but don't bother the tenant. Call us for au appointment to see the inside and we will submit yeur best offer. Opportunities like this are few and far between. Take advantage of this one. Another may never present itself.

GREEDY GAMBLERS MAKE FOOD SPOIL

Seven Carloads of Beans Worth $37,500 to Be Dumped Because of Mildew.

HELD FOR HIGH PRICE

While grocers are asking 15 cents a pound for navy beans and the public is wondering why this food staple has advanced over 100 per cent in price within a few months, government investigators and state food inspectors are in Omaha preparing to destroy seven carloads, or $37,500 worth.

Nearly 250,000 pounds of beans, rep-Acarry 250,000 pounds of beans, representing six carloads, discovered in several Omaha warchouses last week, have become mildewed and rotten, while the owners, alleged food gamblers, held out for higher prices.

Chief Inspector E. C. Kemble of the state food commission, who made the discovers, has been at work making discovery, has been at work making tests of the beam with State Chem-iat W. S. Frisbee. Their probe has satisfied them that the stuff is not only unfit for food, but for seed purposes as well, and they will commence legal action at once libeling the entire cache to prevent it from being Owner's Identity a Mystery.

Who owns the beans appears to be mystery. Most of the lot came a mystery. Most of the lot came here from West Hammond, Ind., sev-eral months ago, sacked and tagged, it is said, but the consignee's name, according to Mr. Kemble, is conspic-tious by its absence.

James R. Garner and William H. Hartigan, Chicago and Kansas City federal food inspectors, are here also working on the case and it is under-stood that they will have complaints ready to file in the matter within a ready to file in the matter within a day or so.

The prosecution to be instigated by Kemble will be for the purpose of stopping the owners should they attempt to market the stuff while the federal officers are working to uncover what appears to be a gigantic food conspiracy. They have already made the rounds of all warehouses and other places where food could be stored and it is understood that when they get ready to file complaints in the bean case they will have other equally sensutional disclosures to make.

closures to make.

One official declares that Omaha and Kansas City appear to be the storehouses of the speculators, who hold back huge amounts of stuff and thus force prices up to the limit.

Demand for Paint Brushes Shows the Clean-Up Interest

The De Voe Paint company, with headquarters in Chicago, is contem-plating the establishment of a local distributing branch in Omaha. The company has a large branch at Kan-distributing branch in Omaha. Incompany has a large branch at Kansas City, which covers this section, but is now desirous of dividing the Kansas City territory and establishing a branch in Omah. If this company locates in Omaha it will mean that practically every large paint and varnish house in the United States is represented in Omaha.

The paint business, which is largely indicative of building activities in contemplation throughout the territory served by Omaha, is showing a remarkable spurt this spring. Some of the companies report as much as a 60 per cent increase for the first few months over the corresponding months of last year. Cleanup-and-paint-up campaigns are on or immediately contemplated in many sections, and this is causing an increased demand along with the general spring demand occasioned by a large building program.

POET INDICTS GROH FOR BEING MODEST

Unidentified Child of the Muses Free-Verses About The Bee and Contents.

HE SUSPECTS 'TIS A WOMAN

By A. R. GROH.

Today, folks, we shall lave our souls in beautiful poetry. Oh, don't you just love po'ms? This one came to me in all its freshness and beauty through the prosaic channels of the well-known United States mails. It is "free verse." Here is what he (or she) wrote; here's the very sote:

"DINNER, LA VERS LIBRE. Waiter. In the jungles of the kitchen, With my order, Bring me a Bec, The evening edition. Here's a quarter. I'm feeling liberal tonight,

Besides The H. C. of L. demands it I'll look and sec. First, What father's doin :. What Groh has written,

(He's clever but a bit too modest)

What sports a going. What notes Wilson has penned. My dinner. And while yet there's time, I'll kill a Pilsner Myself, M-m-m-mum, that's good. I guess I'll move to Kansas City, May, The first. Gee. That beeisteak's tender.

"Author's Note.—The above, my dear Groh (how do you pronounce it? Grow or Grau?) is not a made-in-Germany product, but a maid-en-effort product, and is offered for your criticism in response to your recent solicitation that you would take on anything, foolish or wise, light or heavy, blond or brunette, and weigh it in the balance. Oh, boy, I am sandwiched between chills of despair and perspiration of hope on the out-come of your decision. I await. "HOPEFUL."

Here Is Modesty. Very lovely, Hopeful. Very snoo-doofulous. The only improvement I could suggest, if I might make so bold, would be to transpose the fifth and seventh lines of the second verse. What do you think? Also, you might insert the word "extremely or "superlatively" before the word "elever."

My guess is that you are of the "clever."

My guess is that you are of the masculine persuasion. You see, Watson, if he were—if she were—well, then, if this person were a woman she would not be likely to "kill a Pilsner" in a cafe. Furthermore, she would not be likely to give a quarter for a copy of The Bee when the same may be secured at a much smaller-outlay. Women don't do such things.

Hoping, my dear Hopeful, that I haven't kept you in your uncomfortably sandwiched position too long, I beg to remain, y'r obed't serv't.

Railroads Holds Jobs Open For Employes Who Enlist

Information has gone out from local railroad headquarters to the effect that all men who desire to enlist will be granted leave of absence and that their old places, or better ones, will be in waiting for them upon their return. This rule will apply to men employed in all classes of work. Today ten men from the Union Pacific and eight from the Burlington offices and shops gave up their posi-tions and applied to enlist.
