

GRAHAM FLOUR HELP IN BREAD PROBLEM

Uses All of the Wheat Instead of but Seventy Per Cent, as Does the White.

CHANCE TO HELP COUNTRY

By A. R. GROH.
Say "graham flour" to the grocer next time you buy flour. Tell him you don't want that white stuff that utilizes only 70 per cent of the wheat and wastes the other 30 per cent.
Thus you can help your country, for graham flour utilizes 100 per cent of the wheat. You can also help yourself, for graham flour is more nutritious than white flour.
I got considerably "het up" when I saw an article stating that white flour utilizes only 70 per cent of the wheat. That's no way to conceive our wheat crop, I sez to myself.
So I put on my hat and raincoat and rubbers and went up to the Updike mill on north Sixteenth street, where I met Ben L. Yohe, the superintendent. I put the proposition up to him.
"That's true," he said, as he took out a pencil and did a little figuring on the front of a "Northwestern Miller."

Does Some Figuring.

"It takes four and a half bushels of wheat to make a barrel of flour," he said. "In other words, it takes 270 pounds of wheat to make 196 pounds of flour."
"Whole wheat flour, on the other hand, contains every part of the wheat, doesn't it?" I asked.
"Whole wheat flour may contain anything," said Mr. Yohe. "Sometimes they take ordinary flour and mix in middlings and bran and make what they call whole wheat flour. If people want to use flour that contains all the wheat, they should use graham flour."
"That is made out of all the wheat?" I asked to make sure.
"Every bit of the wheat is used in making graham flour," he said.
"Well, why on earth don't people eat that?" I exclaimed. "It tastes just as good or better than the white bread and everybody knows it's more nutritious and better for your health. And that way we would utilize our wheat crop 100 per cent instead of 70 per cent."
"Well," said the miller. "The only reason is that many people prefer a very white color in bread. For myself, I don't. I think a nice brown is a much more appetizing color."
"Agrees With the Miller."
"Here, too," said I fervently.
"Another reason is that graham flour won't always keep as well in summer as white."
"This, however, is not a strong objection. With reasonable care it will keep all right."
"The government ought to pass a law compelling everybody to use graham flour," I declared.
"Don't you agree with me, gentle reader? Don't you think we ought to do it even without a law?"
Experiments show that white bread alone will not sustain life for long. Bread made from the whole wheat will. From white flour the vitamins, phosphates and other mineral salts, much of the proteins, mes' of the fats and a good deal of the carbohydrates are lost out. The body needs these.
The stores don't have much graham flour on hand. But when the housewives begin demanding it they'll get it soon enough. It's all ready in the mills.
Use it and you'll help your country and yourself. Don't forget. Say "graham flour" to the grocer man. And say "graham bread" to the baker man.

MOTHER FIGHTS TO FEED BABIES

Mrs. Fannie Kauth Tells Pitiful Story in Judge Madden's Court of Struggles.

SMALL WAGES IN LAUNDRY

The story of a young mother's fight to feed her two children on the meager pittance she was able to earn in a laundry, was told to Police Judge Madden Saturday by Mrs. Fannie Kauth, 24 years old, 404 North Twenty-fourth street.
Mrs. Kauth was testifying against her former husband, Conrad Kauth, who is living with his mother at 2021 Bancroft street. He was arraigned on the charge of failure to pay alimony.
Mr. and Mrs. Kauth were divorced a year ago. The court then, she said, ordered him to pay $25 a month for the support of the two children, Gertrude, aged 7, and Alice, aged 5.
"I was married eight years ago," Mrs. Kauth said, "when I was only 16 years old. When my two babies came I thought I was the happiest woman in the world. I was too happy, I guess. Soon my troubles started. Mr. Kauth left me and I got a divorce on the grounds of desertion.
"The real trouble came later. I

ELECTRICAL MEN ALLEGE COMBINE

Have Price Lists Which Show the Discrimination Being Practiced Here.

SMALL CONTRACTOR VICTIM

The half dozen of the smaller electrical contractors who are preparing to start suit against the wholesale electrical supplies companies on a "combination in restraint of trade" charge have in their possession price lists of the accused companies showing the discrimination that is being made against the smaller contractors because they are employing union labor.
Ordinarily the contractor is given a 40 per cent reduction below list price by the wholesaler, and the building owners are given a 25 per cent reduction below list price.
Now however, D. L. Cahill of the Cahill Electric company, contractors, has made a table of comparative prices, showing how the Western Electric company quoted them to him and how the same company quoted them to a certain building owner.

Here are the figures:

To Small Contractor	To Building Owner
1 1/2-inch L. R. Conduit	$ 1.27	$ 1.03
One hundred feet pipe, 1 1/2-inch	26.00	24.00
1 1/2-inch cable	1.20	.85
1 1/2-inch lock nuts	.15	.07 1/2
1 1/2-inch bushings	.25	.12 1/2
1-inch lock nuts	.08	.02
1 1/2-inch straps (cor. 1/2)	.50	.20

While the strike continues in Omaha and while the wholesale electrical supply houses are discriminating in prices against the few who are keeping their men at work and paying union wages, outside companies are coming in and getting much of the work. A Kansas City firm has recently put eight men to work on the installation of motors in the Updike elevator building at Council Bluffs. Outside companies are also working on some jobs in Omaha doing work that was formerly done by local men.
Electrical workers who were on strike for some weeks here are gradually sitting out and going to work on jobs in Council Bluffs and other nearby cities where the scale is being paid or are going to work for out-of-town companies which have come in here and taken jobs. Committee Courtwright of the electrical workers' grievance committee has himself gone to Council Bluffs and accepted a job from the Kansas City firm on the Updike job at the union scale.

Norfolk Man May Succeed Bucholz At Omaha National

C. E. Burnham, president of the Norfolk National bank, Norfolk, Neb., and director of the Federal Reserve bank of this district, is said to be the leading candidate for vice president of the Omaha National bank to succeed the late W. H. Bucholz.

President Joseph Millard of the Omaha National bank refuses to divulge the names of any bankers who are being considered for the place, but he admitted the directors have in view several men whom they are considering at this time. He said an announcement would probably be made the early part of next week.

From other sources, however, it is learned that President Burnham of the Norfolk National is the leading candidate.
