GERMANY LEVIES TAX ON BRUSSELS

Fine of One Million Marks for Extending Greeting to Cardinal Mercier at Mass.

July 21, 1916, the anniversary of the independence of Belgium, all Brussels knew that Cardinal Mercier was coming to celebrate high mass in the cathedral of Sainte Gudule.

There was a tacit understanding that there should be no demonstration. The cardinal himself had ordered it. Everyone was trying to control himself. Almost every person had a bit of green ribbon—color of hope—or an ivy leaf—symbol of endurance—pinned to his coat. The wearing of the national colors was strictly forbidden, but the national spirit found another way. Green swiftly replaced the orange, black and red.

The congregation remained silent. Three or four fainting women were carried out; that was all. Then the cardinal mounted the pulpit at the farther end of the nave, to deliver his message—the same message that he had been preaching for two years. His people must hold themselves courageous, unconquered, with steadfast faith in God and in their final liberation. Tears were in the eyes of many, but there was no crying out.

Services for the Dead.
 From the pulpit he came back to the catafalque erected in the middle of the nave for the Belgian soldiers who died in battle, a great towering coffin simply and beautifully draped with Belgian flags, veiled in crepe. Tall flaming candles surrounded it. As the cardinal approached the dignitaries of the city, who had been occupying seats of honor below the altar, marched solemnly down and formed a circle about the catafalque. Then the cardinal read the service for the dead.

The dim light of the cathedral; the sea of silent people; the great canopy, with its flags, its stately flickering candles; the circle of dignitaries chosen to represent the city; the sad-faced cardinal saying the prayers for those who had died in defense of the

EDUCATIONAL

Training Camp for Soldiers of Fortune
 Preparedness for life's battles is necessary for young men and women who wish to succeed. It is just as important as the military training given soldiers before they are sent off to war.

The untrained man goes down in defeat in life's struggle for the "survival of the fittest."

In hard times, when the nations are at peace, it is the unskilled who are laid off by the thousands and who are kept on the pay roll.

Trained men can always get jobs. Boyles College of Omaha is a training camp that gives young men and women a business education and prepares them to make successes of their lives, to meet situations as they arise, to hold good jobs where their pay will get bigger and bigger year after year.

Come in today and see our Omaha "successful list."

Just at present these officers of Uncle Sam's navy are assigned to shore duty. Their work is not quite as thrilling and as picturesque as that of those who command the battleships, destroyers and dreadnoughts, but it is no less important. Captain H. H. Hough is attached to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, where naval officers are trained.

Captain Harry S. Knapp is a member of the General Board of the Navy, which corresponds to the general staff of the army, and which maps out all of the strategic moves. Captain A. P. Niblack is attached to the Naval War College, at Newport, R. I., where the sailors are trained for service on the warships. Captain W. J. Maxwell is also attached to the Naval War college.

standard that now covered them was it strange that as his voice ceased and he moved slowly toward the sacristy door by which he was to depart, the overwhelming tide of emotion swept aside all barriers and the ancient cathedral echoed with cries of "Vive le Roi!" "Vive Monseigneur!" We held our breath. Men were pressing by me, whispering, "What shall we do? We need to cry out after two years, we must cry out!"

Tears Stream Down Cheeks.
 The cardinal went straight forward, looking neither to the right nor to the left, the tears streaming down his cheeks.

"This was the day when in times of peace all the populace brought wreaths to the foot of the statue erected in honor of the soldiers who had died for the independence of Belgium. The Germans had placed guards in the square and forbidden anyone to go near it. And so all day long throngs of people, a constant, steady procession marched along the street above, each man lifting his hat as soon as he came in view of the statue. All these things, I say, did not help Brussels in the matter of the demonstration at the cathedral. And a few days later a posted notice informed her that she had been fined 1,000,000 marks!—Charlotte Kellogg in Atlantic Monthly.

Omaha Banker Speaks To Dunbar Graduates
