Muggsy Makes Boot on Ed Rousch; Morris to Smoke Willard Out of Hole

Giant Leader Errs Badly When He Figures Robertson Superior to Rousch and Ships Latter to Cincy.

By JACK VEIOCK.

New York, June 23.—John McGraw is conceded to be one of the smartest managers in base ball, and there is no doubt about his ability, but even Jawn boots one now and then.

Evidence tending to show that McGraw kicked one when he permitted Eddie Rousch to get away from the Giants in the deal which sent Matty to Cincinnati may be found in the batting and fielding averages of the National league. And when the base running returns are printed there is no doubt on the part of the writer that this lanky young speedboy from Oakland City, Ind., will be numbered among the base runners who pile up the greatest number of thefts in a season.

Rousch became the property of the Giants through sale when the Federal league tossed the sponge into the ring and threw up its fins. He stuck with McGraw's team until the middle of July and was traded to the Cincinnati club with McKechnie and Mathewson for Buck Herzog.

McGraw couldn't see Rousch as compared to Davy Robertson, and Eddie was sent on his way. But today Rousch stands out head and shoulders above Davy as an all around ballplayer, and unless injuries keep him out of the game this season there is little doubt that he will top Robertson's best efforts in all around playing.

Mercury on Wings.

Rousch, though it is not generally known, is one of the speediest players in the two major leagues today. He is a Mercury in the outfield and on the bases he runs like a deer. In a field meet during the life of the Federal league Rousch equalled the record for getting to first base after laying down a bunt. The record was made in 1908 by Shaw, of St. Louis, and the time was 3 1-5 seconds. Rousch was clocked in the same time.

As a hitter Rousch has natural ability. He does not hit as hard as his former team mate, Benny Kauff, but he has a habit of bangirg the ball on a line past the infielders at a rate of about steen miles a minute, and he often gets two bases on hits on which the ordinary player would get no further than first base.

Rousch's experience in base ball as a professional began in 1912, at Evansville, and he played with that club nearly two seasons. He was sold to the White Sox in July, 1913, for a price reported to have been $3,000, and later released to the Lincoln club of the Western league. In 1914 he refused to report to Lincoln, jumping to the Indianapolis Federals under Whoa Bill Phillips, where he banged the pill for an average of .333 in seventy-four games. With the Newark Feds Rousch hit .298 in 1915, and in 1916 his hitting fell off to .267 in 108 games with New York and Cincinnati. But Rousch is just coming into his prime as a player and he is only 24 years old. So it looks as though McGraw overlooked a bet when he traded him.

Willard Now Circus Owner.

It cost Jess Willard just $105,000 to keep his job with the wild west show that he has been a part of for nearly two seasons.

Jess had to buy the show to hold his place in the sawdust ring, for the former management was on the point of letting him out and taking on Carl Morris when Jess blocked the deal.

Willard's popularity as boss of the heavyweights has been falling off bit by bit ever since he defeated Jack Johnson for the title. His refusal to get into the ring for a championship battle has ruined him as an attraction, and as owner of the wild west show he will probably find out for himself just how much the public thinks of him.

Willard could have been a popular idol had he cared to do the right thing. He has a sunny smile, and the good nature to make friends easily everywhere he goes. But his inactivity in fistic circles has reduced his popularity average to .000, and unless he gets into the ring soon he will have to depend altogether on the cowboys, Indians and sharp-shooters to make his circus a paying proposition.

Tough on Heilman.

Harry Heilman, Tiger outfielder, had an exeprience recently which will stick with him for a while, and which will keep him glued to his seat in the Pullman when traveling about the country.

The Tigers were going from Boston to Baltimore to play a Sunday exhibition game. The train hesitated at New London, Conn., and Heilman jumped off to get some sandwiches, running out of the Pullman car without coat and hat. While he was purchasing the grub the whistle tooted and off went the rattler minus Heilman.

