

COME FROM MANY LANDS FOR REUNION

Four Sons and Four Daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson to Meet in Omaha.

An interesting family reunion will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, 2218 Miami street, this week, when their four sons and four daughters will gather after a separation of fifteen years. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson came from Scotland and settled in Omaha in 1882. Here their children were educated. All attended Omaha High school, two were graduated from the University of Nebraska, one lacked only a semester of finishing and two were graduated from Nebraska state normal schools.

Four children live in Omaha, Mrs. Margaret Bunnell, James Anderson, jr.; Robert Anderson and Miss Elizabeth Anderson, who is one of the librarians at the Omaha public library. Mrs. Charles Stein of Glasgow, Kan., with Dr. Stein and their four children, has been here several weeks en route to California, where they will make their home in the future. Miss Helen Wilson Anderson, who is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and has been attending the White Bible school in New York, sails as a missionary to Korea in September.

John Anderson was graduated from the University of Nebraska with the rank of major of a battalion at the agricultural school and has applied for a position as an officer in the regular army. He expects soon to be appointed for duty at the Presidio in San Francisco. Since his graduation he has been manager of the Valley Home ranch at Valley, Wyo.

Samuel Anderson, eldest son of the family, is treasurer of Roberts college, Constantinople, but has been in the United States during the last year on an enforced vacation. He expects to return at the close of the war. During this time he has been doing post-graduate work at the University of California. At the request of the New York national committee he has accepted the position of secretary of the Armenian and Syrian interior relief committee of northern California. During his stay in California he is hoping to form here a branch of that organization, which is working for the relief of the 2,000,000 starving women and orphaned children of the Armenian and Syrian nations under Turkish rule. For these people the United States government has promised to care after the cessation of warfare, but by that time there will be little need. The are starving in just as pitiable conditions as were the Belgians before the United States relief commission took up their case.

Think Murdered Girl Tried to Avoid Suitor

Sioux City, Ia., July 1.—The mysterious murder of Miss Thekla Gerken of Woonsocket, S. D., who was shot and killed by an unknown person here late Wednesday night, was nearer a solution today. The trend of the police investigation leads the officers to believe there was a "man in the case."

It is known positively, they say, that the girl left her home at Woonsocket against the wishes of her parents and stopped in Sioux City on her way to Dubuque, where she had accepted a position. Police believe that this new evidence may mean that she left her home to avoid a persistent suitor, of which neither her family nor her friends knew.

Power Company to Occupy More Commodious Quarters

LAWN FETE JUST ESCAPES THE RAIN

Jupiter Pluvius Is Kind and Waits Until Closing Hour Before Loosing His Torrents.

Kindly Jupiter Pluvius waited until 8 o'clock, the hour for closing the lawn fete at Binnie Brae Saturday night, before he opened the windows of heaven to let forth his torrents. From 3 o'clock on hundreds of pedestrians and people in automobiles thronged out from Omaha to attend the lawn party and circus combined which was given by the members of the Equal Franchise society for the benefit of the Omaha War Relief society, a branch of the National Surgical Dressings committee, with headquarters in New York.

Everyone who attended the gala affair seemed satisfied, from the children who rode the Shetland ponies with a look of beatific delight upon their faces, to the drawing viewed esthetes who paid a quarter to view the art gallery. Only those who drove past outside the gates of the country place wore a disappointed air.

Flags in Evidence. Costumes and flags of all friendly nations, the British, French, Italian, Japanese, were everywhere in evidence.

Pretty girls in gay costumes, with bright silk kerchiefs tied around their dark or fair hair, lent an attractive color note to the company. They flitted here and there among the shrubbery from one canvas-topped booth to another. Way down in one corner delicious pink lemonade was sold to all comers. You could guess this, you could buy that, you could throw bean bags into a series of holes, you could do a little putting at golf, you might visit a demure gypsy fortune teller at a little striped tent behind a pine tree, or if you grew tired of it all, you might sit down on the grass with a sandwich in your hand to listen to the band play, all for the benefit of war relief. When the band had finished, from away over the vast lawn would come the sound of the shrill bagpipes, were several real kilted pipers blew.

As a wind-up for the successful afternoon, at 7:30 Harry Tukey mounted the auctioneer's block and sold at ridiculous prices everything that was left after the strenuous sale of the afternoon. Prospects were that the total receipts would mount up to a thousand dollars.

Business Transactions in Omaha Show Good Increase

Attempted Robbery After Effort to Burn House

Mystery surrounds the attempted burglary of the home of Mrs. M. Hensman, 1031 South Forty-sixth Avenue, Friday night. Mrs. Hensman had been visiting neighbors and returning about 11 o'clock, found the silverware and a quantity of clothes bundled up and on the kitchen table. Investigation showed a bedroom window broken open. It is thought her return frightened away the burglar without his loot.

