Red Cross Nurses at Horse Races.

Miss Edna Peterson, daughter of President Edward Peterson of the Omaha Driving club, is a real "horse-racing fan." She never misses a chance to see a turf meet and each fall goes south to the home of genuine horse-racing to see her father's prize-winning animals compete with other famous horses on the Kentucky green. "I can't imagine anything more wonderful than a good horse race," she says.

Miss Peterson's patriotism, though, is of such a brand that she carries it with her even when she intends to enjoy her favorite sport. When the driving club decided to donate all money above actual expense to the Red Cross she decided to help in every way possible to make the Red Cross sum a large one. Instead of allowing men to be hired for ticket takers and ushers, as was done last year, she offered her services for the work and enlisted from fifteen to twenty of her friends to do likewise. All day yesterday they sold tickets with great success among the business men downtown. Today they made their appearance in Red Cross costumes at the race track, where they served as ushers, ticket takers and everything else that would help to cut down the cost of operating the course.

The helpers in today's group were Misses Esther, Irene and Louise Carter; Winifred Traylor, Rita and Marie Chabot, Esther Peterson, Agnes Simples and Frances Robinson and Miss James William Schopp, M. Peterson, Frank Walker, F. J. Wearne, J. T. Kelley and H. Nygaard.

Bridge for Miss Holman.

Mrs. Roger P. Holman entertained at bridge this afternoon for Miss Betty Hillman of Menomonee, Wis., who came last week to spend the summer with her. No more parties are being planned for Miss Holman just now, for her host and hostess are arranging an automobile trip through western Nebraska and Colorado, which may take them from the city in a week. Pink and white peonies formed luxurious decorations throughout the house.

Affairs for Brides.

Mrs. Roy B. Gordon gave a pretty bridge luncheon at her home today complimentary to Miss Margaret Parks, whose marriage is an event of the near future. The fifteen guests were seated at one large table decorated with red peonies, red-shaded candles and American flags. Place cards were suggestive of bridal arrangements. The party spent the afternoon at bridge.

Wedding Announcement.

Mr. Harry Peterson and Miss Grace Goos, both of Sioux City, Ia., were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Gibson Saturday evening by Rev. B. R. Von der Lippe. Miss Marie Ewers played the wedding march. The bride is a sister of Mrs. Gibson. The wedding party had dinner at the Rome after the ceremony.

Stork Special.

A daughter, who has been named Janice Adele, was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Trimble at the Clarkson hospital this morning.

At Happy Hollow Club.

Mrs. Archie W. Carpenter is giving a dancing party at Happy Hollow club this evening to celebrate the fourteenth birthday of her daughter, Ruth, as well as her graduation from Saunders school. During intermission the forty young guests will be seated at a large table set in the shape of a red cross. A big birthday cake, with individual candles of blue and white will stand in the center of the cross and around it white peonies will be banked. The ice cream will have in it little American flags. Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Belt of Lincoln are coming to attend their niece's party.

In Clubdom.

Garfield Circle club will meet with Mrs. Gertrude Johnson Wednesday at 2 o'clock to do Red Cross work.

The Round Table chapter of the Chautauque circle, organized three years ago under the leadership of Mrs. W. B. Howard gave a dinner Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Howard. The class, which now numbers eighteen, has been meeting every Thursday evening and will be graduated next year. The five original members, Miss Grace Grant, Miss Elizabeth Ryan, Miss Gertrude Bailey, Miss Mittie Ward, now Mrs. W. T. Loomis, and Miss Rose Zurcher, now Mrs. G. E. Davis, are still in the class and have only missed attendance less than four times in the three years.

JUNE BRIDE WHO WILL LIVE IN DAKOTA.

ROY E. DANBAUM

Miss Roy E. Danbaum, daughter of Mrs. Mary Danbaum, will be united in marriage with Mr. David Miller Thursday afternoon at the bride's home. After a short wedding trip the young people will be at home in Harold, S. D.

Alumni Enjoy Picnic.

University of Chicago alumni assert that there never was such a good time as the one they enjoyed at Summerhill farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Magee, last Saturday. On the program was a women's chicken race, potato planting and an egg hunt for china eggs. This the guests decided was unkind, for after climbing all through the haymows and hunting all around the barnyard they felt that they deserved genuine high-cost-of-living eggs, instead of china imitations.

News of School Set.

