

GUARD HOUSE FOR PROWLING CADETS

Captain Has Busy Time Keeping Some of the Omaha High School Boys in Camp.

Gilmore, Neb., June 5.—(Special Telegram.)—Running the guard, capturing bull snakes, wrestling and base ball occupied most of the time of the Omaha Central High school cadets camped here.

Company I, in charge of Captain Frank Hamilton, had a busy time keeping the cadets in camp. Many attempts were made to run the guard and this morning the guard tent was full of cadets.

The camp was awakened shortly after midnight by a number of town boys, who tried to make their way into the camp. The guard had difficulty in keeping the invaders out. Major Owen of the First battalion made a flying tackle at the ringleader. He was captured and placed in the guard house.

Richard Smith, sergeant, Company F, received a gash in the forehead in a scuffle with another cadet. He was attended to by Dr. Weigand of the University of Nebraska, who accompanied the cadets.

The cadets were awakened at 5:30 this morning. Setting up exercises were given before mess. Company, battalion and regiment drill followed.

Company H, in command of James Williamson, will do guard duty tonight. An extra company is to be held in reserve for emergencies.

Company streets and tents were inspected this morning.

Attorney General Serves Notice Upon Agitators and Traitors

Lincoln, June 5.—An able-bodied man who, in these days of war, fails to perform work of some kind is guilty of an act of treason in that he gives aid and comfort to the enemy, in the opinion of Attorney General Willis E. Reed.

"It makes no difference if the man has refused to work for a number of years," said the attorney general, referring to industrial agitators and men who are constitutionally opposed to physical exertion of any kind. "It is treason to fail in helping make the nation ready; it is treason to destroy food, for that would give aid and comfort to the enemy; for the same reason it is treason to cause strikes. There may be disagreement about this, but it will be the policy upon which this department will proceed."

Attorney General Reed said he had heard vague rumors of plans to destroy crops in Nebraska and to foment labor trouble in industrial establishments.

"We have no evidence of anything like this," he said. "But we are acting upon the supposition it is better to guard the barn than to lock the door after the horse has been stolen. We are letting agitators and traitors know just where we stand."

The attorney general supplemented his statement with the assertion that men who will not be called to war under the draft provision of selective conscription should stand ready and willing to make whatever sacrifice should be demanded "to the last drop of their blood and to the last dollar they own."

"For this war is for the nation and all the people of the nation," he said. "It is for humanity, and no sacrifice is too great to make that it may be won."

rounds of applause along the line. One banner inscribed "The Greeks are for the United States first, last and all the time," heading a small army of about 500 of that nationality, also brought out much hand-clapping, while a short distance back of them another banner, "Japanese boys. We are for Uncle Sam, who are you to be?" headed a little group of those men. A delegation of about 100 Germans also drew a loud hand.

The musicians' union band, headed the line with an auto carrying Governor Neville and Mayor Miller followed. A detachment of cavalry and a company of National Guardsmen and a battery formed other interesting parts of the parade, the rest being made up of old soldiers, veterans of the Spanish-American war, school children, nurses, patriotic societies and others.

Norman Says Old Men Should Run Elevators

Lincoln, June 5.—(Special.)—Frequent inquiries coming to Labor Commissioner George Norman from Omaha about working girls in the elevators of that city taking the places of men who have enlisted or who may be called to service, led the commissioner to declare he believes there are plenty of men over the war age limit who could be placed in charge of these elevators, men who are perhaps not physically able to do hard manual labor.

"I do not believe that an elevator is the right place for a girl," said he to The Bee this morning. "I would prefer that the old men be given these jobs in most instances, at least. There may be places where it might be all right for a woman to work the elevators, but I hardly feel that generally speaking it is the right place for them."