Saturday afternoon after a visit downtown upon entering the house Mrs. Hensman smelled smoke. Burned papers were found in the joists where someone had attempted to burn the house. The daylight prowler disturbed nothing in the house. It is believed by Mrs. Hensman that the same person made both visits.

How to Answer the Telephone for Another Person

When you answer the telephone and someone other than yourself is asked for, it is not considered good practice to say "Wait a minute," or "Just a minute."

If you know that the person called is there, it is preferable to say, "He is here; I'll call him." If you are doubtful about it say, "I think he is here; I'll call him."

If the person called is not in, the expression should be, "Mr. Brown is not in; this is Mr. Smith."

This is a courteous way of giving the person calling an opportunity to leave a message with you or to make an inquiry.

BUTCHERS TAKE RAP AT HIGH LIVING COST

Agree to Sell Their Products at Actual Cost, plus Necessary Operating Expense.

Members of the United Master Butchers' Association of Omaha believe they have taken a forward step in connection with the high cost of living, by agreeing to sell their products at actual cost, plus necessary operations and expense. This is to be in force for an indefinite period. Operations and expense are interpreted to mean wages, rent, heat, ice, paper string, etc., with nothing added to selling price for profit. The association urges the public to assist in this by eliminating as much as possible credit, delivery and telephone calls. The resolution follows:

"Be it resolved, That the United Master Butchers' Association of Omaha tender our support and cooperation to the president.

"Be it further resolved, That all food products sold in our markets be sold at actual cost, plus necessary operations and expense.

"Want Rigid Economy. That in view of the high cost of food and the scarcity of the same, that rigid economy and utilization by the consumer be invoked and that said consumer assist us to lower the expense of doing business by eliminating as much as possible the following, namely, credit, delivery and telephone calls, and consume as little of the clerk's time as possible when being served in our stores.

"Be it further resolved that all food held by speculators be confiscated by the government and that all deals in the future be declared illegal.

"Be it further resolved, That we recommend to the secretary of agriculture that the maximum price be set on all necessary commodities, giving consideration, however, to the producer to the extent of allowing a reasonable profit that will provide for all necessary expenses incurred, and should there be a board appointed for this purpose we further recommend that the retailer be recognized as a member thereof, as he actually sells to the consumer and knows prevailing conditions."

TEACHING PEOPLE TO CONSERVE FOOD

Nathan Merriam Back From Washington, Where He Attended Conference of Grain Men.

"At the meeting of leading grain men of the United States, held in the offices of Herbert C. Hoover, national food administrator, various questions relative to the conservation and distribution of grain and food-stuffs were discussed at length and the probabilities are that good results will follow," said Nathan Merriam, president of the Merriam & Millard company, and a leading member of the Omaha Grain exchange.

Mr. Merriam was one of the leading grain men of the United States called to the conference over which Mr. Hoover presided. He returned Saturday from Washington and relative to the conference, he says:

"Pending the passing of the food bill now before congress, which is expected to give President Wilson extraordinary power in the regulation and distribution of the food supply, nothing definite has been decided upon since the authority to do such things as contemplated depends on the passage of the bill.

All Working to One End.

"Men from all parts of our country, representing all branches of industry affecting the cost of living, have been called to Washington lately to consult with Mr. Hoover, the government commissioner, and others in way of action had best be taken after the passage of the food bill.

"Everybody from the commissioner down to, and including the delegates, are particularly anxious to have done what is best for the whole country in general and all are working patriotically to this end.

"There are many questions of supreme importance which will be decided as soon as possible after the passage of the bill, some of which will be submitted to large conferences yet to be called.

"In regard to crops, the oats lead in high per cent, and certainly of maturing favorably. The winter wheat has been assisted by Mother Earth to the best of its ability to receive the winter-killed portions and has succeeded to a larger extent than expected.

"The next government report will likely show an increased estimate. The corn shows a good stand, with prospects of making the largest crop we ever have had, so if all crops mature favorably with present prospects, we will be in a position to supply the world's shortage, including Germany when friendly relations are re-established.

Famous Dramatic Critic Dies at New Brighton

New Brighton, Staten Island, July 1.—William Winter, famous as a dramatic critic, died last night at his home here of angina pectoris. He was 81 years old.

Mr. Winter was first stricken on February 9, 1916, but continued with his literary work until June 4, last.

Mr. Winter was a master of English prose. As a dramatic critic he had few, if any, equals. With Edwin Booth he edited the fifteen plays which formed the principal part of that actor's repertoire, furnishing prefaces and notes, and he prepared elaborate prefaces for many of Shakespeare's plays and those of other authors as produced by Augustin Daly.

The first volume of poems written by Mr. Winter was published in 1854 and was dedicated to Henry W. Longfellow, who was a lifelong friend. He became dramatic critic for the New York Tribune in 1865 and held that position for many years. He spent much of his time abroad and his books on England and Scotland have been widely read.