Miss Frances Barnhart, who was graduated this year from the University of Iowa, will arrive in Omaha Wednesday night. She was awarded a scholarship at the University of Chicago and will begin her work there in the fall.

Miss Helen Chesney, who has been visiting in Kansas City is expected the last of the week.

Rev. and Mrs. Harold Leonard Bowman arrive tomorrow morning from Chicago to spend ten days with Mr. Bowman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bowman. Thursday evening a few old friends have been asked to call to meet them. Rev. Bowman is a graduate of Omaha High school and made his home in Omaha until he began his ministerial work. He has been connected with the Second Presbyterian church of Chicago until recently when he accepted a call from the Woodlawn Park Presbyterian church of the same city.

Home Economics Department

Co-Operation.

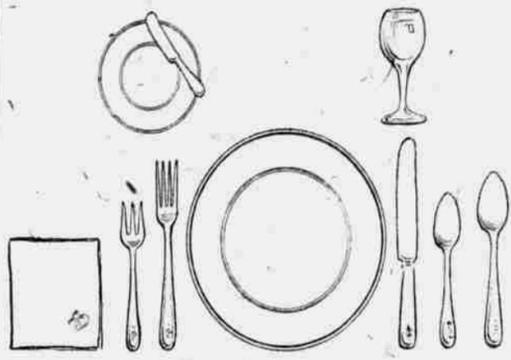

Readers are cordially invited to ask Miss Gross any questions about household economy upon which she may possibly give helpful advice; they are also invited to give suggestions from their experience that may be helpful to others meeting the same problems.

Table Setting.

No matter how enthusiastically and conscientiously we may be conserving our food supply at the present time, still we must set our tables and serve our meals. Whether we have a two-course or a five-course dinner, it may be served beautifully and carefully, thus adding to the graciousness of every day living.

In setting a table the first point is the choice of the table linen. No matter what the quality, the cloth should be beautifully laundered and spotlessly clean. Because of the labor involved in laundering table linen, the modern breakfast cloth is just the size of the table, and for breakfast or luncheon a set of dishes is often used. The breakfast or luncheon set need not be white, for natural colored linen is equally attractive and much less labor to care for. Some progressive housewives who have to consider the labor of the household find the linen doily sets as satisfactory for dinner as they are for the less formal meals of the day. And surely anything is preferable to a soiled white table cloth. If a cloth is used, it should be placed on the table with the creases straight.

Each place at a table is called a cover, and twenty-four inches of space is recommended for each cover if possible. Too small a space makes for awkwardness both for the people at table and the maid. In setting a cover the plate and silver should be set parallel with the edge of the table if the table is square, or with the same curve as the table edge if the table is round. The plate is first set, then the fork at the left and the knife at the right with the blade turned toward the plate. The basis of all rules of table setting and courtesy is really common sense, and it is sensible to have the knife and fork nearest the hand that is to pick up each. On the side with the knife, the spoons are placed in the order in which they will be used, the outside to be used first.

HOW TO ARRANGE A "COVER"

Thus if bouillon, ice cream and coffee are all to be served, the coffee spoon is next to the knife, the teaspoon next, and at the outside the bouillon spoon. The same rule applies to knives. The fish knife is farther from the plate than the dinner knife. On the left side the forks are ranged in the order of use according to the same rule. At a very formal meal, where much silver is needed, it is now customary to have only a moderate amount displayed on the table and bring in the rest with each course as needed. If a butter spread is provided, it is laid across the upper right hand part of the bread and butter plate, or on the table cloth just above and to the right of the bread and butter plate. The water goblet or tumbler is placed directly above the knife, and the bread and butter plate above the fork. The napkin is placed to the left of the fork with the open corner toward the person—that is, toward the plate and the edge of the table. There again the rule of common sense is the basis for this idea of placing the napkin.

Individual salt cellars may be used, or a pair of salt and pepper shakers for each two people. The fewer people the salt cellar is to serve the closer to the individual plate it is placed. When the set must serve several people, it is placed further to the center of the table. The question of table decoration has already been discussed in this column, but the choice of a center piece may be mentioned again. For a small table the center piece may be tall, provided it is very slender, as a single flower vase. For a large table, however, a single flower vase looks lost, unless used with candles. A tall, large bouquet should never be used because it obstructs the view across the table and interferes with table conversation. A low bowl of flowers is always pleasing. The new very flat pottery bowls with flower standards in the center do not obstruct the view because the flowers can never be solidly massed in the standards.

