Epsom Salts (magnesium sulphate)

That is, on the whole, the most useful poultry yard drug. It should be given whenever there is any digestive disturbance, also where cases of colds and bowel trouble are prevalent. The standard dose for all adult fowl is from one half to one treasuron. fowl is from one-half to one teaspoonful. Birds of different ages require different amounts to the dose. There are several ways to administering Epsom salts. It may be mixed with the drinking water or a solution may be made and poured down the throat of the bird. The best way to administer a dose to the entire flock is to give the birds no food whatever on the day they are to be given the Epsom salts until late in the afternoon, then, salts until late in the alternoon, then, having determined the amount of salts to be used for the whole pen of birds at the rate of one-half to one teaspoonful per bird, dissolve this amount in water and use this solution to mix up a wet mash. Any ordinary dry-mash mixture of bran, cornmeal, middlings, etc., may be used for this purpose. Plenty of trough space should be provided and plenty of feed given so that each bird gets a full dose. This method insures a more even dosage through the flock than any other. It may be also fed in the drinking water, one teaspoonful to the quart.

Cottonseed Oil (salad oil)—This is useful in many ways in treating prolapse of the oviduet (dropped abdomen), crop-bound condition and in other cases such as where the foul is useful in many ways in treating prolapse of the oviduet (dropped abdomen), crop-bound condition and in other cases such as where the fowl is egg-bound. The oil may be used to good effect as a simple lubricant. Bichloride of Mercury (1 to 1,000 solution)—To make this the simplest way is to buy from the druggist bichloride of mercury tablets and ask him to label the box to show how much water a tablet must be dissolved in to make 1 to 1,000 solution. The amount is one pint. If one desires to mix it up for himself ask the druggist to make up some one-gram (15½ grains) powders of bichloride of mercury. Dissolve one of these in a quart of water. Put in enough laundry bluing so that the color will be deep blue, then the solution (which is highly poisonous) will never be taken for water. This solution is a germicide and a disinfectant for external use, such as cleansing wounds, etc.

Medicine in Tablet Form—The tablet form is the most convenient way of administering medicines to chickens. Wholer le and mail order drug houses carry extensive lines of these, graded as to dosage. They may be administered to the chicken very easily by holding the bird's mouth open and with one fland dropping the tablet into the esophagus. The following list will be found useful and fairly well covers the medicines often recommended for use in the treatment of poultry ailments.

ful and fairly well covers the medicines often recommended for use in the treatment of poultry ailments. Any poultryman may get these from his local druggist.

Approximate Price Per 1,000—Sodium salicylate (for use in rheumatism) three grains, 70 cents; aconite root, one to ten grains, for use in fevers, 50 cents; antiseptic tablets, blue, corrosive sublimate, 7.3 grains; ammonium chloride, 7.7 grains. (This is used for making I tablets, blue, corrosive sublimate, 7.3 grains; ammonium chloride, 7.7 grains. (This is used for making 1 to 1,000 blehloride. One tablet dissolved in one pint of water gives a solution of that strength), $2.50. Bismuth subnitrate, one grain (for intestinal irritation), 80 cents; calomel, one-fourth grain, 40 cents; iron, quinine and strychnine (for use as a tonic, dose three times per day), 80 cents.

tonic, dose three times per day), 80 cents.

Ointment — The following ointment may be made by the poultryman, and will be found very useful in the treatment of cuts, sores, wounds, etc.: Oil of origanum, one ounce; cresol, three-fourths ounce: pine tar, one ounce; resin, one ounce; clean axle grease, eight ounces. Melt the axle grease and resin and stir in the other-ingredients. Pour off in a tin can and allow to cool.

The Chicken Business

The chicken business is no place for the untrained or unread man or woman. It's simple but there's lots to know and a wrong path leads surely to disaster. Little use to set a hundred eggs, hatch fifty, raise twenty, have these grow up unthrifty and the hens lay perhaps fifty eggs a year.

The Lee Library of five booklets was writ-ten by an expert of thirty years' experience in poultry work. It tells about Lee's foods, insecticides and remedies-true; but it is more than an "ad." It points out the stumbling blocks, the little pitfalls that cause so many failures with poultry.

We show how eggs can be made 90 per cent fertile; 90 per cent or better hatched; 90 per cent of these raised; every normal hen made to lay fifteen eggs per month every month in the year, and summer eggs preserved absolutely fresh for winter sale or use; then there's big money in chickens.
