

OMAHANS ENJOYING FARM LIFE IN CITY

Thrifty Folks Rush From Office to Gardens Which Yield Profit and Pleasure.

MAKING A DOLLAR ELASTIC

By A. R. GROH.
Between the city of Omaha and the country surrounding it there is a large strip that partakes equally of the qualities of both city and country. Let's go out to the end of the Ames avenue car line. Here we are in the city-country. The rolling hills are dotted with houses. Each home has plenty of ground around it. Some are miniature farms with little barns, chicken houses, chicken yards, gardens and even little fields. It is a "homey," healthful, thrifty part of the city.
You can just feel that "father" who lives out here, hurries home as fast as possible from work, eats his supper and then hastens eagerly out to work till dark, spading up the garden, raking, planting, tinkering around, setting hens or building a pen for the little chicks that are expected out as soon as that Plymouth Rock hen comes off the nest.

Reaping the Dollar.
Industry and thrift are the prevailing notes. These are home builders. They may not have large incomes, but a dollar here has a big buying power.

What do they care how high potatoes are! They raise them themselves. And the fruit trees in their yards provide cherries and apples and peaches which "mother" preserves and stores in the cellar against the winter time. Grapes, too. There are plenty of grape vines. And when they want a chicken they don't have to consult the butcher; they just go out to the chicken roost at night (their own chicken roost, y'understand) and pick a fat pullet out and lead it to slaughter.

This spring afternoon, while we are wandering around this city-country we are obliged with the clang of street car bells. A woman in a blue gingham dress is planting seeds in a garden. An old man, white-bearded and in his shirt sleeves, is chopping wood. Another man is plowing up a little patch of land adjoining his house. He nods to us in the cordial country manner.

A woman in one yard gathers in the "wash" from the line and then goes over to a pen of young chicks recently hatched and gives them water and food. The sound of children's voices comes from the handsome Central Park school where "recess" has just started. A black dog, who has been sleeping by the open front door of a cottage rises and barks at us and wags his tail as we pass.

Though there aren't many garages in the city-country you can see that the people have all the comforts of life. The storm doors are still on and many screened-in porches tell of summer comfort.
There are lawn swings, too, and flower boxes, painted green, and placed usually on the railing of the porch. Vines climb up trellises at the porch sides. Flower beds have borders of bottles with the necks stuck in the ground. Here is one place with an old-fashioned well and old, oaken bucket.

A big brindle dog is lying full length on the lawn of a pretty home, taking a sun bath. A roan calf is drowsing in a pen in the back yard. There is a galvanized iron tub, set to catch rain water for washing purposes.
You can just feel that these homes are paid for or being paid for systematically by their thrifty inhabitants and that this is a region of quiet contentment.

"Come On Over, See My Corn Fall Off!"

"I Put 2 Drops of 'Gets-It' On Last Night—Now Watch—"

"See—all you have to do is to use your two fingers and lift the corn right off. That's the way 'Gets-It' always works. You just put on about 2 drops. Then the corn not only shrivels, but loosens from the toe, without affecting the surrounding flesh in the least. Why, it's almost a pleasure to have corns and see how 'Gets-It' gets them off in a hurry and without the least pain. I can wear tight shoes, dance and walk as though I never had corns."

"Gets-It" makes the use of too-irritating salves, bandages, tins, plasters and other things not only foolish but unnecessary. Use this wonderful discovery, "Gets-It," for any soft or hard corn or callus. It is the new, simple, easy, quick way, and it never fails. You'll never have to cut a corn again with knives or scissors and run chances of blood poison. Try "Gets-It" tonight.

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.
Sold in Omaha and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Sherman & McConnell Drug Co. Stores.

OMAHA STILL IS VICTIM OF R. R. RATE

Manager McVann Pleads in Vain for Adjustment of Discriminatory Tariffs.

MEN HERE THREATEN SUIT

Although the Western Passenger association has been in session in Chicago for over a week, the Commercial club of Omaha has had no word of a contemplated readjustment of tourist passenger rates for eastern points as between Kansas City and Omaha.
The club has for a year worked diligently with the railroad people in the hope that the discrimination in favor of Kansas City in this respect might be eliminated. Omahans were given to understand that the matter would be taken up at the conference of the Western Passenger association which is now going on in Chicago.

E. J. McVann, manager of the traffic bureau of the Commercial club, was in Chicago at this conference during the early part of the week, but it is understood here that he got no assurance whatever that the matter would be looked after at this time.

Omaha's Plight

Kansas City in the matter of tourist passenger rates, east, has the advantage over Omaha of $6.10 on points east of Chicago in cases where the distance is about equal as between Kansas City and Omaha. So wide is

Fred Behm Again in Omaha; Greets Old Friends

Back from the Soldiers' home in California and looking well, John F. Behm is greeting his friends on the street.
"It's a beautiful place," said he, "but I just couldn't stand it out there seeing the flag at half-mast almost all the time. You know, I am one of just four survivors of the original First Nebraska, enlisted in 1861. The other three are Adolph Burmeister, now living at Benson, and Tom Majors and his brother, Wilson Majors, down at Peru."