Question Box.

Mrs. S. R. Titus, Tekamah, Neb.: The canning school is held in Room 40, Central High school, at Twentieth and Dodge streets, all of the week of June 11 and the week of June 18. The classes begin Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and it is not necessary for an out-of-town woman to register ahead of time. The classes begin at 9 a. m. The fee is $1. Each woman brings four pint jars, which she fills at the school. She also brings a large apron, a hand towel and a tea towel. If you prefer, you may buy the jars at the school.

V. A. D. Glenwood, Ia.: To prevent a one-crust pie from slipping down in places, you may bake it on the back of the pan, then slip it into the pan after it is baked to fill it. Another method of preventing slipping is to fit the crust very carefully into the pan and build up a rim. To make a rim allow about a half-inch of crust all around the edge, then pinch this extra half-inch back and perpendicular to form a rim. If there are any other points with which I can help you, I shall be very glad to be of assistance.

Apotheosis of Coffee

Let me make my husband's coffee—and I care not who makes eyes at him!

Give me two matches a day—
One to start the coffee with at breakfast and one for his cigar after dinner.

And I defy all the hours in Christendom to light a new flame in his heart!

Oh, sweet, supernal coffee pot!
Gentle panacea of domestic troubles.

Faithful author of that sweet nectar which deadens all the ills that married folks are heir to.

Cheery, glittering, soul-soothing, warm hearted, inanimate friend!
What wife can fail to admit the peace and serenity she owes to you?
To you, who stand between her and all the early morning troubles—
Between her and the before-breakfast grouch—
Between her and the morning-after headache—
Between her and the cold gray dawn scrutiny?
To you, who supply the golden nectar that stimulates the jaded masculine soul.

Soothes the shaky masculine nerves,
stirs the fagged masculine mind,
inspires the slow masculine sentiment,
And starts the sluggish blood,
And starts the whole day right!

Give me a man who drinks good,

hot, dark, strong coffee for breakfast!

A man who smokes a good, dark, fat cigar after dinner!

You may marry your milk faddist, or your anticoffee crank, as you will! But I know the magic of the coffee pot!—Helen Rowland in the American Grocer.

Rise in Breakfast Food

A small boy appeared at the back door of a neighbor's house and said to the matron who opened the door: "Good morning."
"Good morning," the housewife retorted, somewhat curiously.
"I came over to tell you something."
"Well, what is it?"
"Last evening my papa was angry because the water boiled out of the steamer under the rolled oats."
"Is that so?"
"Yes. And then he made up his mind to fix the steamer so that it couldn't happen again."
"What did he do?"
"He put some water in the steamer and then soldered it all up."
"Is that what you came over to tell me?"
"Yes, and to borrow your stepladder."
"What do you want with the stepladder?"
"I want it so father can scrape the rolled oats off the ceiling.—St. Louis Republic.

Substitutes for Tin Cans

A large part of the high cost of living is accounted for by the cost of the containers in which many commodities are marketed; and one of the anxieties which surround the preparations for the conservation of food supplies and the prevention of waste in the immediate future arises from the certainty that there will be a serious shortage in the materials for cans. In anticipation of this difficulty the Department of Commerce, in collaboration with the Bureau of Standards, has done a public service by the issue of a pamphlet giving wise counsel to the canners and the public relative to possible substitutes for tin cans and to ways and means of offsetting any possible shortage.

There are certain things, of course, for the preservation of which tin is a necessity. In other cases tin containers have assumed an advertising value which makes their abandonment a matter of serious sacrifice. But there are a host of present uses for which no such plea can be made and the government pamphlet referred to points out the large class of food commodities capable of being distributed in paper or fiber containers. It is suggested, moreover, that large consumers can contribute to the national economy by purchasing in quantity, thus lessening the demand for smaller tin cans and boxes. To make a plan of this sort effective, there will have to be cordial co-operation between manufacturers, packers, canners and consumers, and it will be the part of patriotism for all concerned to do their full part in bringing this about. Incidentally, the public will want to know how far the high prices that are being charged for glass and tin are due to a real scarcity, and how far they are to be attributed to mere profiteering. It is to ascertain this that the government is asking for increased powers of inquiry as to every detail concerning the production and distribution of foodstuffs.