Harry had the change from a five spot and a couple of sandwiches to last until he could catch up with his ball, club, and when he reported wearing a coat and hat he had bought from a pawn broker, he came in for a kidding that got his goat—hoofs, horns, whiskers and all.

Promoters to Offer Champion Seventy-Five Thousand to Fight Oklahoma Man-Mountain.

By RINGSIDE.

Chicago, June 23.—Carl Morris' opportunity to land a match with Heavyweight Champion Jess Willard is at hand. There is no doubt that Morris, through his victory over Frank Moran, is entitled to it, but that question rests with the champion.

It is a matter of very great doubt whether Jess Willard has had any serious idea for some time of ever boxing in a ring encounter again. Indeed, his whole attitude bespeaks the utmost lack of ambition as far as a real battle is concerned, and, although Jess will tell you, if you ask him, that he will battle when the money is hung up, his close friends doubt much whether he would really go through the awful regime of training for any amount of coin.

Be that as it may, they are going to make it real interesting for Jess, at any rate, and will attempt, with the aid of a big offer of a purse of $75,000, to smoke the big fellow out and get some sort of a definite statement from him. The people behind the offer are solid folks, it is said, who have no interest in either fighter, but intend to have a substantial interest in the promotion of the affair.

Willard has said time and time again that for personal reasons he never would fight Carl Morris. The latter, it seems, once told Jess to go and get a reputation. This so incensed the champion, who wasn't a topnotcher at the time, that he swore to himself that he would some day get even. Whether he can continue his grouch in the face of the offer of $75,000 is something that only the champion himself can tell.

Morris, the Sapulpa man-mountain, won from Moran because he literally smothered the lighter man. It was Morris' fight nearly all the way. Moran tried to put over his famous "Mary Ann," but the big Oklahoma giant kept out of harm's way, and when Moran appeared dangerous he came into close quarters, and against his style of fighting Moran was helpless. Some critics do not believe he is in Jess Willard's class.

Brown Punching Bag.

Perhaps a middleweight will arise some day who can knock out George Knockemstiff Brown of Chicago. But if any such comes, the majority of those who saw George Chip of Newcastle essay the feat a Racine will claim Missouri as their home. They will believe that any man capable of turning the trick must have some reinforced concrete hidden within his gloves.

Chip tried enough hard wallops on Brown's physiogomy to knock half the present heavyweight crop into the land of dreams. But after seven rounds of punching the Chicago Greek as if he were the gymnasium sandbag, he was forced to admit the task was too much for him. His only chance was in pulling up one of the ring posts and committing assault on his rival therewith.

Foxy Freddie Welsh.

A study of the conditions surrounding the dethronement of Freddie Welsh as lightweight champion convinces one that the Englishman was one of the greatest ring generals in the history of pugilism.

You no doubt have heard of other fighters who studied methods of blocking an opponent's best blow and countering in an unexpected manner, but did you ever hear of a fighter who had devised a means of preventing himself from being knocked to the floor, where a referee's count would mean his defeat?

That is what Freddie did, and he applied it against Benny Leonard. But Kid McPartland, the referee, did not wait for the champion to fall. He saw that Welsh was helplessly out on his feet, and stopped it.

It was the position Freddie took in Benny's corner that prevented the new champion from knocking him out. Although dazed and no doubt sensing that the end was near, he worked his way into a corner, which in this case was Benny's. There he braced himself against the post. The side ropes were directly under his arms, hence if he was hit on either side he wouldn't go down. Benny's punches were falling in front of him to keep him from falling forward, and the post was behind him to stop a backward tumble.

Had Wits Working.

This is not to say that Welsh was robbed, for if ever a man was knocked out Welsh was. But it is chronicled to show just how the Englishman's wits were working even while in great distress.

Had Welsh been in the center of the ring, or beyond reaching distance of the ropes, he would surely have gone to the floor. When McPartland stopped the bout Welsh was even farther gone than ringsiders suspected. The referee lifted him off the ropes and started toward his corner. The minute the champion's support was taken away he slipped forward on his face, completely spent. After giving the incident careful consideration, those who witnessed the knockout are convinced that Freddie was done for fully three-quarters of the time he was hanging helplessly on the ropes.

