H. S. LADS EAGER TO DO BIT ON FARM

Ten Ask Principal Masters for Credits That They May Respond to the Call.

TWENTY HAD GONE BEFORE

Twenty Central High school boys have responded to the call of the farms and ten more this morning asked Principal Masters for allowance for their credits for the remainder of the school year.

Others have gone from South High and Commercial High schools. The Board of Education adopted a ruling which gives extended credits to all high school boys who leave to engage in agricultural work and whose standings are satisfactory.

"We are willing to co-operate in this movement in any way we can.
I believe the parents and boys generally understand the situation," said Principal Masters.

Buckingham Takes Lead.

Everett Buckingham of the Union Stock Yards company is taking a keen interest in the work of helping to alleviate the farm labor situation and he takes the position that hundreds of young men from high schools, colleges and universities could be enlisted in the food conservation movement. As member of the governor's committee in charge of the conservation week to be held at the Auditorium beginning Tuesday, May 22, he will arrange for a meeting on one of the days to impress the young men as to the needs of the hour and of the ways in which they may prove their patriotism.

Plenty of Work.

"There is much farm work which these boys and young men can do on the farms of the state. They may not be able to take hold of the skilled forms of work, but there are many places ready for them, and there are many places they could fill acceptably," said Mr. Buckingham. "All that is necessary is for the boys to show a desire to make themselves useful."

The Union Stock Yards company already maintains a farm labor bureau for skilled workers, which is being operated in connection with the co-operative free employment bureau in the court house. It is now proposed to extend this work to include high school boys.

An effort will be made to have an agricultural expert address the boys at the three public high schools. E.
Z. Russell, editor of the Twentieth Century Farmer, has volunteered for such service.

Woman Fears Saloons

Are All Open Once More

On Sunday a man stood in the entrance of a near-beer parlor, formerly a saloon, at Twenty-fourth and Leavenworth streets, holding in his hand a glass of heavier-than-air liquid refreshment.

A woman riding on a street car with her husband noticed the man, whereupon she remarked to her male escort:

"My God, Kenneth, the saloons are open again!"

Sergeant Keeps Woman From Drinking Poison

At 3:30 a. m. Sergeant Dillon knocked a bottle of carbolic acid from the hand of Mrs. Viola Grim of 2608 Pierce street, just as she was about to drink the poison.

The woman accosted the sergeant near the police station and asked to be directed to the police office. While giving Mrs. Grim the information Dillon observed her movements.

Mrs. Grim is being held at police headquarters. It is believed she has a cerebral ailment. She is 55 years of age.
