Red Cross Work and Golf Links Make Social Calendar a Blank

SOME call this the between-seasons time, others attribute the social dullness to Red Cross work, but some just to golf. Our desk calendar bears the picture of a little blond-haired, bare-footed cherub blowing his pipes while two fleecy lambskins trisk down the green hill. Above in the blue sky float big white clouds. Such a restful and refreshing scene the Country club presented Monday when the Omaha Woman's Golf association met for their opening play of the season. The club house was practically deserted, but the velvety green links were dotted with spots of color.

Out Doors Lures the Society Folks

The call of the outdoors will not reach its full strength until all the country clubs have opened their doors for the summer. At a meeting this week it was decided that the Field club opening will be held the evening of May 26, the same evening as the initial dinner-dance at Happy Hollow club, for which announcements were issued last week. Seymour Lake Country club has grown impatient, so that although the cafe will not be put in shape until later the members have gathered for one pre-season dance this week and will enjoy another on May 25. Carter Lake club is waiting for the water to pass above the freezing point before it gathers its happy family together again and will celebrate Decoration day with its first reunion. Two days later Seymour Lake club will inaugurate its season.

June is to be marked by numerous outdoor fetes and benefits. Unitarian church members are hoping to bring Portia Sweet back to Omaha to give the open-air fete in Joslyn gardens. If they are not able to do it they are planning with much foresight to capture the nimble dancer as she flits back to the east after closing her summer camp in the Rockies. Then they will give a glorious autumn festival among the reds and browns of autumn's falling leaves.

At least one June fete surely will be held. This will be the All Saints' Sunday school June fete at the home of Mrs. Will Hoagland, which is dated for June 2. Mrs. Franklin Shotwell and her mother, Mrs. Lois Cochran, are taking charge of the work and have arranged a delightful program of dances, drills and songs with the added novel feature of a marriage dance in the house for the young people at the close of the outdoor fete.

Everyone who is so fortunate as to be numbered among the friends of Mrs. Myron Learned is eagerly anticipating the outdoor performance of her masque of country life the middle of June. The thought of this delightful form of drama presented in the open is sufficiently attractive of itself to draw interest, but to have embodied in it some of the charm of the author's own personality, if Hanscom park is chosen for this Red Cross benefit it will be full to overflowing with all of us.

funds for Red Cross. At the Chicago Country clubs they are talking of turning prize money into Red Cross funds. In New York the women golfers are planning to give their tournament entrance fees to Red Cross treasurers and to cut down their prizes. Just what Omaha women will do along this line has not yet been decided. Mrs. Walter G. Silver is considering the matter and has presented several schemes to the members of the association.

Next to golfing the favorite pastime in society is afternoon tea. This is the only unadulterated form of entertainment left to the hostess. Bridge parties have been coming dollars for good causes and will continue to do so for some time to come. Dancing parties are excellent money-getters as Mrs. Thomas Latham Davis will prove after her circle of All Saints' Parish Aid has given its dancing party Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dana C. Bradford. Luncheon and dinners are altogether too expensive for benefit affairs, so the tea is the really satisfactory way of getting together socially. Mrs. John L. Kennedy's tea last Tuesday was a delightful affair. The guest of honor, little Mrs. E. John Brandeis, set the informal note by appearing in a simple dark costume with large hat and soft furs thrown carelessly around her shoulders. Many of the guests came in street attire from their various centers of activity, so that no one was confined to strictly afternoon dress. The hostess and Mrs. George Brandeis were two most charming figures in their light afternoon frocks.

Tuesday seems a good day for tea, because this week Mrs. Charles D. Beaton, too, has taken Tuesday for her tea, in honor of Mrs. Wilson Austin of Pelham Manor, N. Y., who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McGrew, and for her mother, Mrs. E. A. Wurster, jr., of Milwaukee. Mrs. E. A. Wurster, jr., of Milwaukee is also expected to be in Omaha for the tea.

One of the interesting events of the week will be the presentation on Tuesday evening of the prize plays of the Omaha Woman's Press club at the Blackstone. About 200 interested people will gather for the evening. Several dinner parties of Press club members and friends will be given at the hotel preceding the performance.

Sojourners Return Home.
Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Allison and their daughter and son, Miss Grace and Charles, arrived home Friday from Asheville, N. C., where they spent several months. They will not remain long here, however, as they plan to go to Colorado or Wyoming for the summer.

Vivid Sport Clothes Seen on the Links

WHAT will be worn on the golf links in Omaha this summer was just as definitely indicated at the opening day on the Country club links Monday as the summer fashions set on the board walk at Atlantic City on Easter Sunday.

The Bee photographer trained his camera on the riot of color and pattern at the first play of the season. Black and white stripes, checks, plaids, jersey cloth and truly futuristic floral designs were carried out in the sports suits worn. The naggiest and newest of vividly colored sweaters vied with the trimmest of tailored cloth golf togs, all on the colorful green. Here are a few. Fore!