The new champion no doubt will hold his honors for a long time. At the present moment there is but one contender of any consequence, and he is Charley White of Chicago. When one considers how White threw away his chance at the title last summer in Colorado Springs, Benny Leonard stands head and shoulders above his division.

Postmaster Ump Threatens Uncle Sam on Fiery Players

The talk was on umpires and drifted to comments on the assumption of some arbitrators that their persons are too sacred to be touched. This brought out the following story from Tom Needham, now managing the Newark Internationals:

"I was playing with the Wheeling team about fifteen years ago and we went to Clarksburg, W. Va., for an exhibition game. Jimmy Lucas was pitching for us and he hooked two fine curves over the plate on the first hitter. The umpire, who was back of Lucas, called them balls. We were hot and several of us gathered around him. Some one of us tramped on his toes. That raised his ire. 'Don't you do that,' he shouted. 'Don't touch me, for I'm part of the government. I'm postmaster of this town; don't you put your foot on Uncle Sam if you don't want the government on now."

Gossip Heard Among the Amateur Warriors

Edward Conboy, well known in these parts, is now getting his squares at Rock Island, Ill.

Independent teams wishing games with the Auto Row gang are requested to call Walnut 3285.

The Krajiceks purchased the suits and paraphernalia that belonged to the defunct McCarthy crowd.

McAndrews was the heavy boy with the clout sticks for the Ramblers against the Melady Mavericks.

Last Sunday Fetach hurled an elegant game against the Meladys, breezing five and allowing four hits.

For the Beselins, Supernois twirled an excellent game against Bennington (Neb.), allowing only three hits.

The Central Furniture Store team could use a few good ball tossers. Call Carl Backman at South 3606.

Billiam Sherlock would like to sign up with some fast squad. For further information call Douglas 2577.

Against the Lincoln Dyers, Oleson hoisted a remarkable game, striking out thirteen and allowing only six hits.

In the role of umpire, Bernard Hageman got by last Sunday like a major league indicator handler.

Today the Brandeis Stores will travel to Gretna, Neb., and take a whirl at the fast gang stationed there.

Knee, center patch guardian for the Brodegaard Crowns, cracked three on the coco against Dresher Bros.

Greater Omaha league rules would not permit Edward Hazen of the Brandeis to play with the Holmes White Sox.

Today the speedy Beselins will perform at Blair, Neb. To date this squad has compiled an enviable record.

Ralph Spellman busted one square on the face last Sunday which prepaid his transporiation around the diamond.

Potts Sandan, touched one rather strong this summer and for said offense he was allowed to circumnavigate the bags.

Kornash, a new bird, tossed high grade ball for the Polish Merchants against the C. B. DeVol Victors last Sunday.

Last Sunday the Beselins were rigged out in their sipping silks, getting fifteen hits against the Bennington, Neb., crew.

Evidently the famous Pete McGuire was a trifle off last Sunday. The Armours collected fifteen hits off of his offerings.

For the Brodegaard Crowns, Rigly wiggled excellent ball against the Dreshers, striking out eight and allowed five scattered hits.

Under the supervision of McAndrews the Ramblers are rambling along at a merry clip. They have surprised the wise acres.

Oney, centerfielder for the Walter G. Clarks, was the big noise against the Murphys. He rung up two hits, one for three bases.

Against the Lincoln Dyers for the Brandeis, Frank Synek was the king with the billy. He uncorked three hits out of four trials.

Leftfielder Scheaf of the Sample-Harts, stepped into the limelight against the Dreshers, nailing three hits out of four attempts.

For the Dresher Bros., Ling was the big noise last Sunday with the ash furniture. He slipped a couple to remote corners of the lot.

At short Haller of the C. B. DeVol Victors is a peacherino. He gobbles 'em all, has a wonderful arm and covers an acre of territory.

