A Good Profit. The following is a copy of a let-ter from H. A. Ling, a breeder of single comb white Leghtons. An in-teresting comparison is drawn by Mr. Ling and a study of his results are well worth while. "We bought this place in May, 1914. It consists of a house and barn, with accommodations for 125 hens. There are 25,000 feet of good garden land and some fruit trees. The first year we were here I bought fifteen I-year-did Rhode Island Red hens and raised twenty-two Rhode Island Red pul-leta, none being high-bred stock Two hens died that winter and the re-mainder were disposed of in Octo-ber, 1915. On closing the book I found we had made on the lot an actual profit of $25. "Perhaps you will be interested to learn what I have been able to ac-complish with white Leghtons the last year. In May, 1915, I bought 160 white Leghtorn day-old chicks and succeeded in getting sixt-five pul-lets, which began laying in Novem-ber. ## Take First Lesson in Extract. ing Moisture From Garde Products With View of Long Preservation.

More than 100 men gathered Friday night in the city council chamber to learn how to dry fruit and vegetables.

The meeting was arranged by the Welfare board. Prof. C. W. Pugsley of the State university, lectured and demonstrated how to dry all sorts of vegetables, and fruits. A complete drying outlit will the sliged yegetables and fruits in the trays was shown; also samples of dried fruits and vegetables and samples of still others which had been dried and then soaked to their original forms. Among the things dr ed by this process were corn, asparagus, apples, apricess were corn, peas, heans, heets, radishes, spinach and rhubarb and rhubarh. The drying apparatus is simple, con-sisting of six trays, each eighteen inches wide, three feet long and about two inches deep. The bottoms of the trys are made of wire screen, painted with parafing to keep the drying things from taking any taint from the metal. These six trays are piled one on top of the other and then a current of air is sent through from an electric fan. In about twenty-four hours the things are all dried so that they will keep indefinitely. Prof. Pugsley stated that the cost of oper-ating the fan is about 6 cents for twenty-four hours. Women Are There. The men were not alone at the meeting, though primarily for them. About 100 wonnen were there, includ-ing Mrs. Rose Ohaus of the Welfare board. The men, however, had regis-tered for the course and they have agreed to teach others how to dry things. Mayor Dablman presided, and Rabbi Cohn, president of the Wel-fare board, made a short address, con-gratulating the "men who came in here as purils and will go out as teachers." Frof.
