Itching Pimples Kept Mr. Simpson Awake for Hours. Suffered Badly. Healed By Cuticura.

"I was told to wash my head with salt and water, but it did no good and I tried—but with no relief. Then I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I afterward bought more and when I used two large boxes of Cuticura Ointment and two bars of Soap I was healed." (Signed) Charlie Simpson, Oak St., River Grove, Ill., June 7, '16.

rebel tide as Gibraltar checks and dashes back the rage of the stormy sea.

March to the Sea. "Some of you went with Sherman from Atlanta to the sea, in the execution of one of the greatest military movements in the history of warfare. You were with him and when you marched with Sherman to the sea you fought in the ranks with these great leaders helped to bring them to fame and are sharers of their renown."

"I like to think of the virtue of the rank and file. Today I rejoice in looking back over the dusty ranks in which many a brave boy trudged whose only fame was the short line in the newspaper announcing to the brief-bowed friends the cheerful laying down of his life for his country. They were boys, for it was the flower of youth that was plucked from the mother's breast and the sweetheart's arms. Out of 5,216,384 men engaged in the struggle 4,544,276 were under 22 years of age. Only 682,108 were over 21. Were the boys older then that now? Are we softening as a nation with the luxuries of prosperity? The world has never produced better soldiers than the American soldier boy. It is the best fighting blood of history. They can handle any machine that genius can invent. The torpedo, the aeroplane, the submarine are American inventions and the American genius can invent something to take the sting out of their destructiveness."

Looking Forward Now.

"This Memorial day is of peculiar significance to us. Today we are not only looking backward, but we are looking forward to this hour of world war, in which we are engaged. All discordant voices must be taught to join in one harmonious chorus in singing the 'Star-Spangled Banner.' Every citizen of this republic, whether Saxon, Slav, Jew, Teuton, Latin or Celt must salute the Star and Stripes, and if he does not salute the Stars and Stripes he must be striped until he sees the stars."

"There is need for reconsecration to the flag. Each one must ask the question of himself, 'What can I do for my country in this hour of world war?' The heaviest burdens of war are always borne by the mothers and so the mothers with heads up and shoulders back can follow the example of the mothers of the civil war and give their sons to the nation."

All Should be Considerate.

"Employers should be reasonable and considerate of their employees and share with them the profits of their business. The laboring man should be considerate and reasonable in his dealings with his employers and endeavor to see both sides of the labor question. There must be no strikes and no ostracisms in this hour of peril."

"While the mead of highest praise must be accorded to the men enlisted in the ranks, we will give appreciative credit to the artisans, nurses, physicians, farmers and all honest toilers and producers who offer willingly the fruit of their labor directed for the succor of the nation in this critical hour. The Red Cross movement must be supported. The Liberty bonds must be purchased and each and every one must cheerfully meet the demands made upon his patriotism."

Quartet Pleases Crowd.

"The 'Vacant Chair' was sung by a quartet made up of Nat Hubbard, C. E. Boeke, Mrs. F. D. Cooper and Miss Anna Hein, after which, as a closing number, the audience, standing, joined in singing 'America.' One of the pleasing features of the exercises of the afternoon was the work of Martina Stites and Virginia Light, two girls 8 years of age. Supplied with numerous large bouquets, they presented them to all persons who took part in the program. However, those who were on the program were not the only ones to receive flowers. The members of the Women's Relief Corp. provided themselves with 700 carnations and to the coat lapel of each Grand Army man and veteran of subsequent wars, pinned one of the flowers."