Yes, Joe Moran secured one of those lifelong journey tickets. Art, his brother, got married on one day and Joseph harnessed up the next day.

Ralph Tuttle has again sneaked into a hole of seclusion as far as playing base ball is concerned and he is a bright light on bag two at that.

In Wheeler, the Montclaires have a classy shortstop. He is fast on his pedals, accurate pegger and grabs 'em like a candidate for the big show.

When speaking about iron men, please remember Andy Graves of the Armours. He twiggled two games last Sunday and won both of them.

Eckhardt, the class of the municipal adjudicators, left town. The majority of the Class B warriors would say he was a crackerjack of a barker.

William Victor, manager of the McCarthy, did his best to keep the McCarthys above water, but they sunk like a submarine bumped them.

Joseph Moran of the Murphy Did Its was the main pill smasher against the Walter G. Clarks. He received credit for two of the blacksmiths' seven hits.

In a pinch Bertch, shortstop for the Stags, is their best bet with the billy. He can generally be relied on to come across with the necessary punch.

In Jordan the Omaha Crockery band has a hustling manager. He can always dig up a few extra players, even if the bleachers have to furnish recruits.

In the initial argument between the Te Be Ce's and Armours, Musser was overly there with the club, he getting four safe clouts out of five attempts.

If that boy Eckhimer, first baseman for the Armours, does not make a name for himself this summer, the Armour rooters will be sadly disappointed.

Ragged out as an ump, Bill Behan looks sweet. He is now a municipal umpire, but is anxiously awaiting a vacancy in the Greater Omaha league staff.

For the Walter G. Clarks, Curtis Peterson struck out ten of the Murphy Did Its and allowed seven hits but the anvil boys copped the bacon, score 3 to 2.

Although in the second struggle between the Ramblers and Meladys, Moylan only allowed three hits, the Ramblers collected the short end of a 2 to 1 score.

When the Omaha Amateur Base Ball association suspended Player Lacey of the Omaha Crockery team it made a hole which is a difficult matter to plug up.

Van Wormer of the C. B. DeVol Victors made nine of the Polish Merchants take three swipes a piece at the wind last Sunday and only allowed six scattered hits.

George Rapp of the Armours wore his batting suit last Sunday and concealed in the pockets he found a two-base smash and four cards admitting bearer to corner one.

Same as usual, Edward Minikus for the Meladys is performing. You might as well put the black ribbon on at the start if you intend to slam them near Edward's hooks.

Those Krajiceks must have soaked their clouting tools, for they failed to soak the pill against the Stags. Only one hit was collected off the puzzlers dished up by Farley.

On the warm corner, Reber of the Walter G. Clarks, draws the stamp of approval. He picks 'em out of the dust fast, has an excellent wing, good roof and is a mediocre clubber.

In James Dugdale the Montclaires have a fielder who is an excellent uphill warrior, as he inspires life into the bunch when matters look dubious. He is also a player of class.

Last Sunday George Kennedy paraded around in a faultless fashion in one of the outer patches for the Armours. Of course, he is not what he used to be, because he was a kid.

Another third corner artist who to date has covered himself with glory is Corcoran of the Armours, and if he keeps up his fast clip Pa Rourke will have to get his optics on the job.

A serious operation was performed on George Clark's ear last week, but it was successful and George will soon be able to prance around. He is the chief of the municipal umpires.

Everything points to a very successful season for the Burgess-Nash squad. Their leader utilized good judgment in selecting men of recognized ability and they are producing the goods.

Hayes, who formerly kinked them for the Brandeis and who recently umpired in the Greater Omaha league, is now picking up approximately 15 rocks every Sunday twirling for Plattsmouth, Neb.

Say, but that gent Zeke McGrath, has oodles of quick breaks that are very effective. He is with the Omaha Crockery bunch. Some of the Class A managers ought to give him the once over.

Last Sunday Bernard Probst of the Te-Be-Ces knocked down a few that were shipped as hits, but he altered the bill of lading, changing the destination as well as the article and the shipment was unloaded at station one.
