Conservation of Food and Clothing Problems and Sale of Liberty Bonds Are of Interest to Society

CONSERVATION has been the great theme of the week. Omaha home keepers attended the meetings at the Auditorium faithfully and earnestly ever since Tuesday evening. They were visibly impressed and went away resolved to economize more than ever before. The feature of the congress which was most interesting to society people was the address given on Thursday afternoon by Secretary W. G. McAduo concerning the Liberty bonds. There many prominent maids and matrons were to be seen listening intently and when the call came for volunteers to buy bonds Omaha's society girls were the first to raise their hands high in air, saying, "I will buy a bond."

figured with huge checks and real estate as acceptable bridal gifts. Since the time to see who will be the first June bride to receive the patriotic and valuable gift of a Liberty loan bond. The Omaha woman who first invests in one of these bonds, be she bride or no, will be a person of great importance in our midst.

renovated clothing. Here we might have a glorified rummage sale. Since "the gift without the giver is bare," each donor would be expected to put the clothing which she gave in reasonable order. It would then be conveyed to a store room fitted for the purpose and arranged as neatly as possible like new clothes. Here shifts of society girls might sell their second hand pumps, party dresses, old furs, suits and so on with economic gain to the buyers.

FROM a strategic point of vantage on the historic old cannon which guards the main entrance of the fine school on the hill, the pretty high school lassies watch their soldier boys in blue training to serve Uncle Sam. The Bee photographer snapped this lovely group as they perched about the cannon captured at Morro Castle in Cuba during the Spanish-American war. There's a wee bit of wistfulness in the smiles the lassies lavish on the youthful soldier boys. They are patriotic and are thrilled at the sight of their uniformed school boy friends coaxed in the necessary drill regulations, but they don't like to think of the possibility of their being called out in a few years, just the same. For youth is youth and school might prove a homesome place, you know, without the boy across the aisle, and someone to carry your books and some one with whom to dance at cadet officers' hops—and—and—you know the rest!

Visitors Enliven Social Atmosphere

Mrs. Wilson Austin plans to return to Pelham Manor Wednesday after a month's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McGrew. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. June Fete Saturday For Church Benefit

A varied program on the lawn at 2:30 o'clock, refreshments served on small tables set in the rose garden and a matinee dance in the house at the close will be the three forms of entertainment at the June fete at the home of Mrs. W. W. Hoagland Saturday afternoon. The children of All Saints' Sunday school, under the direction of Mrs. Franklin A. Shotwell, have charge of the affair and will take part in the program with many of their friends.

End of School Year Brings Younger Set Home; Fair Graduates Abound

SCHOOL girls are being graduated from eastern schools and are flitting away to visit school-mates or coming quickly home for the summer. Some will bring visitors home with them and then after a short stay will go elsewhere for vacation visits. Miss Dorothy Belt will come home a week from Saturday. She may bring friends with her for a short visit. Each summer she and her parents spend some time at Fryer Lake, Minn., and this year will be no exception.

Field, Happy Hollow and Council Bluffs Rowing Clubs Open Season

COUNTRY club openings last evening temporarily broke the spell which has been hovering over our fair city. A country club patroness said the other day: "Oh, really, you ought not to say so much about the absence of people from the clubs. If they are to be kept up at all people will have to go, and if you say that people don't go then others will stay away." Truth to tell, this cool "spell" of weather cast a chill over outdoor festivity which not all the attractiveness of these pleasant places of amusement has been able to counteract.
