British Censors Reject Films on Various Grounds

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)
London, April 18.—The British Board of Film Censors last year rejected 500 out of 5,300 films submitted to them for inspection. Among the grounds for the rejection of films are the following:
Impersonation of the king; scenes holding up the king's uniform to conterms.

Incidents tending to disparage England's allies or to disturb friendly relations with them.

Propaganda films of German origin; incidents calculated to afford information to the enemy; scenes depicting too realistic horrors of warfare.

Irreverent treatment of death; ma-terialization of the conventional figure of Christ.

References to controversial or international politics; scenes tending to disparage public characters and to create public alarm; antagonistic relations of capital and labor.

Nude figures; scenes purporting to illustrate "night life;" vampire women; the drug habit; white slave traffic; excessively passionate love scenes.

Using Codfish Skins

For Binding Books For Binding Books

Georgeondence of the Associated Press.)

Bremen, April 18.—A bookbinder here is using codfish skin as a substitute for leather in bookbindings. The new material is said to give excellent results, and it has many advantages over shark skin, which has frequently been used for de luxe bindings. The strength and durability of the new material have been tested and approved by the imperial testing office. It is easy to work, literally untearable and has the beautiful markings of a snakeskin.
